ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It is difficult to acknowledge the many different kinds of help given by the group with whom I live, study, work, laugh and grow. Nuclear Evolution is practical research into group consciousness. Without the group at the University of the Trees this volume would not have been written. To the following people I would like to say thank you for the many selfless hours of love and care they have given me:

Special thanks are due to: Ann Ray for teaching me how to write, Philip Allen for many hours of proofreading, Allan Allen and Gary Buyle for their highly creative illustrations, Michael Hammer for photography, John Hills for creating the cover photography and design, and Ondine Bowers for an exceptional job of typesetting.

This paper contains practical examples of the theory at work in changing me into the person who could write this interpretation of Hills' Theory of Consciousness. In each example I am saying how deeply indebted I am to the One in Christopher Hills for making all this possible.

INTRODUCTION

By Christopher Hills

In describing my theory of consciousness, Robert Massy has set out the concepts in the same order and presentation as in the series of lectures that I gave. Because the lectures were given to a group of 15 students, all of whom are writing books on the subject, perhaps I should say that the main experiment and proof of the theory was for the students first to absorb the material and then to re-express it in ways which were unique to each individual. This, in effect, will produce 15 different books with different analogies. Representations will occur from personalities who function, think and live on different levels of consciousness. Each student having a separate viewpoint from a different experiential world, should in theory produce unique insights and not merely parrot the same conscious process of representation. Although the concepts and images are mine, the credit for understanding them and putting them in the simple language of everyday life belongs entirely to each student. Robert Massy, being a physicist, naturally approaches the world, and my theory of how we experience it, from the tangible and provable world of the senses; then he deals with the mind which perceives through them.

Since it is a "Theory of Consciousness" and therefore deals with the observer rather than what is observed, I am taking this opportunity to set out its main parts according to scientific method. The present scientific method, as conceived by academic authorities, lacks certain procedures as a way of validating knowledge. However, we must master this method before going on to other techniques of validating evidence. The Yogic science of consciousness lists three methods of validating knowledge. The first is knowledge of the knower or observer's limitations, leading to the study of ontology, the science of Being, which deals with the nature of perception. The second method deals with epistemology and is identical with what the West calls scientific method. The third method is transcendental knowing, which unites the previous two in the study of reason itself since, rationally, all effects must be traced to their causes, all perceptions traced to the perceiver, and all evidence examined from the point of view of the Universal Intelligence. This 3-step validation enables the student of the knowing process to penetrate directly beyond the relative and comparative knowledge yielded by what we call the scientific method of validation.

A man may walk East on the deck of a ship whose compass confirms that he is definitely walking East, yet he may be going West in respect to the land, if the ship is steaming West. So may science be going towards measuring objective reality while becoming more subjective in respect to greater realities than the immovable body of scientific fact. Until man can map out the different domains of consciousness which provide us with various angles from which Truth may be viewed, we must work from the philosophy that everything is true from the angle from which it is observed. Once we are able to command a helicopter viewpoint and see all the viewpoints at once from a 360 degree angle, then we can arrive at some absolute statements which are true from every viewpoint.

DEFINING THE EVIDENCE

If we look at science as “measurement” or weighing on some scales, we can see easily that there cannot be motion, weight or distance unless the body moves, changes its distance or weight in relation to some other body. In the same way, “velocity” has no meaning unless there is some fixed point in space to measure from. Whether there really is some such fixed point from which we can measure the velocity of light as in a vacuum, or whether we create such arbitrary points in space with our minds, is not the point here. The point in the “Theory of Nuclear Evolution” is that consciousness itself is the ultimate validator of all experience, whether that experience is mathematical relationships or is physical and objective. Even if the measuring is done with instruments which sense phenomena and record it independent of any human agency, such as cameras, chart recorders and spectrosopes, etc., it is ultimately consciousness which designed the equipment to perform within certain parameters of the physical world, and consciousness will interpret and make sense of the sensory results.

This is fairly simple when we come to look for the way science makes representations, models, etc., but when we try to erect a frame of reference for some idea of “pure space” exclusive of all bodies, then like the idea of “Pure Consciousness”, it seems to the human mind so abstract as to boggle the intellect. Here reason and logic appear to depart from common sense.

HUMAN NOTIONS

In human affairs it is conceivable that by using human images of space in which human bodies move and have their being, we can understand what is meant by “pure” space. However, until we can see clearly that the notion of space is entirely created by the notion of ourselves as a body, we cannot progress into domains of consciousness which are not limited by such notions. When such erroneous notions are used as basic assumptions for logical operations, then the results may be logically correct but basically in error.

EXAMPLE OF ERROR

If you move your arm and it meets with no resistance, you would say there is “space.” But if you find resistance, then you will say there is a “body” and, as the resistance is in proportion lesser or greater, you would say there is density of the body, or you would say the “space” is more or less “pure”. So if we conceptualize empty space or pure space, we cannot assume that this idea of “space” or the word “pure” stands distinct from the central idea of a body or motion of bodies.

The same error arises when we try to directly experience “pure consciousness.” The whole abstraction of “pure” means without thought. Can there be any consciousness which does not think of the concept of an experiencer of that consciousness, nor of a Self which confirms the purity of such a selfless thought as the void? Can any observer get rid of onlooker consciousness just by thinking he has done so?

This to me is the scientific starting point of the theory, since it is an absolute, whereas ordinary science would say we cannot infer any unknown absolutes from relative knowledge. And it is true that the knowledge of “pure space” and “pure consciousness” cannot be experienced from the relativeness of bodies. Nor can it be experienced by a consciousness which has placed self-limiting thoughts upon its own framework of understanding. Hence, in applying scientific method to the theory of Nuclear Evolution, we are merely validating by a method of consensus, what is essentially a revelation. In the same way, Einstein’s speculative thought was a revelation; also Newton’s insight was a revelation. Both were later validated by sequential, logical and descriptive methods. Hills’ Theory of Consciousness, which Robert Massy has called my Theory of Nuclear Evolution, must also be logically consistent. Since the theory of Nuclear Evolution deals also with the internal experience of time as the conditioner of the particular kind of reality a human being is likely to validate, we must here state briefly what we mean by time. No doubt many books could be and will be written about time. Here it is defined only to understand the theory.

WHAT IS TIME?

There is no such thing as time except as a concept of the flow of events or the motion of objects through space. Obviously it takes time for objects to move down the street, whether that object is our own body or some lump of matter such as a motor car. But the time experienced is only relative to the surface of the earth, or the movement of the earth on its axis, or the earth's orbit around the sun. The creation of some external clock in the mind which measures off events is not known to nature.

Even though we can measure through some biological clocks the action of light on living cells, we learn no more of time than listening to our own heart beat and wondering why it beats 70 times against 150 for a mouse or 11½ years for the sun. The spatial representation of time, as in "space-time", is no different. The succession of points along a logical and sequential line of direction corresponds to the succession of instants in time called events or "bits". With all notions of physical motion, the line of direction is traversed in a direction away from the origin of time. And what does time originate in if it is not the absolute concept of no time or zero? We are tempted in quantum physics to use the same linear time line, viewed from the opposite direction as flowing towards the origin of time instead of away from it, thereby representing a "particle" moving backward in time. Any line viewed in this way is just an intellectual exercise unknown to the processes in nature. Certainly nature returns in cycles, but it never exactly repeats an experience nor reverses itself in linear fashion or exact circles.

TIMING

It is not logical to say "before" or "after" if we allow the backward flow of time any reality. In reality there is no backward movement in time but only a backward movement in space towards the state of no time. The origin of time is purely in our consciousness and the way we subjectively perceive the flow of events in space. Another entire book could be written on sensory awareness and the perception of space because we are dealing with complex identification processes in the mind.

MENTAL PROCESSES

A series of cassette tapes given over 24 weeks to students at the University of the Trees goes deeper into this complex problem of identification processes. But here we are concerned with a popular book which steps down and simplifies rather than complexifies. Therefore certain assumptions about time should be discarded temporarily as conceptual mind sets until the reader has understood the way that other people with different time worlds experience reality. This will enable the theory to be discussed in a new framework and the scientific method to be applied as a method of validating knowledge rather than as some intellectual game which everyone plays for intellectual self-stimulation.

ANALOGY OF HISTORY

The temptation to theorize about entropy, the running down of the universe, by conceptualizing time as an arrow pointing in only one direction is very similar to the way ordinary folks look at history. Time flows like a river in ordinary experience of consciousness, and past events are recorded in the memory or in books. We can look backward at the history of events from the present as if history cannot be changed. As we turn back the pages to the records of more distant past events, we realize it is only distance of these events which creates the flow of time in our temporal relations. We are still the child with small bones and milk teeth if we dissolve time. We are still the baby who was born without a sensory or mental concept of time or space, if we can mentally dissolve the flow of time. The physical growth that has occurred through passage of time is not reversible or backward flowing. Eggs made into omelettes cannot unscramble themselves and become eggs again through time reversal. Yet the only factor in human experience which separates us from our childhood memories, or the eggs we have eaten, is the experience of time. Dissolve the time and we can instantly relive each moment of growing up anew! The experience of time in other states of consciousness such as dreams, however, is not always linear. It is misleading to speak of time flowing like a river because in dream states and intuitional modes of knowing, events are not strung out like pictures on a movie film. Sometimes the “before” can come after and the “after” comes at the beginning. Hence the Theory of Nuclear Evolution, which has received little notice of scientists or academicians since it was published in 1968, has been renamed by a physicist as “The Hills Theory of Consciousness”. If I had called it that at the beginning and owned it as some personal property attached to a name, as everything else in science is, then perhaps the book would have received more attention. However pleasing such vanities may be, the fact is that the Theory of Nuclear Evolution was a revelation of what Nature is doing inside each human being and, as such, the theory is being constructed “after” instead of “before”. To apply scientific method to it therefore is a backwards step, bringing what is fact into the realm of theory and speculative thought. This is being done so that people can prove it for themselves. The fact that people are lazy and want me to prove it for them as well as give it to them is something I have to accept as being what science is all about. The only trouble there is that, however many times one proves it to the doubters, if they don’t want to see, one can’t make them see. There is something in certain people, call it a particular level of consciousness or a limited, narrow blindness or what you will, that totally rejects anything they didn’t think of first. If they don’t know it, then it cannot exist because they honestly believe they know everything in their own field that there is to know. This is called the “yellow level” in my theory, and it is the most difficult level of all because in it we separate the observer from what is seen. We do not see and experience wholes on the yellow level but merely parts strung together in a logical sequential time line. It is this level I know best because I am an intellectual. It was only by totally conquering and vanquishing the separative clever mental trickster, like Christ did in talking to the devil in the sun stroked desert, that I was able to see what the Cosmic Intelligence was really doing in each of us. Those who want to know how I got the revelation and by what means I validated the theory can read my book “Super-senssonics” with some understanding. I say this not really because of any desire to convert them to my view of the creation, but to enable them to validate any theory of their own about the workings of Nature. I feel confident that, if they do this, they will eventually reach the same eternal Truth about consciousness as I have given to my students. It is a gift I have received myself which can only be given endlessly away to those who are ready.

DEFINITION

Consciousness cannot be defined accurately because any definition is always conditioned by the consciousness which is experiencing it. However, inability to define something does not mean we cannot discuss it or experience it. In exactly the same way we can experience an electric shock without defining electricity, so we can describe our direct experience of consciousness in metaphors, images, models, and worlds of space and time. In fact all these are expressions of consciousness; they are effects which can lead us to their causes.

THE HYPOTHESIS

Consciousness constantly touches up and modifies laws in order that they may more accurately represent facts. Since facts are knowledge defined as proven and accepted by a general consensus of scientific opinion deemed to be educated opinion, the reorganization of laws of Nature will be only possible on a general scale of civilization when the following conditions exist:

NEW LAWS

1) The educated opinion is convinced that the established and proven body of human knowledge is inconsistent with new evidence or theory about new facts of consciousness.

OLD LAWS

2) The ordinary understanding of consciousness is concerned with what works and not concerned with validation of knowledge, and therefore it embraces the new facts before the educated opinion has had time to disabuse itself of finely entrenched theories about facts.

CHANGING LAWS

3) When the general body of educated opinion believe that the laws of consciousness are as real as any laws of physics, then there can be nuclear changes in the structure of society.

UNDERSTANDING LAWS OF SELF

4) The nucleus of consciousness in each human varies with its own image of itself, i.e.,

- a) In Communism, the self is totalitarian, does not exist for itself alone, is part of the social entity known as the state, has no individual rights apart from the general needs of the people and must sacrifice its personal needs to those of posterity.

b) In Capitalist and Democratic societies, the individual self is supreme, and in the pursuit of enlightenment for himself alone, the individual self eventually finds he is interdependent and responsible for all of society. The quality of society depends on the evolution of each individual self who makes it up, and therefore the image of a totalitarian self is in conflict with that of the rights and responsibilities of each individual.

THE LAWS OF PHYSICS

5) The representations of reality by laws of physics or any other provisional models is too simple to encompass the totality of consciousness completely. The task of continual modification of these laws will go on indefinitely between the nature of reality and the laws of physics, because scientific method does not include the quality of the observer's consciousness in the facts presented.

THE LAWS OF LIFE

All laws are laws of consciousness because they are merely symbolic and provisional concepts about perception of external events without regard to internal events. The symbolic representation of any hypothesis can be upset by any experiment that widens the coordinates to include new features not included in the original schematic representation. All laws, whether of matter or consciousness, depend on the degree of tolerance and limitation in the domains measured. They are imposed by the human mind depending on the type of experiment performed and will forever have to do with the nature of the observer's ignorance of his own mental processes.

DESCRIPTION OF THE EXPERIMENT

In order to prove the various parts of the hypothesis, the nuclear experiment with human consciousness is being performed by a group of humans, students at the University of the Trees, assuming the following axioms:

1) that human consciousness is a mirror which reflects the universe and its total intelligence only in terms of its own ignorance or wisdom

- 2) that human consciousness cannot differentiate between external light of radiation and the internal light of consciousness, since both are intangible and invisible until they interact with matter
- 3) that communication of consciousness by E.S.P. between one member of a group of individuals and another or several others would definitely transcend the laws of physical communication between one body and another as well as laws of time and space
- 4) that the group of individuals unite together on the assumption that humans do function in different time worlds and on different levels of consciousness, which lead to expression of different experiential worlds and that these alternative states of consciousness create a typology of seven humanistic experiential modes of reality or yield combinations and overlapping of these experiential modes which can be qualitatively measured.
- 5) that the mathematical symbol of zero is a nominal representation of "pure consciousness" or "timelessness of pure space" from which all mental events experienced as vibrations can be used to unite the individual consensus.

This consensus is the validation of factual knowledge of the internal/external universal field. In order to transcend the mental set of separate individuality, the experiment will be conducted with 15 lucid people who live together on the same campus and share equal responsibility for the situation created by their consciousness.

THE EXPERIMENT

A group of educated people with at least one degree each from a recognized University will live together and test the hypothesis that humans communicate in different experiential time worlds, the frequency of vibration of which determines the nature of reality experienced.

Each will write a book of the same teachings concerning the nature of consciousness, from their own level of experience and personal awareness. The responsibility for the experiment and its validation or its proof will rest with each individual member of the group, irrespective of who leaves the group or who determines the reality of the group effort. At every moment, all the individuals will consider themselves responsible for what is happening in the group action or inaction. If there is a lack of insight or lack of resources, it is for the individual to attempt to supply what is missing or be challenged by other members on other levels of consciousness to manifest this lack observed.

THE PROOF

. . . that each individual receives life force or consciousness and filters it differently through his own levels of consciousness and re-expresses this through the different psychic centres (or chakras) which determine the human personality structure.
. . . that this difference is revealed by each participant in the way they tackle the writing of a book on the subject of the evolution of a nuclear group. Duplication of the observations of Nuclear Evolution will show whether the hypothesis is correct, because the levels of consciousness and the inner experiential worlds of time will be manifest in the work of each individual learning from a common source.

THE PURPOSE

The purpose of the whole experiment is to lead a group of people to a collective understanding of the uniqueness of life so that they may understand that a common universal field of consciousness may be manifested in countless individual ways. In short, it is to personally experience the many in the one and to see the ONE who is the ground of all being and consciousness.

It remains to say that if you don't like Robert Massy's way of presenting Nuclear Evolution, try reading one or two of the other 15 experimentors who are now replicating this research on the nature of consciousness! The theory is proved if you think you have read something different. One thing you will agree: that devotion to a task is a form of love, which is the basis of all science and religion.

This book was first submitted as Robert's dissertation for his Ph.D. degree, which may be one of the first degrees in the West to be issued specifically for research into the nature of Supersensonic Communication with Nature. In our degree program, we now call this work on the different levels of perception by the euphemistic name of "Consciousness Research." As we human beings become less theoretical and more simple and directly aware of our Super-sensitive role in our relationships to Nature's many kingdoms, I hope that many young people will be able to get degrees in the most important area of study known to man. The most valuable asset that everyone has, from which all other things flow, is the nature of our own Consciousness.

Such degrees are awarded ultimately only by the ONE and are accredited only by the radiance of Being. During the writing of his thesis, I have seen Robert change and re-radiate my faith in him. What more can a teacher say? What greater reward can a teacher be given?

WHAT IS NUCLEAR EVOLUTION?

CHANGE

Change is the process of Nuclear Evolution. This book is about how we can learn to change. We cannot change anything we are not aware of, and so this is a manual on increasing our awareness. It is taken from a series of teachings given by Christopher Hills over a three year period and specifically a seven week concentrated course.

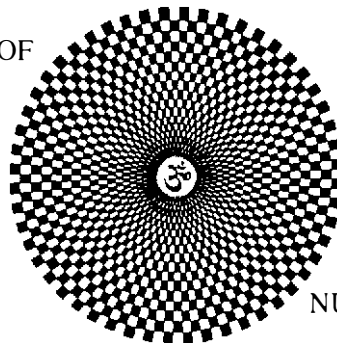

NUCLEAR EVOLUTION

Nuclear Evolution is the way by which man will evolve to Cosmic Consciousness. Throughout this work Nuclear Evolution will be looked at and defined in many different ways. The Hills Theory of Consciousness is called Nuclear Evolution because it was taken from nature's own method of organizing from the Nuclear Centre of every system.

DOES IT WORK?

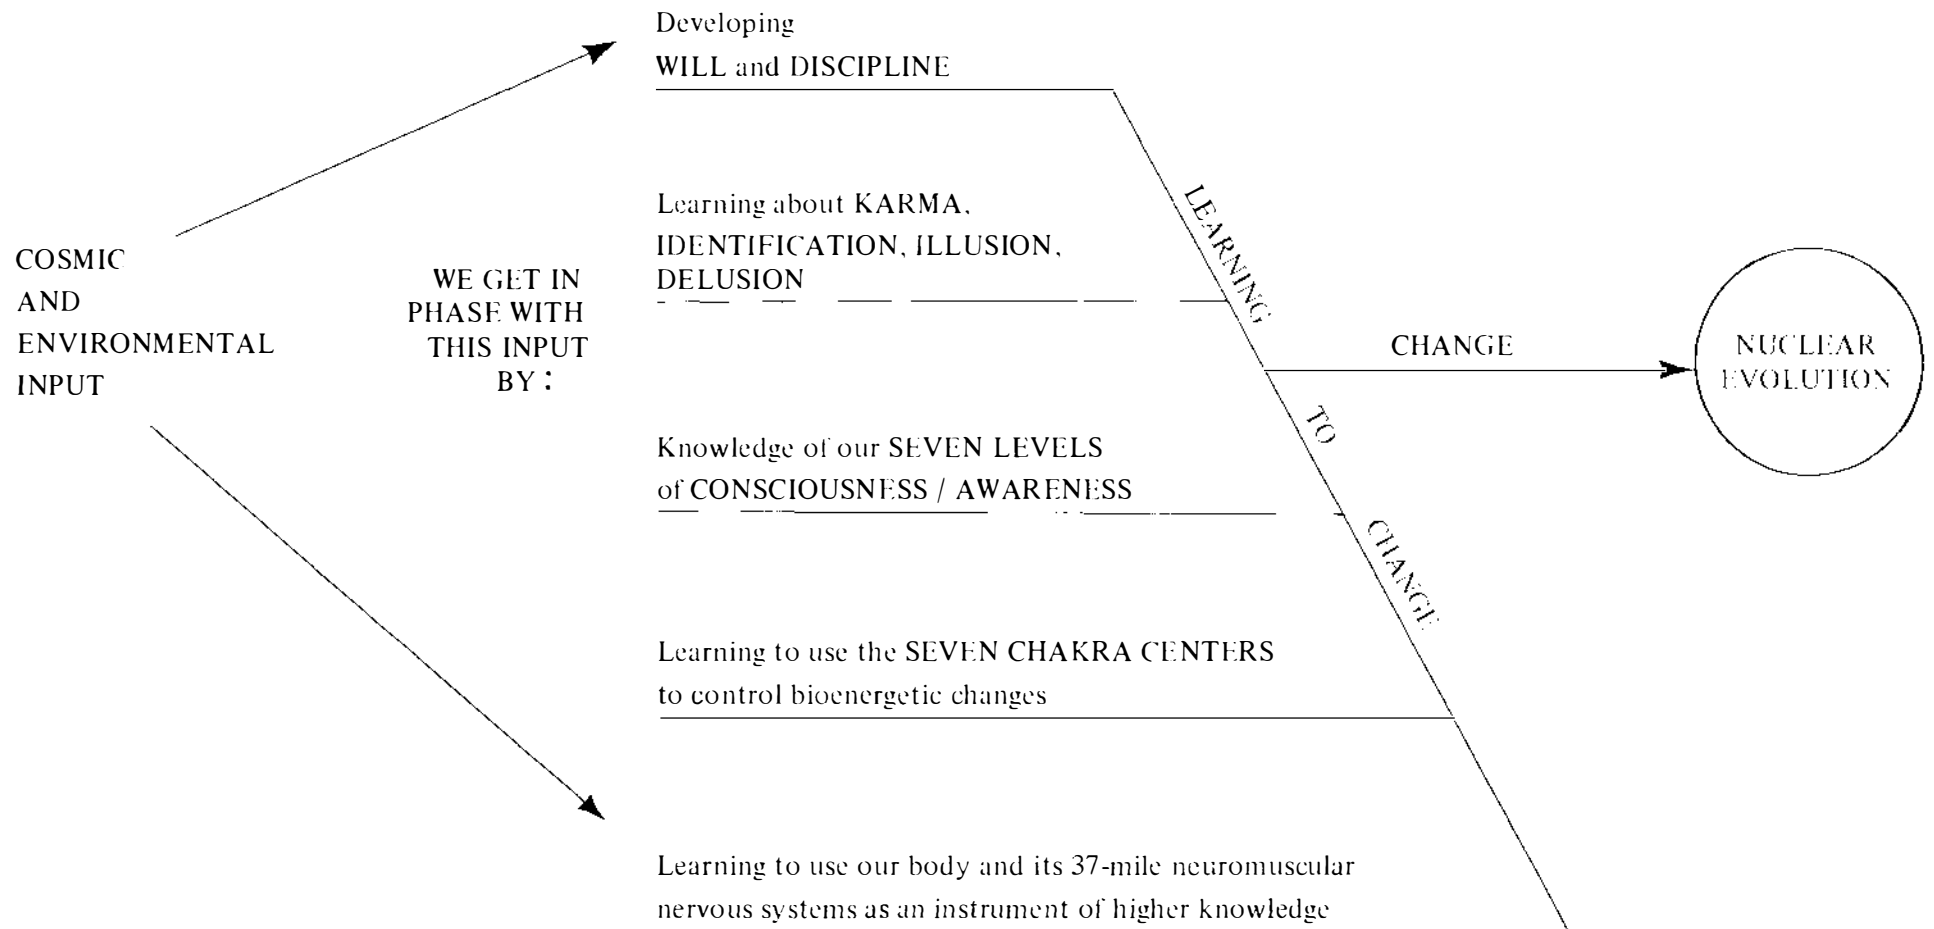

I have seen this process at work during the past three years in myself and other students at the University of the Trees. When I arrived here there was so much confusion in my mind that I could not see straight and acted entirely on impulse. Later, after working on myself through this method, other drives governed my thoughts and actions. The study of these drives or levels of consciousness is Nuclear Evolution. I have watched one of my peers arrive here with so much gross self doubt that it was destroying him. Another came who could not even talk to people for he could not remember his last sentence and when confronted blanked out in a fog. Still another student went around campus for months judging everybody else while considering herself superior to them. All these people, including myself, have made great changes in these and other areas. This change is the process of Nuclear Evolution. The more change that takes place the more aware we become of non-sensory inputs.

THE SYMBOL OF

NUCLEAR EVOLUTION

THE PROCESS OF NUCLEAR EVOLUTION – CHANGE.

NUX, LUX, FLUX, AND LUMEN

In explaining several key words, some of the basic principles are laid out here to build our understanding and practice of Nuclear Evolution. These words Lumen, Nux, Lux and Flux are related by two equations:

$$\text{LUMEN} + \text{HUMAN} = \text{LUX}$$

$$\text{NUX} + \text{LUX} = \text{FLUX}$$

Table of equivalents for the key words:

KEY WORD	MEANING OR EQUIVALENTS
LUMEN	Invisible light, Pure Spirit, Brahman, Pure Consciousness, God, Akasha, Cosmic Intelligence, Cosmos, Radiation, The Void, Absence of Light, Creative energy.
NUX	Nucleus. Inner part of the Seed, Our Inner / Higher / True Self, Blueprint of our evolution, seven-layered plan.
LUX	Visible Light or brightness which is the Psychic light experienced inside our head, the activation of human consciousness, Lumen reflected in the mind, Kasha.
FLUX	Flowing of consciousness Fusion of the Lux inside the Nux

WHAT IS LUMEN?

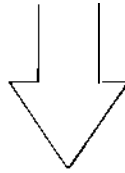

THE WORD

The Gospel according to St. John starts with “In the beginning was the Word.” This Word, then, was the first manifestation of the Intelligence that went on to create the universe. When John spoke about the Word, he was talking about a vibration which occupies the whole of space. Today we refer to this as the Aum, which you hear in your head when you are meditating or at quiet times like when you are falling asleep. It is a high pitched ringing or buzzing sound. It is made up of all of the vibrations of all the atoms of everything around you. It is called white noise by scientists. The other manifestation of “The Word” is a light vibration referred to as Lumen. As the first expression of the Cosmic Intelligence, or God, it is pure. And so it is referred to as Pure Spirit or “Pure Consciousness.” All these names are just ways of trying to understand what it was that created us.

EMPTY SPACE

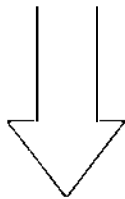

The Lumen is not light like we are used to thinking about it. If you just stare off into space, you see through the air and the sky but you can't see anything passing across the sky except clouds. Although you can see the sun, brightly shining and giving off light, you cannot see the light as it passes from the sun to the earth. To all intents and purposes, the sky looks empty. But many radiations are criss-crossing it, including cosmic rays, light rays, and magnetic lines of force. All these are invisible; they are all part of the Lumen. The Lumen has a frequency range which covers all the vibrations of the universe. Science has told us that everything is made up of atoms and molecules in a constant state of vibration. The Lumen is the glue of the universe. It interpenetrates the densest matter to the emptiest vacuum in space. And from the Lumen, that which the Lumen holds together was created. The Lumen, then, is the whole universe. The Lumen is the radiant universe manifesting in the total environment around us.

WHAT IS THE NUX?

We were created from this Lumen. Our spirit, which is the highest expression of ourself, sits inside our body guiding our evolution, in much the same way as a seed sits inside its shell and contains the blueprints for the unfoldment of the total flower. We refer to this seed as our Nux, a Latin word meaning nut or kernel. It is the true self sitting inside this Nux that we wish to evolve.

THE NUCLEUS

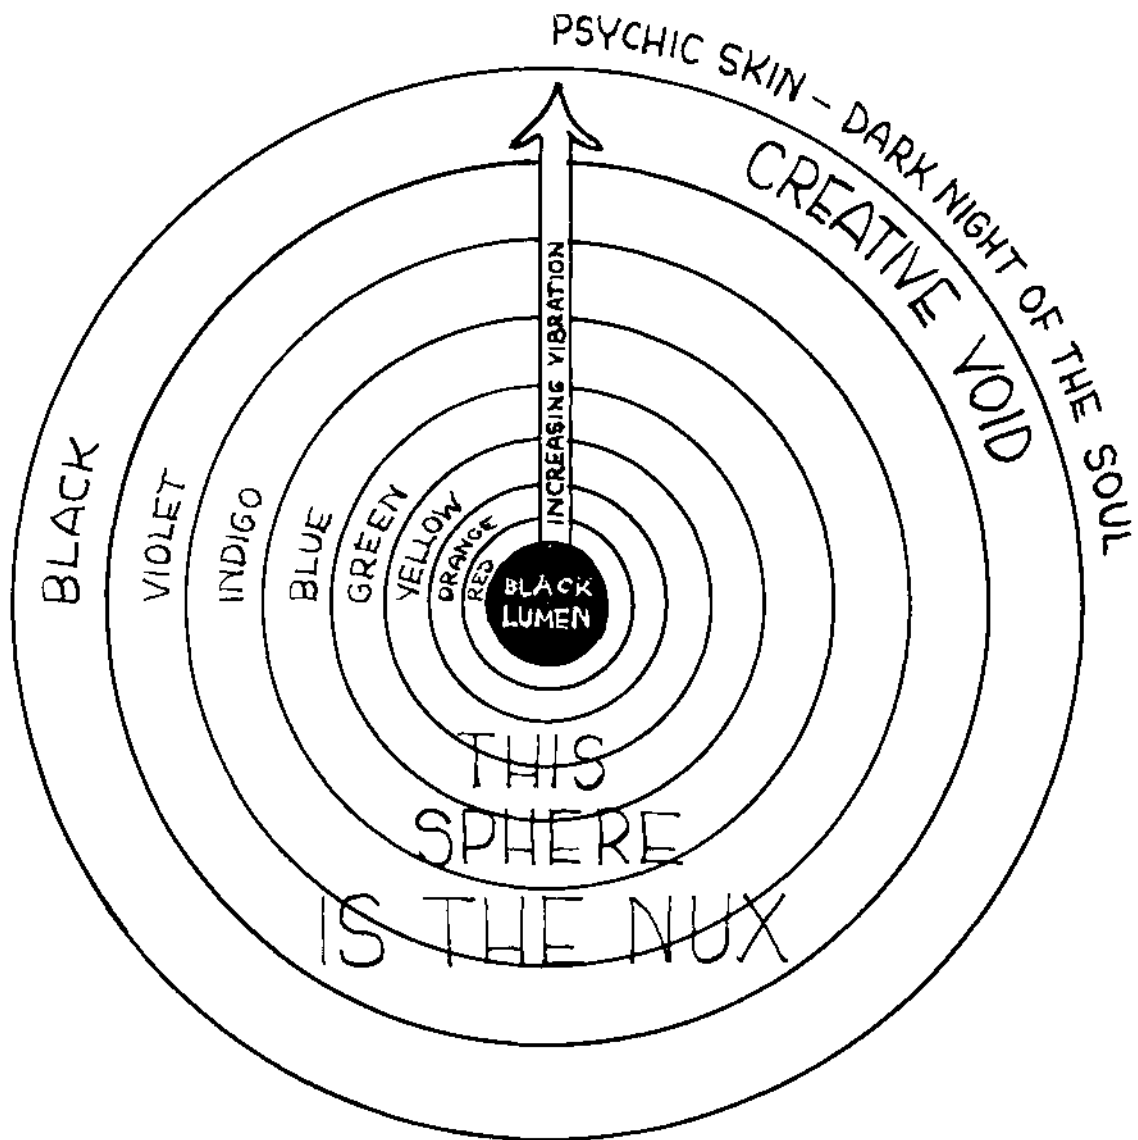

This age of science brings forth another analogy: the nucleus buried deep inside an atom. From these analogies come the title Nuclear Evolution, which is a model for life. It is our real self sitting inside a bubble of consciousness of seven layers, plus an outside personality of seven layers. This outside personality is our ego and is not our true self. These seven levels are seven intermingled homogeneous vibrations. We will not be able to experience the Nux truly until we annihilate our self-sense. Although we do experience it briefly when we have a deep significant insight into our being. In the ultimate realisation of the Nux we see that all the energies are created from within it, i.e., this Lumen is created from within. In creating a personality in our consciousness, we have spiraled out from the Nux and now we need to spiral back in.

THE CREATION OF THE NUX

FORMATION OF BLACK HOLES

When the Cosmic Intelligence had the thought “WHO AM I?” it began to absorb itself. Lumen absorbing Lumen. This caused the black centre to heat up to red hot, then orange hot, then yellow, and so on, through the spectrum to green, blue, indigo, violet, white and back to black hot again. This process formed the Nux, a black hole in space from which all consciousness emanates.

THE SEVEN UNIVERSAL DRIVES

THE SEVEN COLORS

In its quest to know itself, the Lumen created seven different drives. The first drive was to reproduce itself, to see and experience what its self was. This was the red level stage of creation. The orange level brought about a desire to experience the creation of the red drive as a whole rather than just for the self.

As the Creative Energy moved towards higher hierarchical domains, it glowed yellow with the love drive of self-expression. Instead of acting spontaneously, it developed a linear thinking mechanism, an intellect. A green glow came next. It brought about a self-measuring, self-confirmation drive. Action and movement and life force were created. This green light is the life energy in all of creation. Contentment and a blue glow came next as the Cosmos reflected on its creation. It was conceptualized as good. It was good; peace and satisfaction were created. The Nux then absorbed more Lumen and expanded to an indigo glow when the Cosmic Intelligence knew it had done everything. It did not need to manifest any more. It could experience just by direct knowing. The love of order was created in the violet light. Whatever Pure Consciousness imagined then manifested. Glowing white hot, God experienced all the love drives at once. The universe abounded in joy and bliss. Absorbing itself once more, Brahman rested in the Black Void, still and motionless. Experiencing pure nothingness. The seven different drives (red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and violet) are seven different worlds that our Inner Self has already been to, where it acquired seven different levels of consciousness.

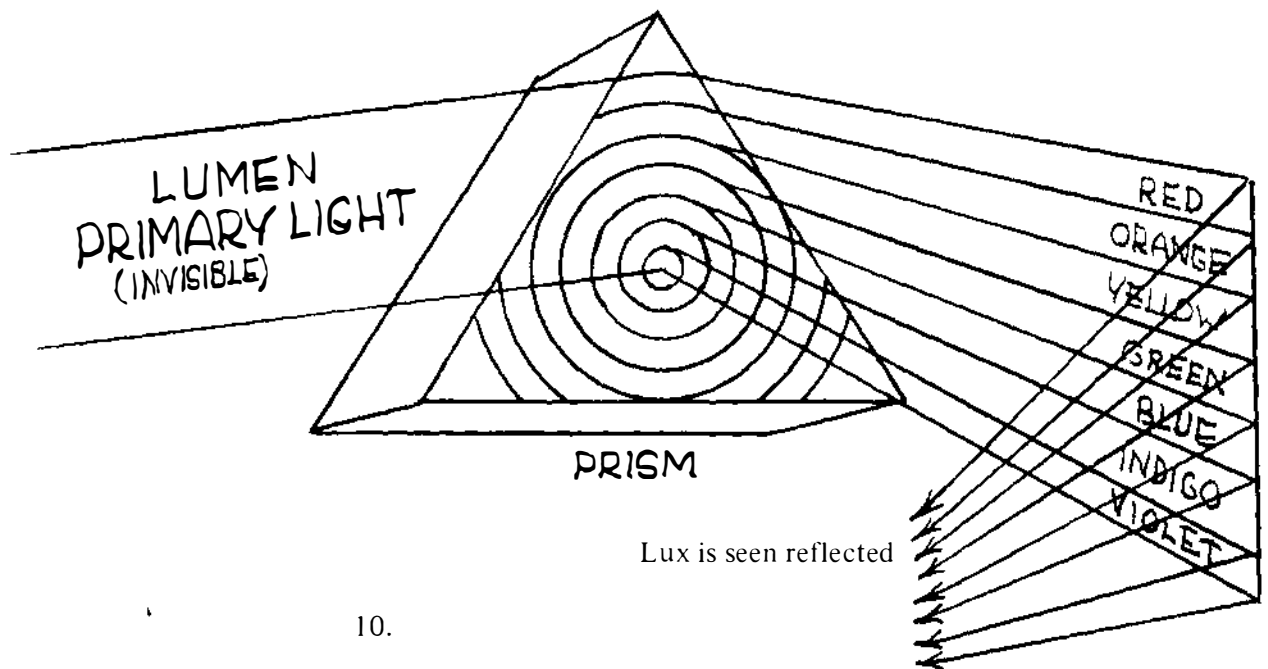

THE INNER LIGHT

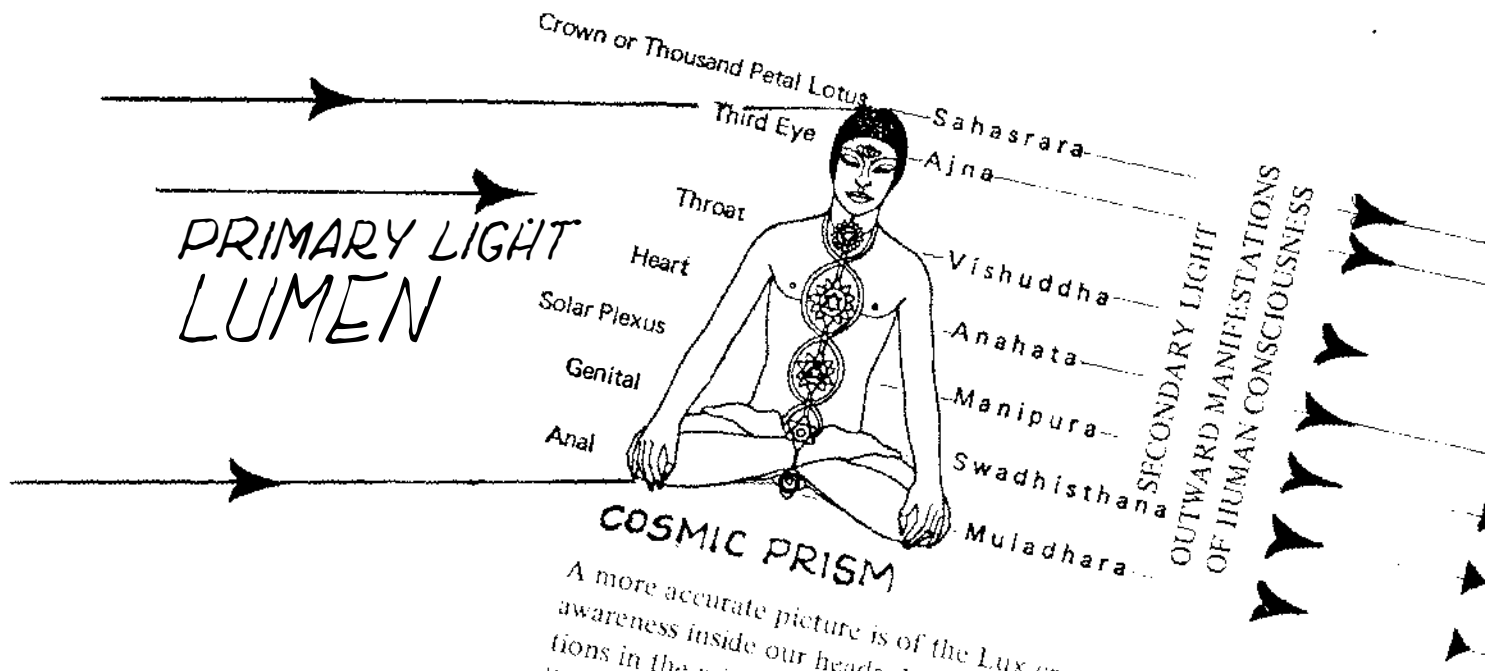

Every human being is a traveller in the totally interconnected worlds which vibrate one within the other throughout the whole of space. Only a few human beings know this because most are living in a prison house created by their minds and imagination. To roam these many worlds within our own consciousness is more miraculous than taking a trip in a flying saucer. Even if we see such a space craft or space-beings the experience must take place in our consciousness. That inner light of consciousness is God, who is all-pervading and ONE.

WHAT IS LUX? THE LIGHT OF CONSCIOUSNESS?

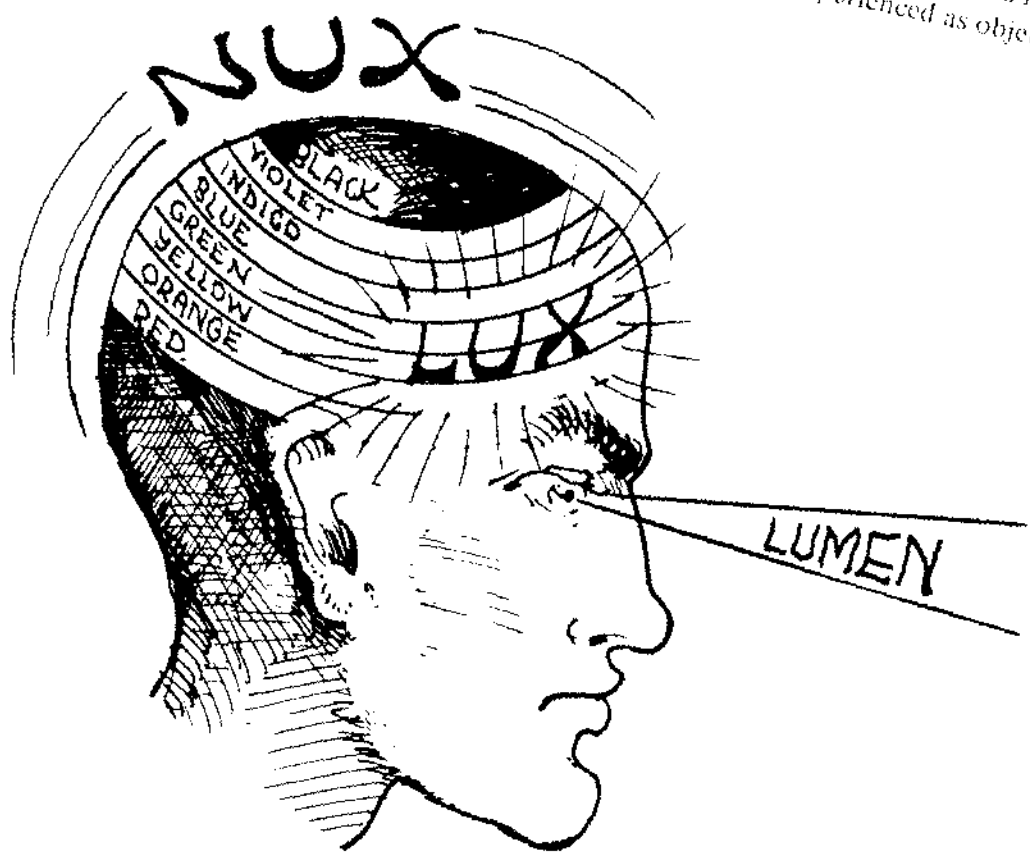

So here we have our Pure Spirit sitting inside the nucleus (Nux) being bombarded by Pure Lumen. So why aren't we enlightened? Being humans, we lay our own trips and limitations on this Pure Consciousness, and in doing so we change Lumen into Lux. When the Lumen penetrates our heads, it changes from invisible light to psychic light or internal experience which we call Lux. Lux is the activation of human consciousness. It is a psychic phenomenon that manifests the seven different levels of awareness. These seven levels of consciousness are associated with the seven colors of the rainbow. It is as if the Lumen passing through the human body splits into a spectrum as does light when it passes through a prism. The prism is the shell in which the Nux sits imprisoned inside the seven drives. These seven drives are seven different kinds of love. Nuclear Evolution is the direct perception of these seven love drives.

NEWTON'S SPLITTING OF THE SPECTRUM OF WHITE LIGHT INTO ITS SEVEN COLORS

A more accurate picture is of the Lux creating the seven levels of awareness inside our heads. Lux is a putting together of reflections in the mind, not to be confused with reflected external light from objects. All reflected light hitting our senses is restructured by the psyche before it is experienced as objects internally.

WHAT IS FLUX?

There is an unconscious fusion between the Nux and the Lux which creates Flux. Flux is the action of light on the nucleus which produces a flowing of consciousness, which unfortunately is not pure because of all the “trips” contained in the internal Lux.

Looking out of our eyes, we experience the world through seven different coloured lenses. They act as filters depending on which of them are active, pure, or screwed up, and so these lenses distort our image of situations. The earth is a physical world. Our job here is to experience and free ourselves from this world of matter at the Red Level and its desires and attachments and discover the remaining levels of consciousness.

Psychic electricity at each level / each centre / each chakra transforms the external Lumen into light we can see / Lux. We suck energy in, transform it, and re-radiate it out, governed by our receptivity and awareness.

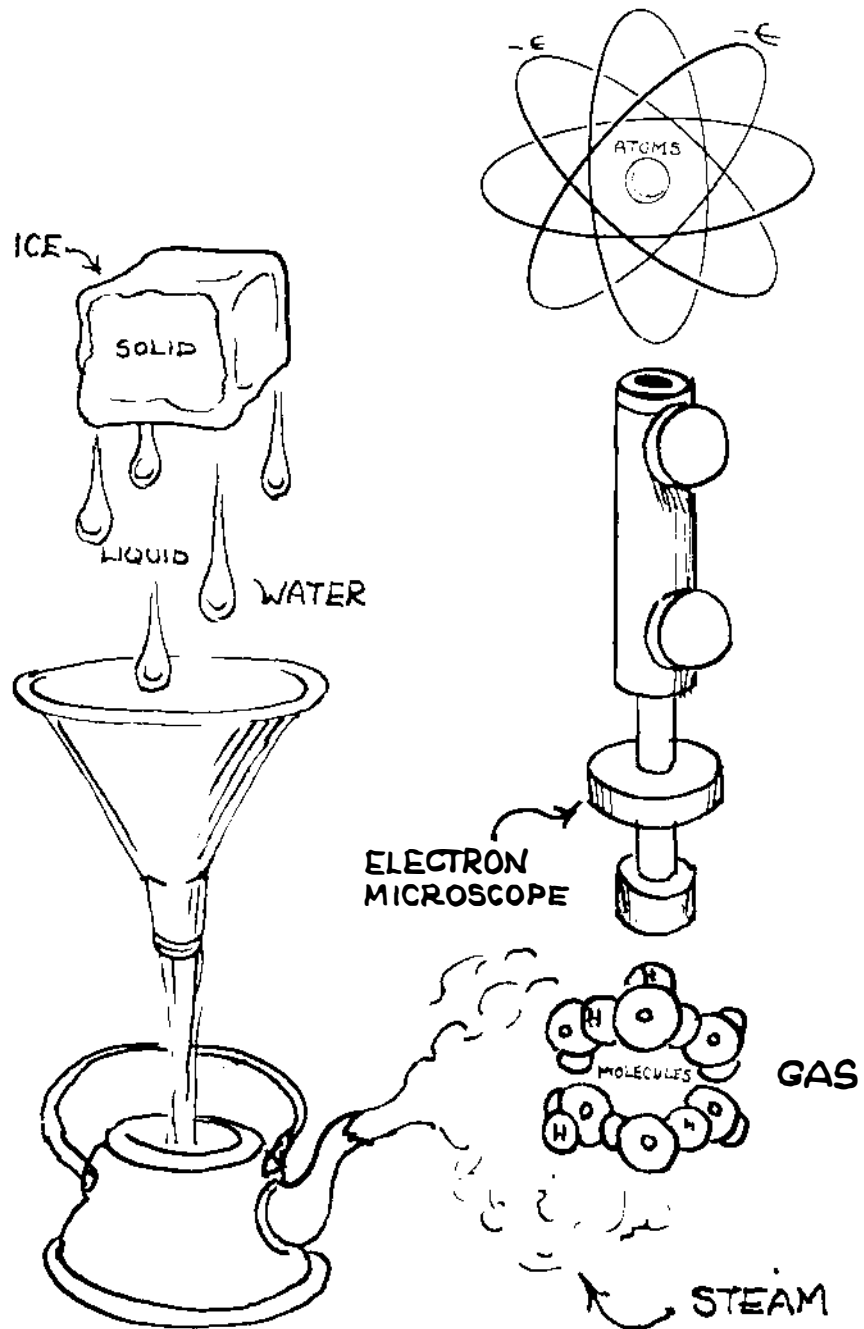

Sitting inside the Nux, your true Self cannot express itself purely since the Lumen is being changed to Lux by the interference of the different levels. The result is Flux, a flowing of consciousness, compared to the pure state of Nirvana / non-flowing.

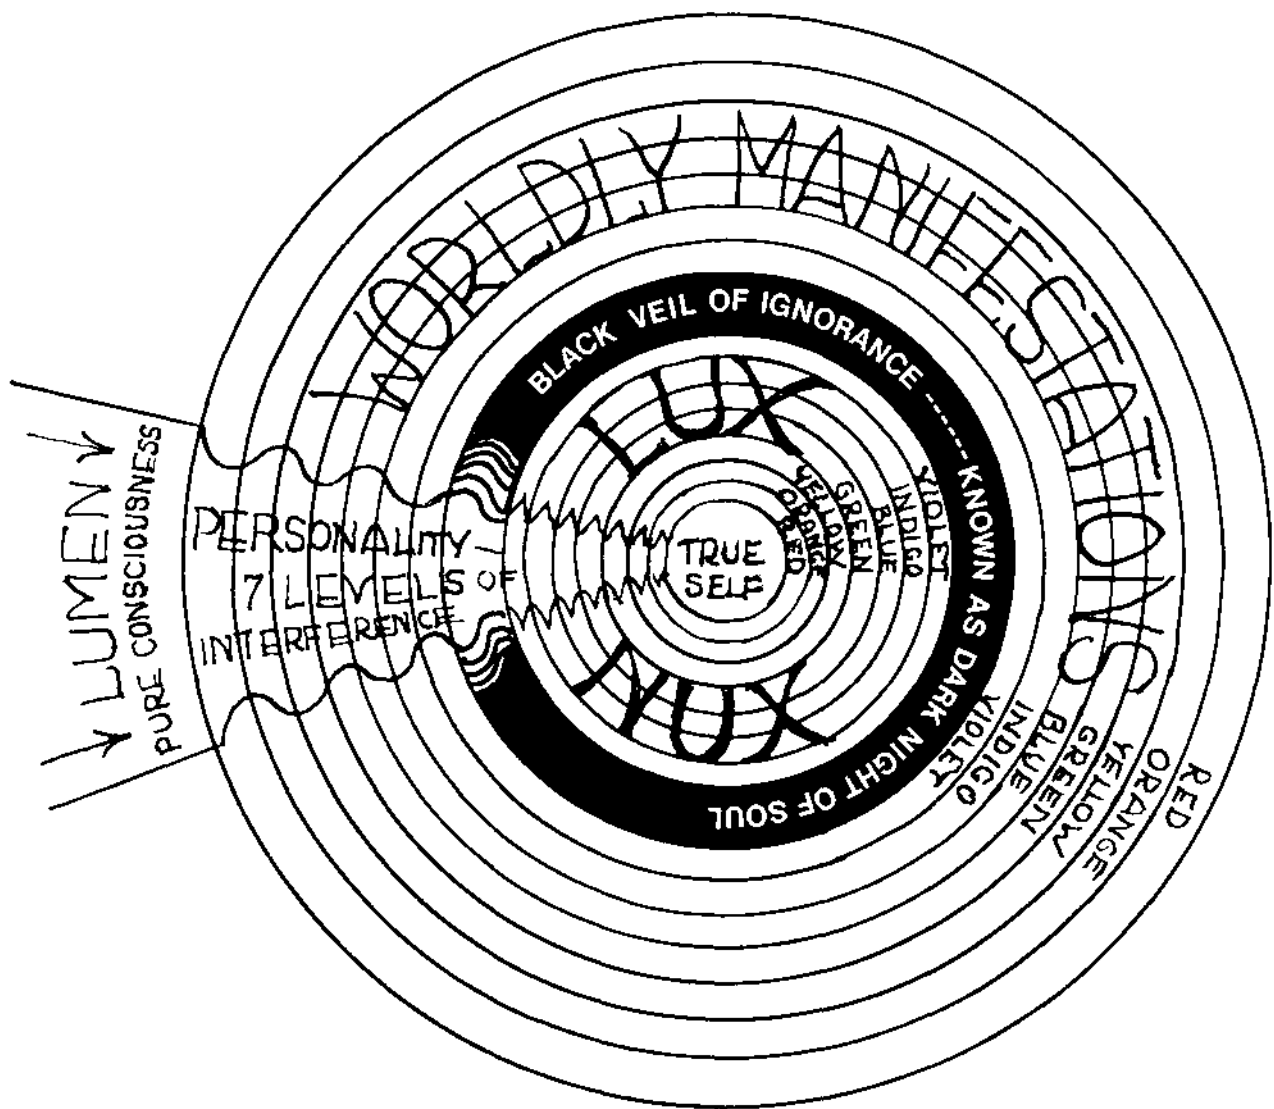

LUMEN

Lumen is, itself, Nux, Lux, Flux and everything else in the universe in much the same way as water is:

- a solid as ice
- a liquid as water
- a vapour as steam
- a gas as hydrogen and oxygen molecules
- radiation as vibrating atoms and electrons
- and is Lumen

LUMEN IS....

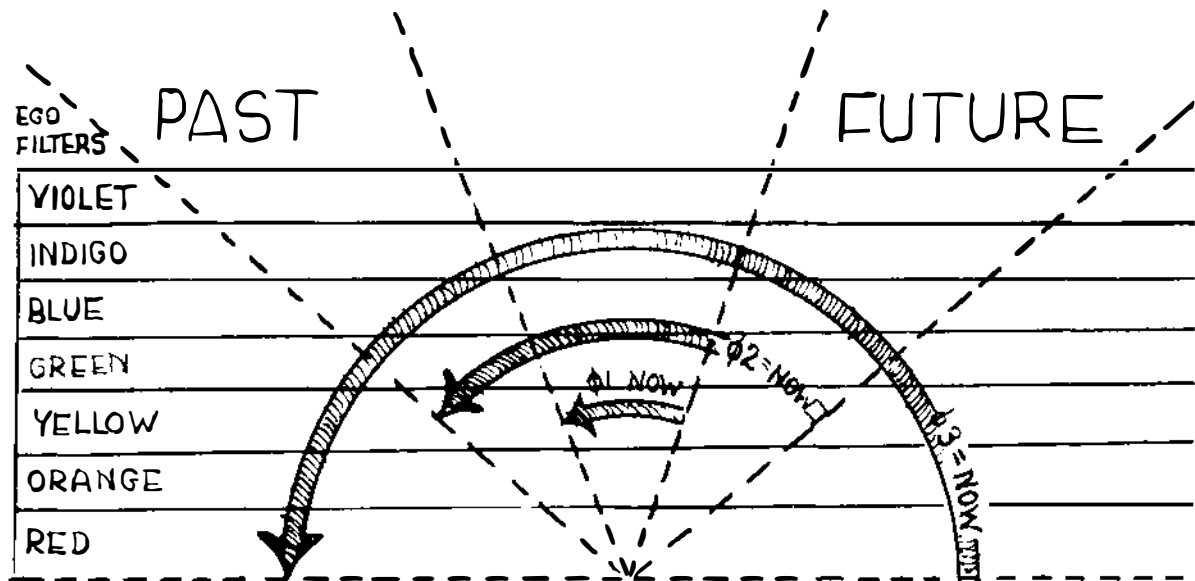

REAL CHANGE

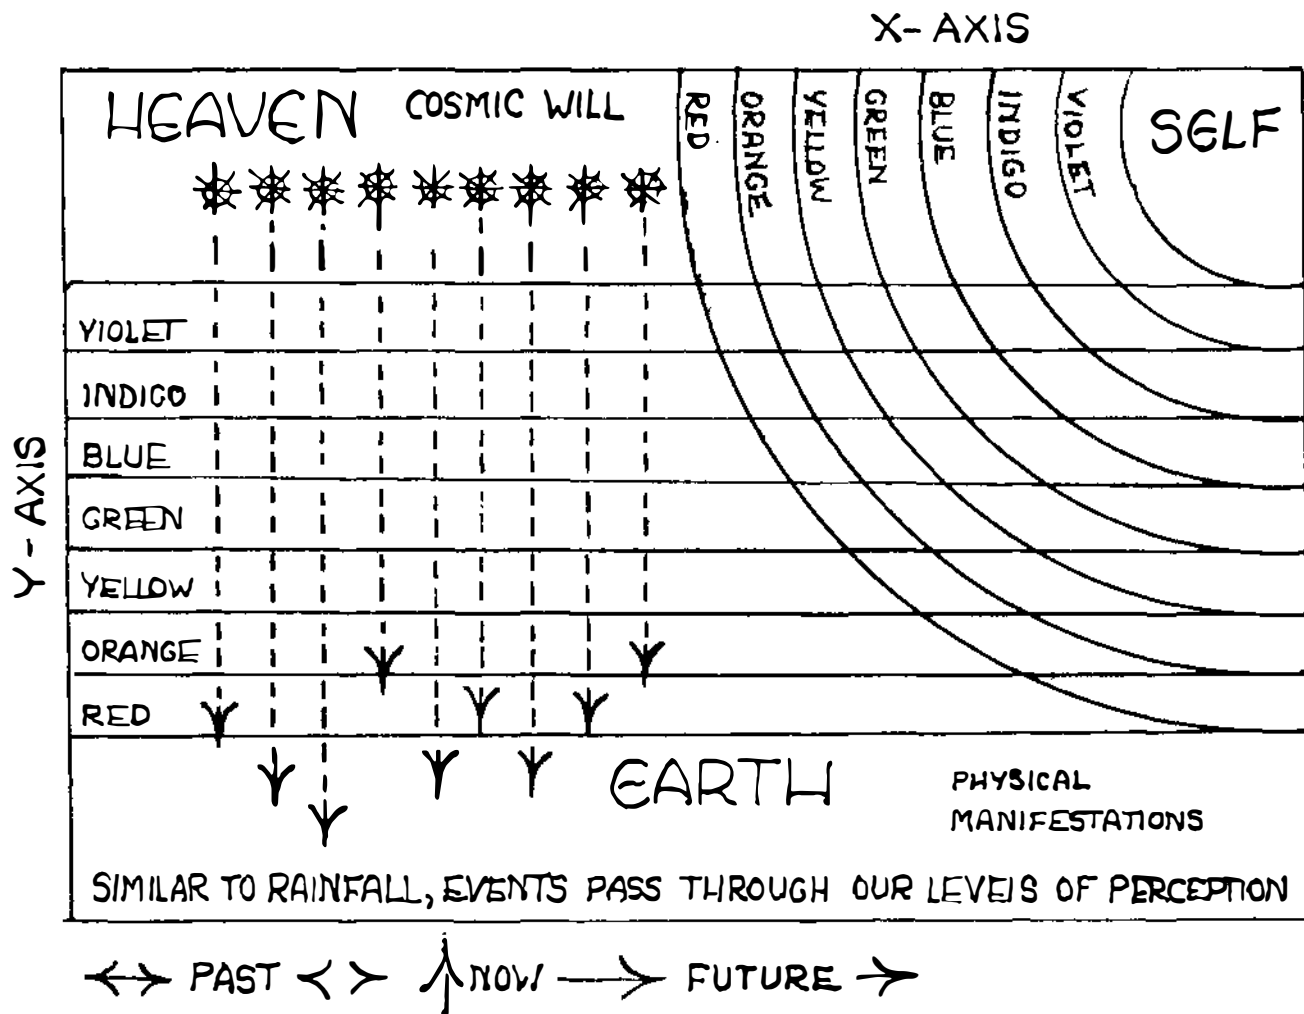

The true I is working from the inside-out. The ego I works from the outside-in. If we make a change on the inside (Nux) growth occurs and the outside automatically changes, whereas a change in the outside manifestation may be temporary, may be a suppression, may require much effort and not change the inner being. This then is the importance of meditation. We need to let go of our worldly self and learn to function from the Nux.

WIDENING OUR ANGLE OF VISION

INCREASING AWARENESS

Our job is to widen our angle of vision and to increase our awareness of how we function on these different levels. As our angle increases from ϕ_0 to ϕ_1 to ϕ_2 we can see more and more into the past including our past Karma from previous incarnations, and we can see into the future to the results of our actions. When our vision becomes a flat line (ϕ_3) the time slot of our Now includes the total Past and the FUTURE. In this state we experience no limitations at the physical level. Our filters are no longer blocking the Cosmic program. We then have 180° vision and we can go on to 360° vision. A cross-section of this circular vision would process events like this:

The y-axis of the seven colors represents the levels of personality structure and our awareness thresholds.

So we now know the meaning of Christ's words "THY WILL BE DONE ON EARTH AS IT IS IN HEAVEN." When we reach this state, we surrender as a channel of the Supreme Will. We let the Cosmic plan unfold inside us freely.

Matthew 6:10, Luke 11:2*

WHAT ARE THESE SEVEN LEVELS OF CONSCIOUSNESS?

RED / PHYSICAL LEVEL

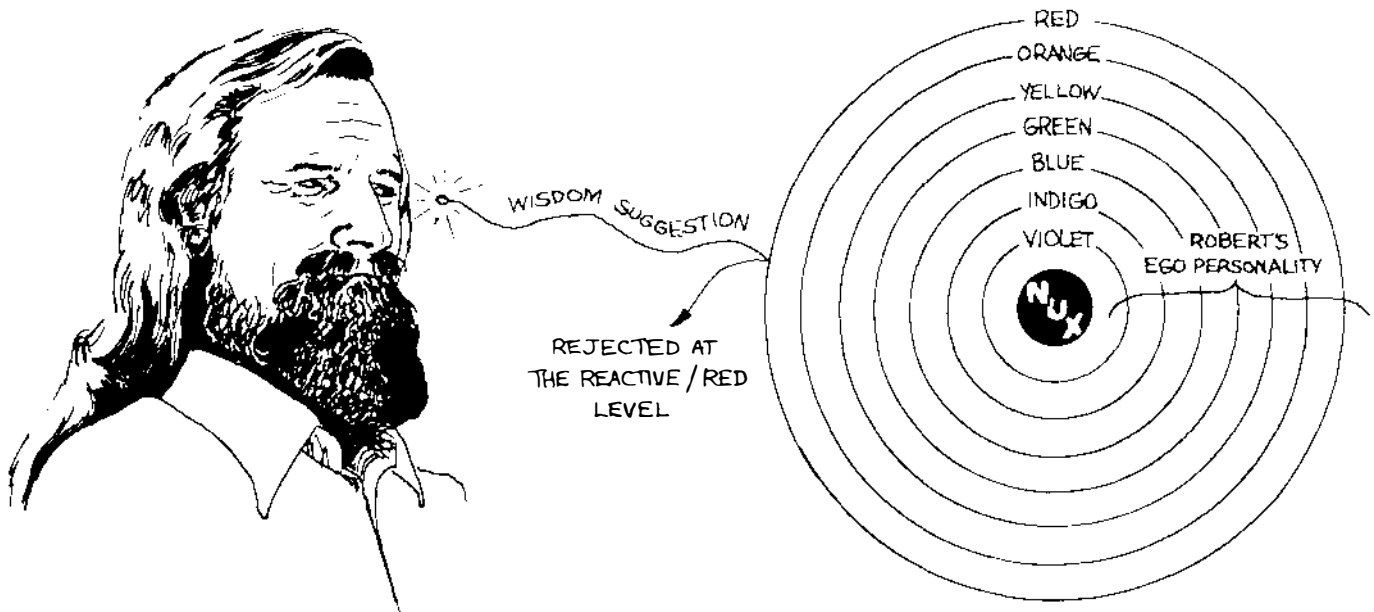

Now we need to know more about these seven levels of awareness / consciousness so we can see how they act as filters and do not allow our soul / Nux to express itself purely. Before incarnating on this planet while we existed in other worlds, we started to develop the orange through violet levels, and now we have incarnated in a physical body to experience and become master of the red level. This level has to do with our outer skin, our sense of touch, taste, smell, sight and hearing. They are for most of us the main modes of communication. Our job is to realize this level is but one seventh of the total range of our communications and that other people / our wife / husband / friends / children are trying to communicate to us through other levels. When we do recognize this, together with the levels we ourselves operate from, our life becomes so much more meaningful. This increased awareness brings a great joy into our lives. Before giving some examples to see the impact of this on our lives in simple situations, here is an outline of each of the seven levels and the way in which we experience each of them in time.

The red level person wants to do everything now. He reacts to stimuli from the Now. The advantage is that he can respond quickly to a problem. The disadvantages are that in the rapid reaction he forgets to plan. He is quick to anger and therefore cannot listen to others. It is impossible to take-in what another person is saying while you are angry.

THE NEGATIVE RED LEVEL AT WORK

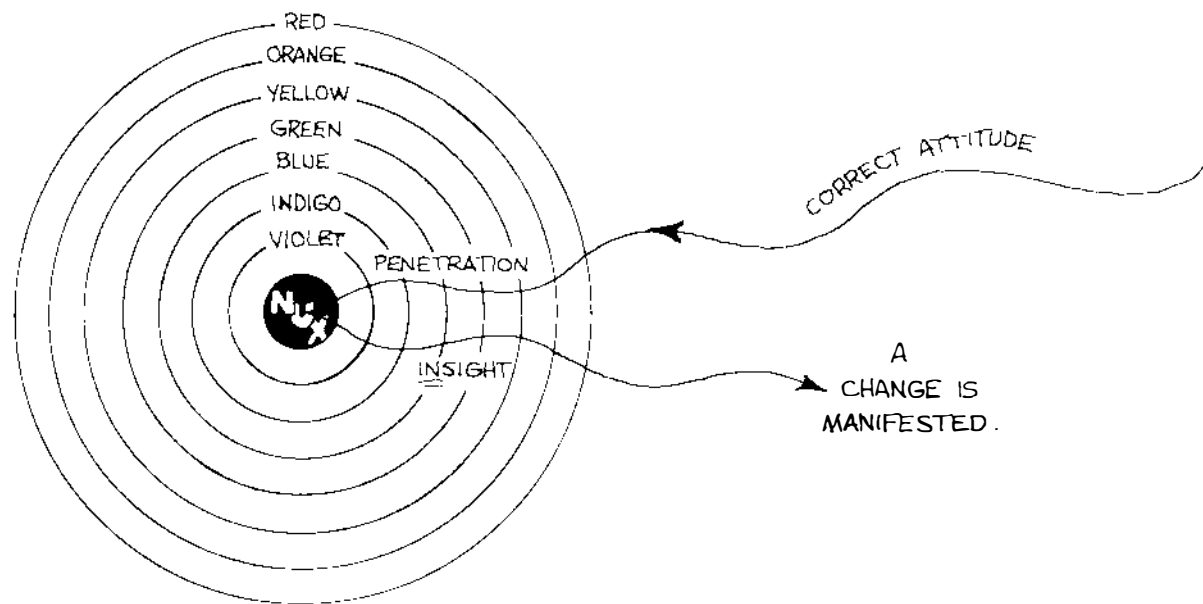

Since I operate on the physical level, one of the problems I have is that I hear externally the words a person is saying without hearing them internally. For two years Christopher has been saying I do not listen to people. It took that long for me to realize what he meant. When people talk to me, in a critical manner, my ego reacts and their meaning is quickly rejected.

An example of this happened when I was giving a talk to a group of my peers at the University of the Trees. During the preceeding week I had invested a great deal of work and ego into preparing my presentation. Soon after I had started talking Christopher made come comments which were meant to help me. I reacted strongly to the remarks. I dug my heels in and continued. Rapidly the lecture disintegrated and became a nightmare for me. This situation was caused by my investment in my self-image, as a lecturer / teacher, not allowing any penetration of Christopher's suggestions.

Later, while talking to his wife Norah by phone, I did have a momentary insight into the correct attitude, but my ego was still reacting so strongly that I shut it out.

The truth of the situation, including my disquieting behaviour, did not dawn on me until I had stopped reacting, and, in doing so, allowed good sense to penetrate into my inner world. When we have an insight – IN SIGHT – we experience the Nux. So for a time I was able to forget my small self and tune into the higher self and make a change.

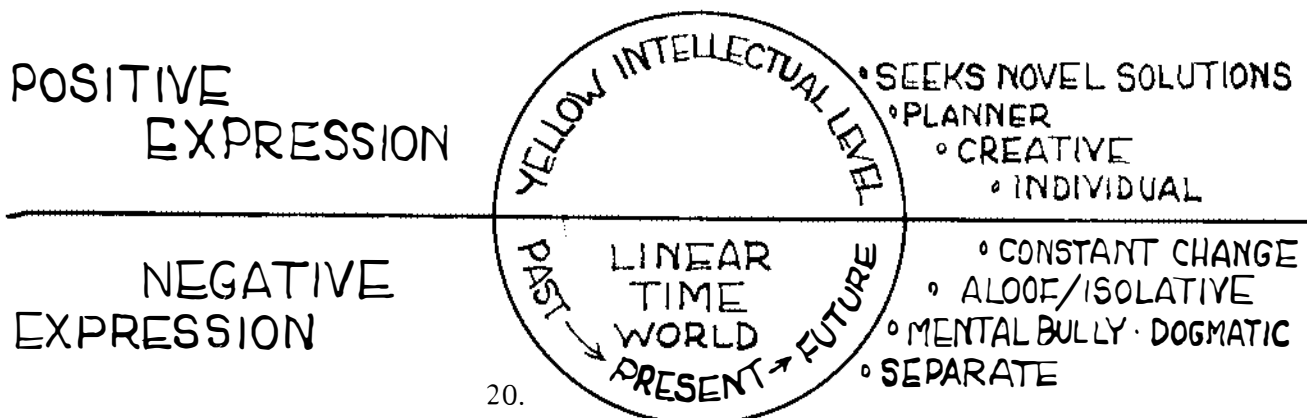

ORANGE / SOCIAL LEVEL

This level tells us that we are a member of a particular species and different from others. This drive operates from the attachment of being a member of the human race to being a member in a particular organization. This orange level reflects a sensation type (Red) whose time world is now orientated to the future and contact with others. He does things now for their future effect. Like other animals, he becomes a social animal and begins to love his fellow man. This love of contact is in every species but very strong in mankind.

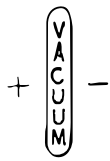

YELLOW / INTELLECTUAL LEVEL

When we were born we had no ego. The universe was ours. We were at one with everything. Later, when our feeding bottle or mother's breast did not appear out of nowhere immediately when we wanted them a sense of separation developed. We realized we were separate from our love-object. This was our first experience of ego. This separation created space, and we began to look on ourselves as an individual separate I. Thus, we acquired our Yellow / Intellectual level of awareness. In a physical body we can experience ourselves and others. To do this we need a sense of separation. The error we made was in believing our inner worlds are separate from another's.

GREEN / SECURITY LEVEL

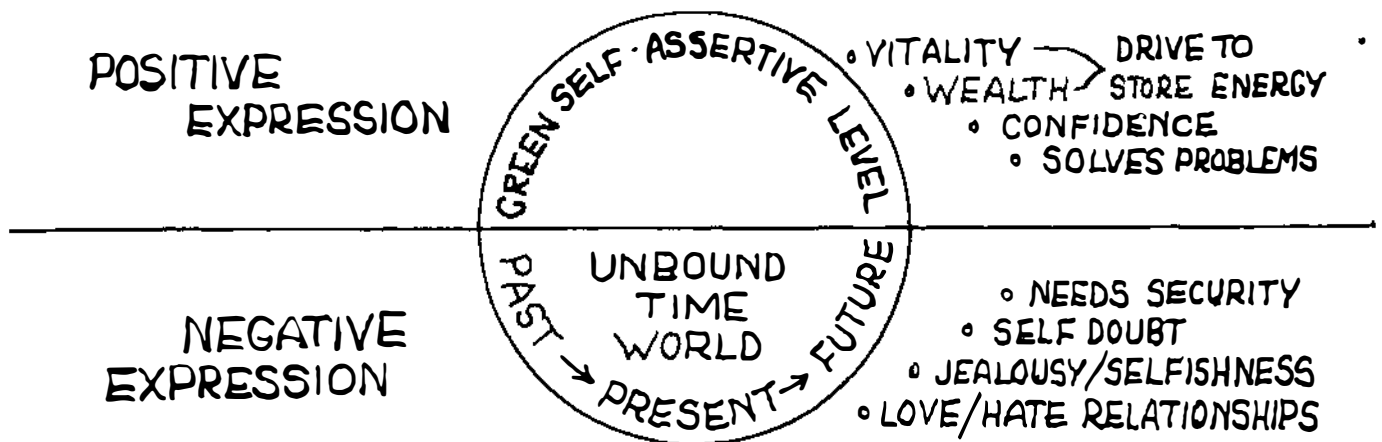

At three months old we became aware of our personality, and in doing so acquired some of the other levels of consciousness. To ease the ego-separation from our love-objects, possession was born. The desire to possess that which the yellow level has shown us we are separate from gives rise to the green level. We use other humans to suck on to ease our ego-separation. In doing so we are reaching out for their life force – for their light.

This desire operates throughout nature. Plants crave light. Watch their flowers and leaves orientate themselves in the direction of the sun and follow it as it crosses the sky. All of nature's products are made out of hydrogen and carbon. These hydrocarbons are produced by the actions of light on water in a process called photosynthesis. In our bodies, our cells feed on light, exhibiting a desire to store up energy in the transistor-like mitochondrion.

MITOCHONDRION

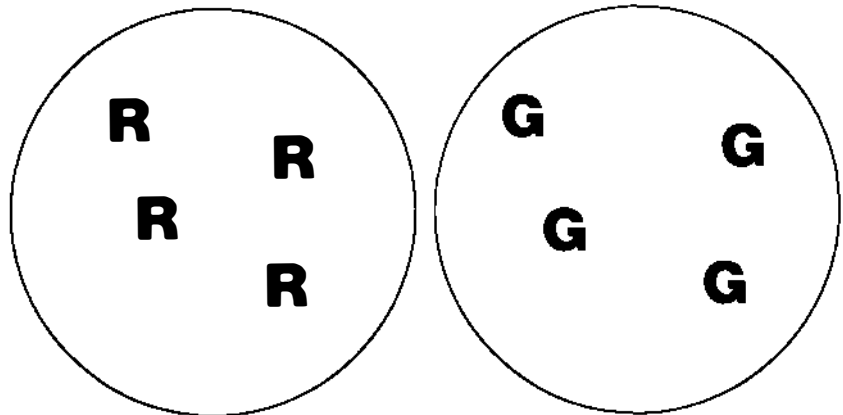

Part of the process of Nuclear Evolution is to consciously learn how to operate the mitochondrion to draw the free electrons into our bodies from the earth's static field. Until now, only a few enlightened men have possessed this ability to attune their molecules and cells to the select wavelengths from the Lumen that would radiate their bodies in an excited state. A state of grace / enlightenment / Nuclear Evolution, the words do not matter. Direct experience is the only true validator, and the only knowledge worth knowing.

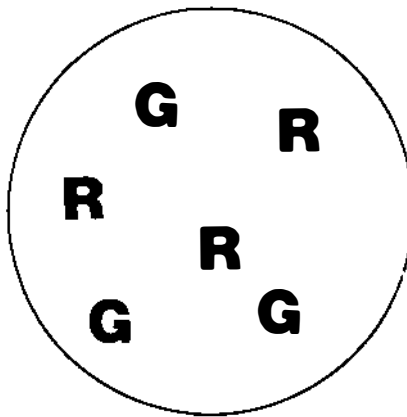

This desire operates at all the other levels of consciousness. On the red / physical level the desire for sex, food, and social contact can never be fulfilling. One needs all of the seven levels for real satisfaction. This desire for light then is in everything. At this point it is easy to see desire operating throughout the seven levels. So although we diagrammatically show them as being shells, one inside the other, a better picture is to look at them as interpenetrating worlds.

RED / PHYSICAL

GREEN / POSSESSIVE

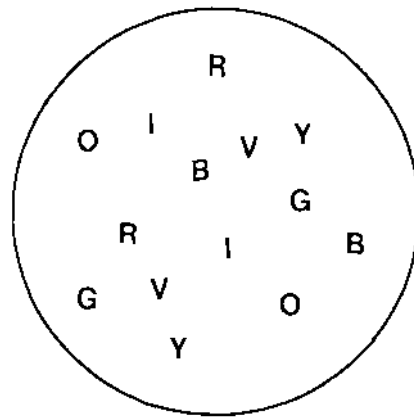

The worlds of a person operating solely on one level of awareness.

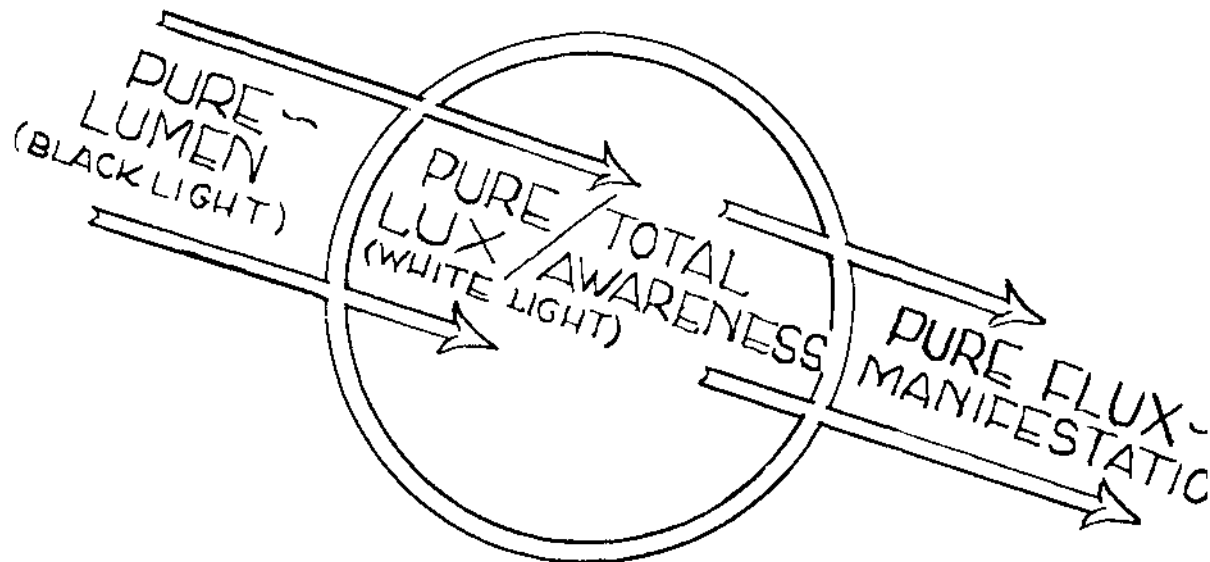

RED / PHYSICAL AND
GREEN / POSSESSIVE

The world of a person operating on both the red and green levels.

All worlds active Red through Violet:

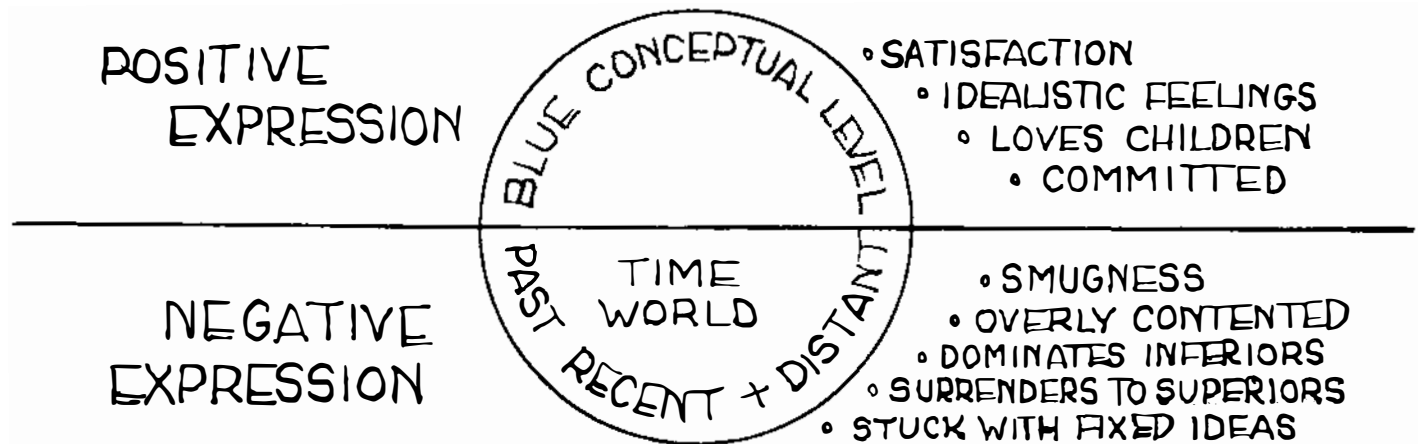

This mixture of seven colors / levels gives white light which is pure Lux / total awareness / enlightenment. Very few people reach this stage of enlightenment as Christ did. One way to see how enlightened a person is would be to ask yourself whether he is a master of all seven levels of consciousness as exhibited by the manifestation of the quality of his life.

The green level type can experience time in the past, present or the future depending on each situation and its threat to his security. I exhibit negative green when I think of losing the girl I am growing with to another unknown man sometime in the future. When a man operating on this level is "dropped" by his girlfriend he is quite likely to relive pleasant situations and memories from the past to help ease his pain of separation. He can also switch into the future, where he can construct a joyful scene.

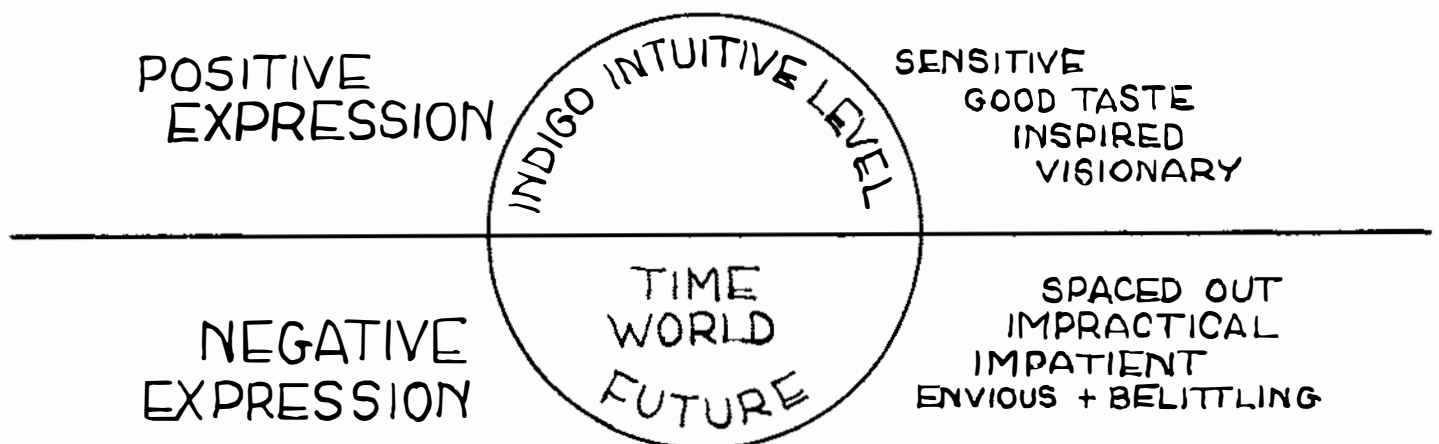

BLUE / CONCEPTUAL LEVEL

The blue person lives mainly in the past time world. He relates all of his actions now to past events. His great love is for mental constructs. Our mind is a denser part of spirit and is, in fact, a material part of our being. The mind forms pictures, models, ideas and invests them with consciousness, and then thinks they are real.

INDIGO / INTUITION LEVEL

If you are reading the words of this book as the only means of communication you are not using your intuitive faculty which will tell you much more than is written. If the intuitive level is operating in you, you will realize that you have been introduced to or studied this work somewhere before. You will know how to fill in the spaces, without knowing how you know. This universe is beyond the mind. Your time world is the future. You know you have been there before. You find difficulty in manifesting now since you are always thinking about tomorrow, next week or next year. When I was operating on this level, I had formed a company whose profit was negligible and yet I was concerned about blocking an imaginary takeover bid sometime in the future, if and when we were successful.

VIOLET / IMAGINARY LEVEL

Most of what you are reading you are imagining in some way to enable you to obtain a better picture. The quality of your life is governed by this level. What you imagine your life will be is what you get. You experience time in your imagination and can distort it to suit your mood.

THE SEVEN LEVELS AS FILTERS

The negative expressions of these seven levels distorts our view of the world. Our soul looks through these cloudy windows and cannot see true reality. After many years of married life, a spouse can realize they do not know their partner. This is because for all these years they have been communicating on different levels, while assuming they were talking the same language. But this was not true for, although the words used were English, the meanings the words conveyed came from different worlds. Most of us are familiar with this problem at some time in our lives.

RED $\Rightarrow$ YELLOW AND INDIGO NON-COMMUNICATION

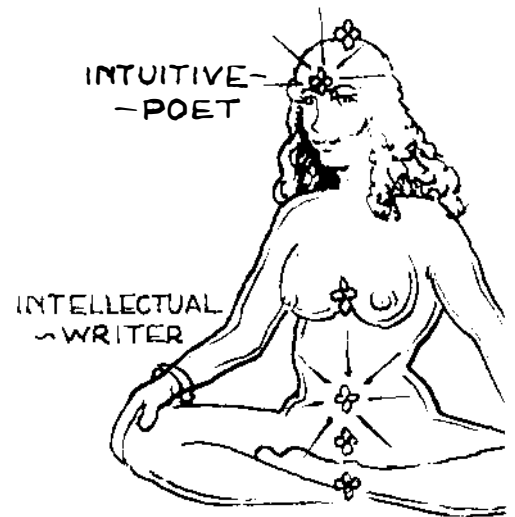

VIOLET

RED

A person operating on the red / physical level can just about understand someone on the orange / social level, but cannot communicate with people on the yellow, green, blue, indigo, and violet levels.

A typical example of poor communication between the red and green levels is when one person is saying "I love you" and the other is saying "I love you". In both cases the words are the same but the meanings are different. The green level person is saying, "see my open heart, care for me, get to know me, I need the security of being with someone." The red level person's message is brief: "I want to get laid."

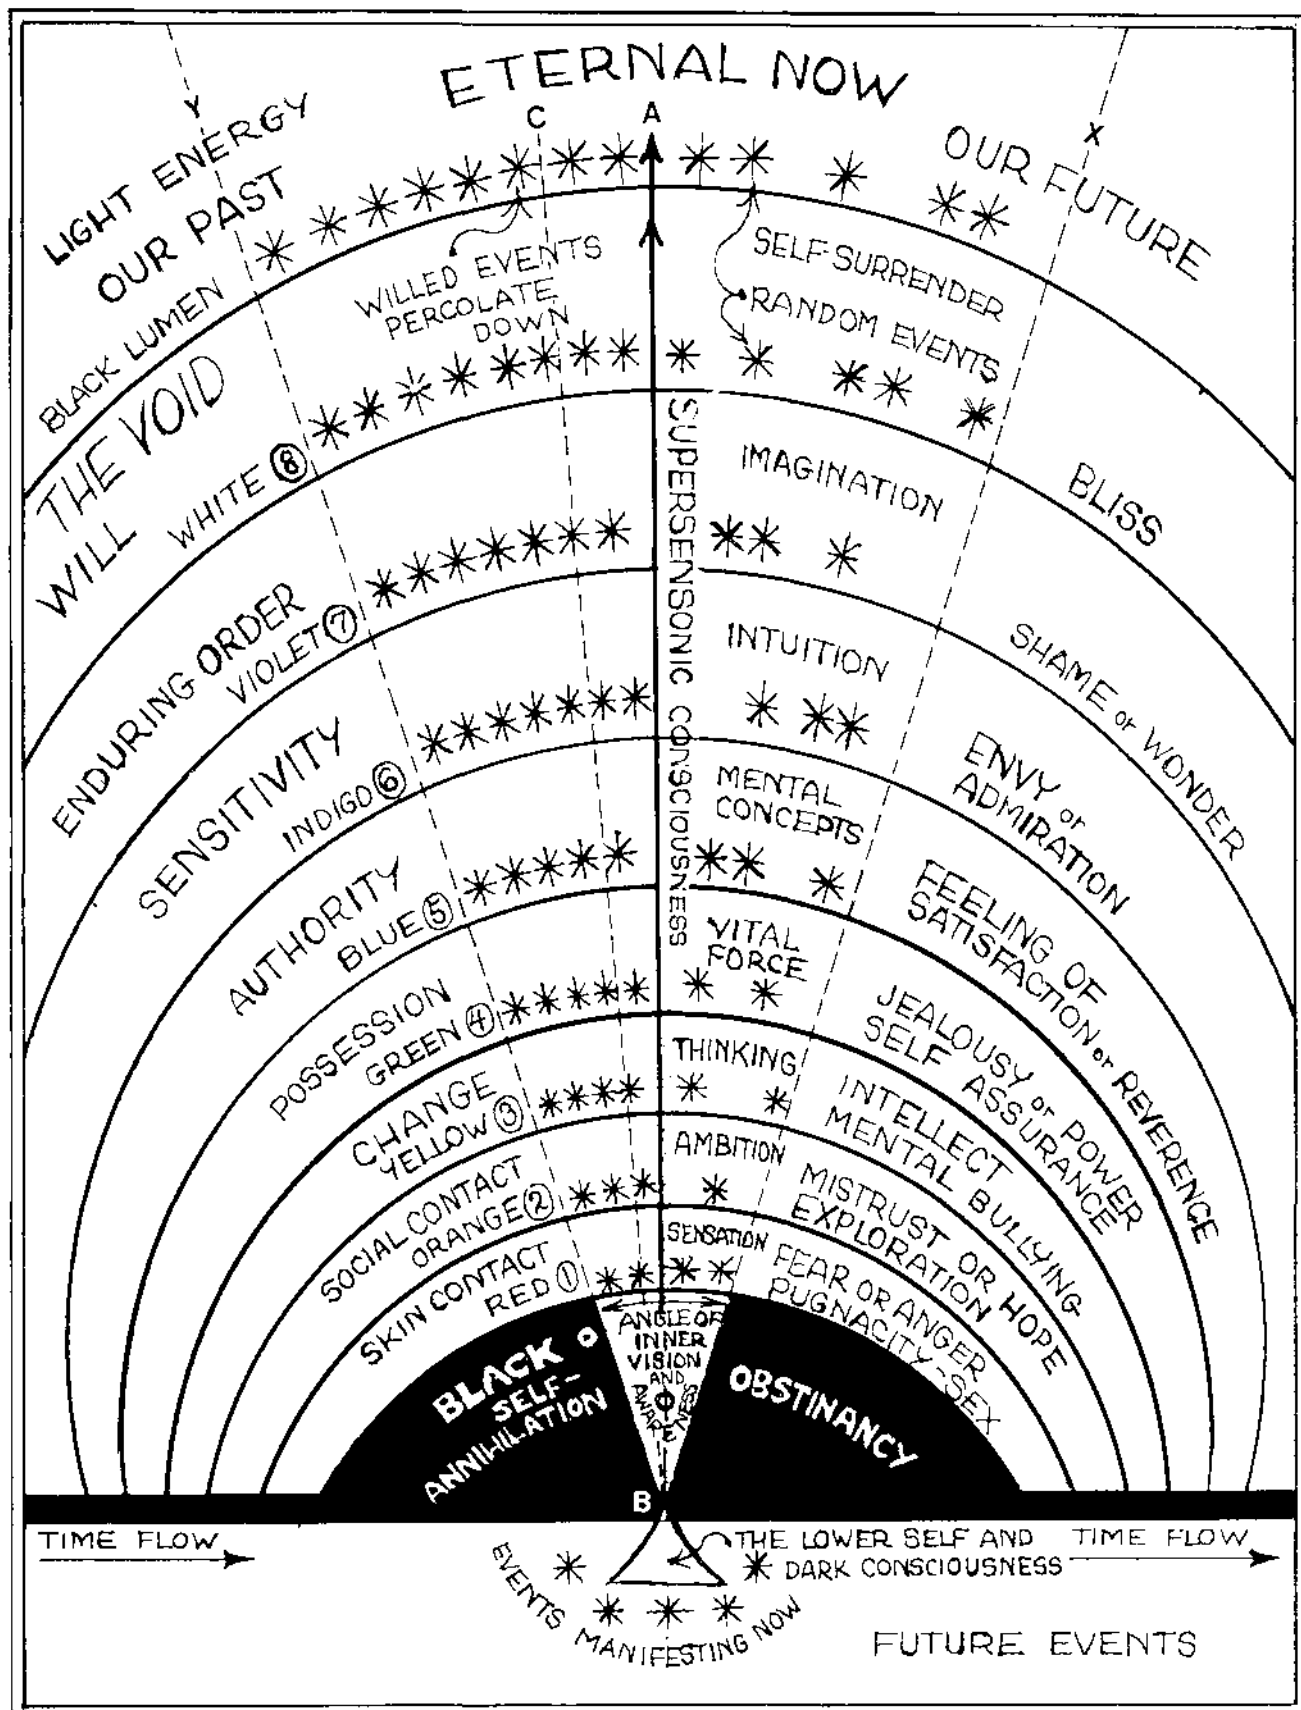

These miscommunications are happening daily between parents and children, employers and employees, in fact in every situation. For until we become aware of these different levels we can barely understand the person on the level above ours.

THE EIGHTH DOMAIN

Beings who have conquered the seven levels find themselves in a timeless state. This is the eighth domain. It is being everywhere and everything at once. In this state there is nowhere, no space, no time, just oneness. Whatever a being in this state imagines or puts into his consciousness becomes a reality. They have annihilated their personalities and have become the one Nux of the universe. For us to do this we must completely let go of our self-sense as we know it. We must surrender our self to the Cosmic Self. These beings having surrendered are at one with the Cosmic Will in a state which is called heaven. They channel the Cosmic Will randomly to us to manifest on earth, in an identically random manner. But this does not happen for us because we have the seven filters in the way. These separate us from the One, by forming our ego, that puts its own trip before the Cosmic one.

HOW DOES OUR NUCLEUS SEE THE COSMIC WILL?

As humans the idea (blue level) of space leads to a concept (blue level) of time for our bodies to cross space. We then go on to assume that our inner world / Nux is also time-bound. It is this belief that our nucleus is time-bound that the cosmic beings use to see that the Cosmic Will or the spirit is manifested by us. Before saying how this is accomplished, here is a three sentence digression to show that our Nux is not time-bound. Although it takes you time to travel in your body to the local store, you can use some of the other levels of awareness to travel there instantaneously / outside time. For example, your imagination or intuition can flash you there in the future. Your blue or green levels can take you to the store in the past immediately. In truth your nucleus is not time-bound. The following cross-section through the Nux shows how the Cosmic Will is manifested.

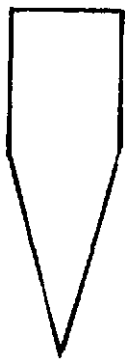

PURE CONSCIOUSNESS MADE MANIFEST

The beings living outside time in an eternal NOW use our concept of time by imagining our NOW in our FUTURE. Any event which is being programmed for our physical world must go through the seven levels to reach the red / physical level, and be manifested.

In eternal time it does not matter when things happen. The beings who live here are not attached to when things take place. They are not attached to getting the world enlightened. This is being in a state of grace. So these entities drop events randomly into our future. These events are the Cosmic Will / Spirit, for these beings are at one with God. The random events get into our consciousness by our imagination catching some of these and passing them down through the seven levels to our red level / our now, where we manifest them. If our angle of vision is so narrow that we can only pull two events into our imagination (ABC on diagram), then by the time they filter down to our manifesting sensory levels there will be nothing to manifest. So this person lives in the imagination and accomplishes hardly anything. If we widen our angle of awareness we see a lot more potentials in the universe (XBY).

But our awareness is still limited, and so we are only able to receive a few events at the imagination level which are then filtered through our other levels of consciousness and result in only one event happening at a time, at the red / physical level, and then the next event and then the next event, etc. This gives an appearance of time flow. Whereas in our imagination we can really have many events happening at once.

ZERO ANGLE OF AWARENESS

WHAT I SAW
(Fig. A)

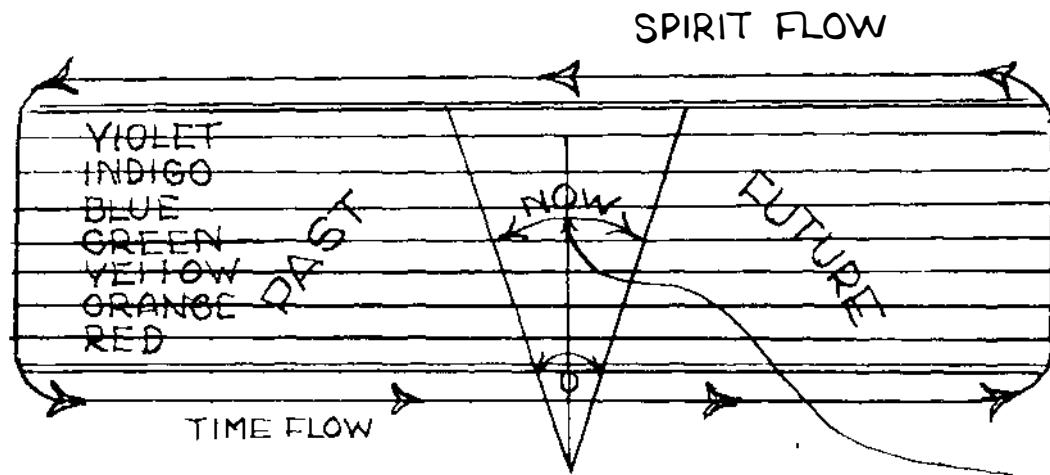

REALITY

The example given earlier when describing the red / physical level of my reacting after being confronted by Christopher Hills while I was presenting a talk to our group is an example of a zero angle of awareness. I completely closed my vision to the exclusion of any point of view other than my own; even though I was totally wrong and could not see my own reactivity. Although this is an extreme case, there are many people who exist in this state constantly. These people are taught by negative feedback from the Cosmos in terms of many unhappy events in their lives. Here is where the concept of a devil arose. We could negatively say the devil is their teacher because painful situations hurt.

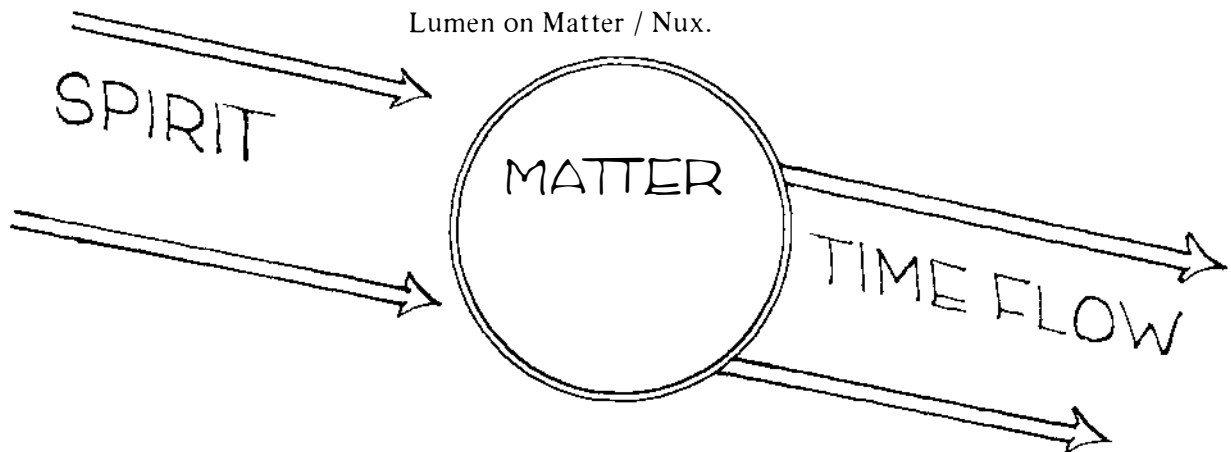

An example of my awareness being slightly open, but not open enough to see the situation correctly was in looking at a pendulum with curved sides and seeing it as having angular sides as in fig. (A). It was not until I was told I had not seen the pendulum that I took a good look and saw the difference in the shape.

HOW DO WE EXPERIENCE TIME?

WE CAN ONLY EXPERIENCE
EVENTS IN HERE

As the events pass through the seven levels they become time-bound. Time flows from the past through our imagination to the present, and into the future on the physical level. The beings in the eighth domain who have transcended worldly life send spirit flowing in the opposite direction to annihilate time. Here we must recall that the flow of time / Flux is only the action of Spirit / Lumen on Matter / Nux.

TIME / SPIRIT FLOW

What we are experiencing “now” was programmed by cosmic beings in our past. For example, Christ sent his life energies out into the universe by having himself crucified. These energies are driving our evolution forward. Our “past” is the “future” of these beings. The only way we can transcend the flow of time is to see it as an instrument of the spirit and that in the cycle around the circle spirit becomes time, which then becomes spirit, etc. etc.

HOW DO WE WIDEN OUR ANGLE OF AWARENESS?

At the University of the Trees we do this by working together as a group pointing out others' unwarenesses, while learning about our and each other's levels of consciousness. We work to know what is happening inside us at each moment. In this way we see our attachments and blockages to different aspects of these levels such as Red $\Rightarrow$ sex, Green $\Rightarrow$ money, Blue $\Rightarrow$ nostalgia. Having seen our attachments, we work on NON-ATTACHMENT to the manifestations of the levels. And so we break free of one level at a time until we finally crack open the nucleus and crash through the black centre to find ourselves suddenly looking out of our own eyes: but now its the "One" looking out of our eyes. When you realize this you are enlightened. This work is easier in a group, for we can experience the seven levels as a combination of all the members, whereas, it is rare for one individual to have all these levels open and possess a rainbow body.

THE ONE UNIVERSE

In all this work, we must keep in mind that the two-dimensional diagrams are only sections of a sphere covering all space. And that the seven worlds are not separate, but are a homogeneous set of interpenetrating vibrations.

The universe is ONE and everything that exists, is a part of everything else that exists. We only separate ourselves and other things in our Consciousness.

We rely on our senses for our information and confuse this mirror-reflection of reality as reality itself. But this is not so. The seven levels act as filters and present a cloudy image to us. Nuclear Evolution is the cleaning of these filters and their eventual total removal.

THE ANNIHILATION OF SPACE AND TIME

WHY DID WE COME TO EARTH?

TIMEBOUND

Earthbound is timebound. We came to experience this timebound state and free ourselves from it. The Spirit trapped in the seven intermingled time worlds of the nucleus makes our consciousness flow which we then experience as life. So human consciousness is a flux. This flow of life creates time. We experience a “life time” from being born to growing old. Our bodies are dependent on time governing events and needs such as sleep, biorhythms, bowel movements and ovulations. To transcend time we must become free of our physical bodies so we no longer identify with it as ourselves.

THE FIRST LAW OF CONSCIOUSNESS

On earth we also learn the first law of consciousness, which is:

WE BECOME WHATEVER WE IDENTIFY WITH

The power of consciousness is such that it can mold itself into anything. Consciousness has set all the limits we experience such as being human and all the “can’ts” that go along with this concept. The secret is that our consciousness can also remove all these self-imposed limitations. This leads to the second law of consciousness.

THE SECOND LAW OF CONSCIOUSNESS

WITH CONSCIOUSNESS: “ALL THINGS ARE POSSIBLE.”

Since every human is dependent on another for materials, foods and even the language we speak, an interdependence exists which is a force pushing human beings to realize the Oneness of their situation.

BREAKING THROUGH OUR IDENTIFICATION WITH EXTERNAL LINEAR TIME FLOW:

Although you are convinced that you experience time in a linear order, you don't. You are so used to thinking of clocks ticking away in a regular mechanical fashion you forget that when you are bored you experience time passing very slowly and when you are stimulated that time passes rapidly.

NON-LINEAR TIME FLOW

Have you noticed how the hour from 4:00 pm to 5:00 pm can pass very slowly when you are anxious to leave work, but cannot until 5:00 pm? Also, how time drags when you are stuck in a dreary meeting. Whereas, on another occasion when you are involved in an interesting project, hours pass like minutes. Do you see now, how your experience of time is not linear, but speeds up and slows down depending on your consciousness? When I am making love I am always surprised how fast time flies. What seems like 15 minutes is an hour and a half of clock time. So clock time is not real. Do you remember when you were a young child how you yearned to grow up and be an adult? But the time was inconceivably long and you could not believe it would ever happen. And didn't Christmas and your birthday always seem an age in coming. Now that you are older time flows faster and the years fly past. You maybe see life now as a brief period.

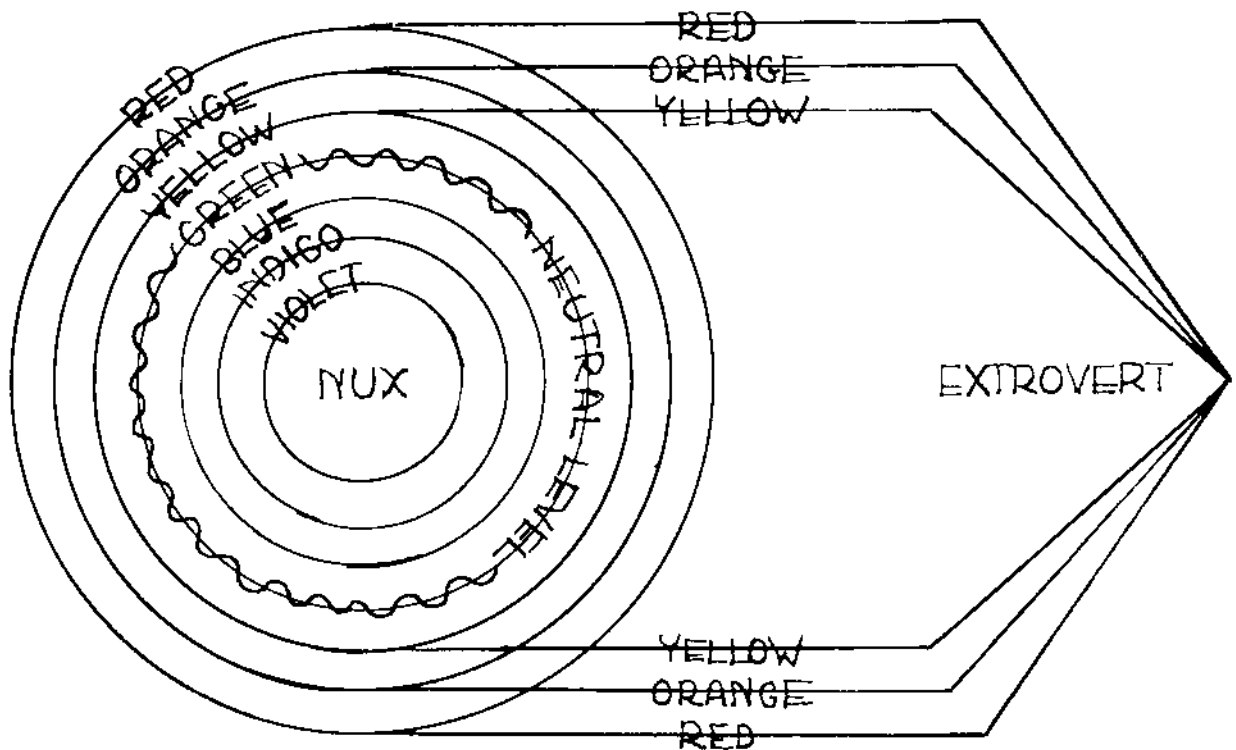

THE THIRD LAW OF CONSCIOUSNESS

So, in reality, you experience time as variable and not constant. This brings us to the third law of consciousness which is:

TIME IS INFLUENCED BY THE OBSERVER

THE DIFFERENCES IN THE TIME WORLDS OF INTROVERTS AND EXTROVERTS

Extroverts are those people who live in the time worlds of the red / physical, orange / social, and yellow / intellectual levels. They depend on something, outside of themselves, some object, or somebody external for their experiences and, in doing so, identify with themselves as separate objects. They are tied to the physical experience of external events to come into them from outside and so it follows that they depend on the external mechanical clock for their time. Human beings are mainly extroverts.

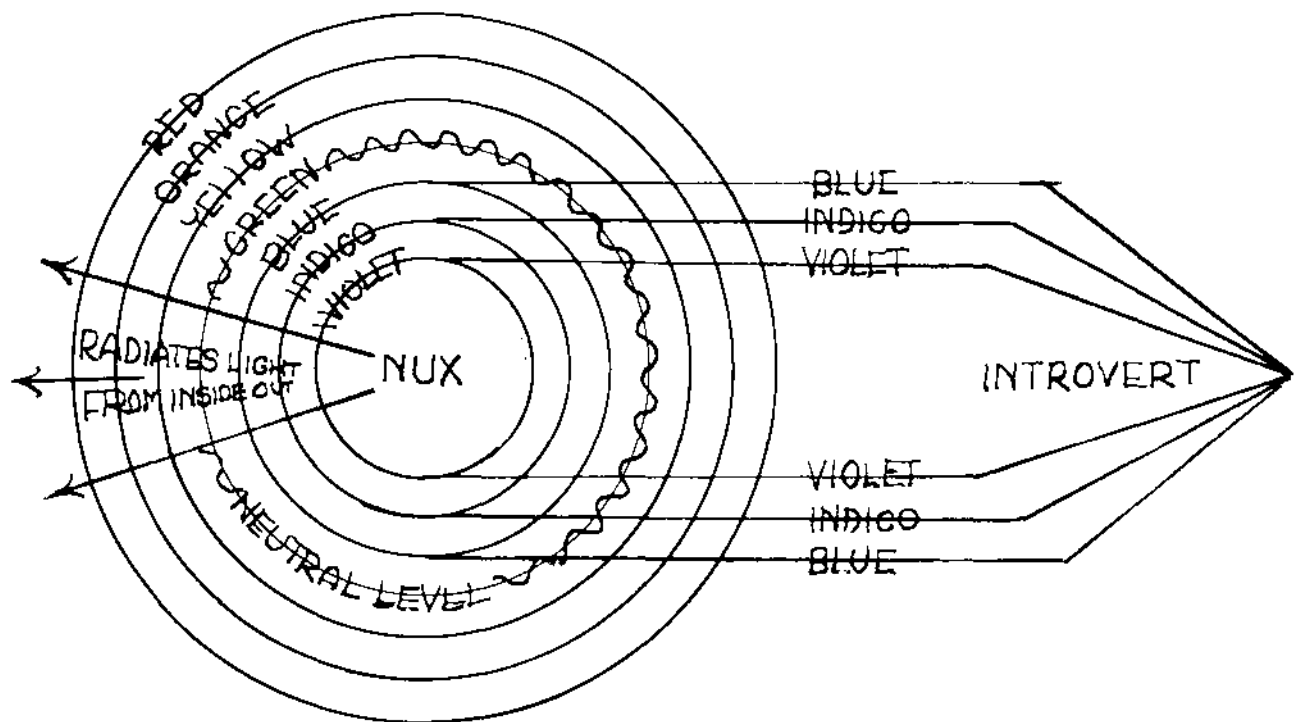

This diagram shows the way the personality of the extrovert absorbs light into his active levels, selecting only those colors from the external Lumen that he resonates with. These colors are seen as that person's AURA. The longer wavelengths do not penetrate the psychic layers inside the neutral green level of consciousness.

EXtroverts depend on EXternal Time

INTROVERTS

Introverts depend on something internal for their experience of time. Their time worlds are blue / conceptual, indigo / ^{intuitive} intellectual and violet / imaginative. They are more in tune with the nucleus and its blueprint for their evolution. The pure introvert is a Cosmic being whose time world is mainly governed by internal events.

INTroverts depend on INTernal Time

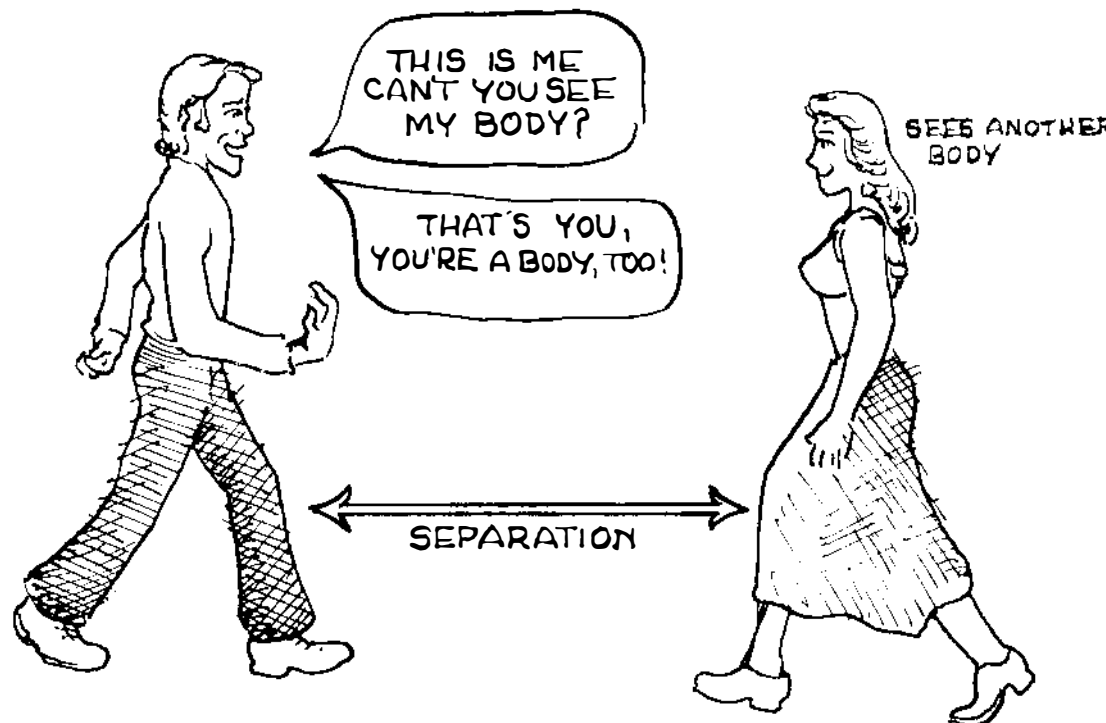

Invoking our first law of consciousness;
WE BECOME WHATEVER WE IDENTIFY WITH,
 we now have a choice to either continue and identify with external events, or switch over to internal events to govern our lives. As we make this switch, we become more in tune with our cosmic egg containing the step-by-step plan for our evolution. In the next chapter we will discuss the Yes / No technique referred to by Christ for being in tune with the Cosmic Will.

HOW WAS TIME CREATED IN OUR CONSCIOUSNESS?

So time is just a notion. How do we create this notion of time? It is the aspects of the orange / social level of consciousness that leads us to be brainwashed into believing in the reality of clocktime, solar time and galaxial time. The yellow level allows us to experience separation and hence this level of consciousness created space. Time followed in the guise of time to cross space. Clocks were invented to measure the time it takes to cross space.

SPACE

It takes you time to walk in your physical body to the store. Walking in your imagination takes no time (violet level). Similarly, reflecting on the past to a time when you went to the store takes no time (blue level). So now you can see that you have been operating on some of these levels of consciousness, outside time, without being aware that you were doing so.

IDENTIFIES WITH A BODY $\Rightarrow$ SPACE $\Rightarrow$ TIME TO CROSS SPACE
WHICH REINFORCES BODY IDENTIFICATION

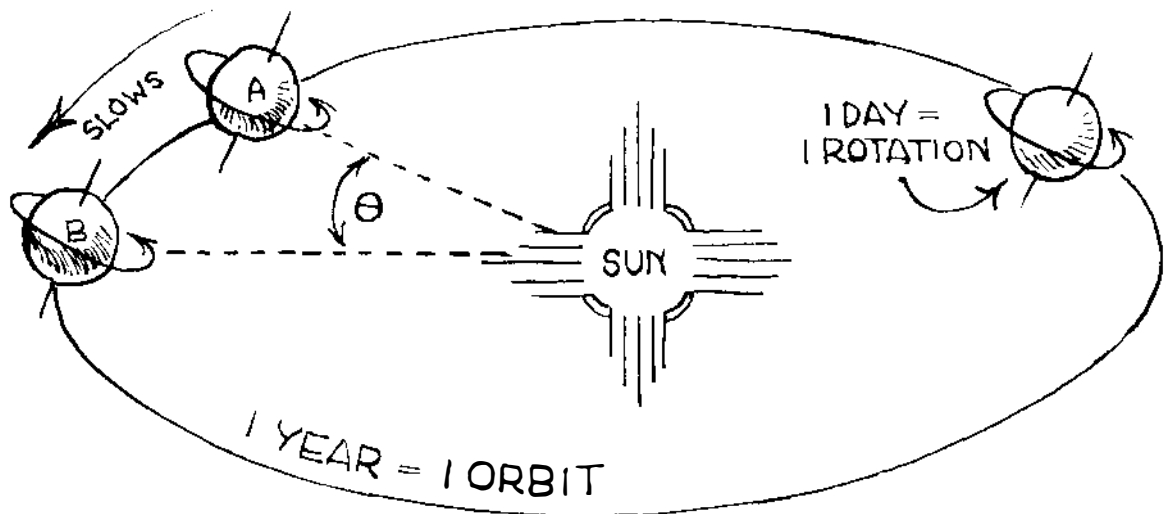

HOW SCIENCE CONTRIBUTED TO THE NOTION OF TIME

Science built a complete system from the revolution of the earth on its axis as a day, and the earth's orbit around the sun as a year. Scientists said 1 day contains 24 hours from which minutes and seconds were then derived. Then the earth's total orbit was divided into seconds to create a year. To do so scientists took an average of the time of the earth's journey around the sun. They did this since the earth does not travel at a constant velocity in its orbit, but speeds up and slows down.

SO EARTH TIME IS NOT BASED ON ANYTHING REAL.
EARTH TIME IS BASED ON AN AVERAGE VELOCITY. THIS AVERAGE VELOCITY IS NOT REAL. IT IS MAN MADE.

This concept is an artificial convention in man's mind to support the notion that time ticks away irrespective of human beings. If you identify with your body only, your whole life is governed by this external clock. A clock which depends on velocity!

By the end of this chapter you will realize, if you don't already, that the concept of velocity is erroneous when we consider the total universe. The concept of velocity requires a stationary starting point. There is no such stationary point in the universe. The whole of space is spinning.

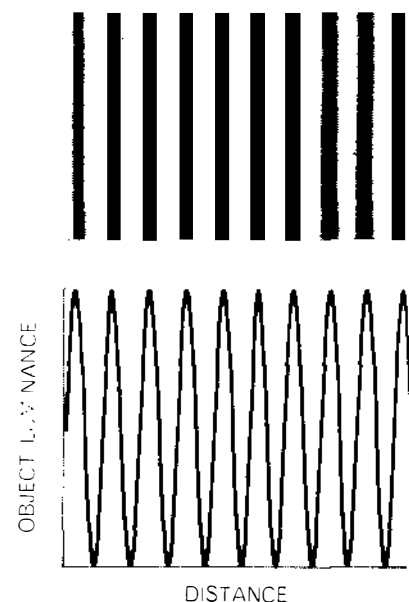

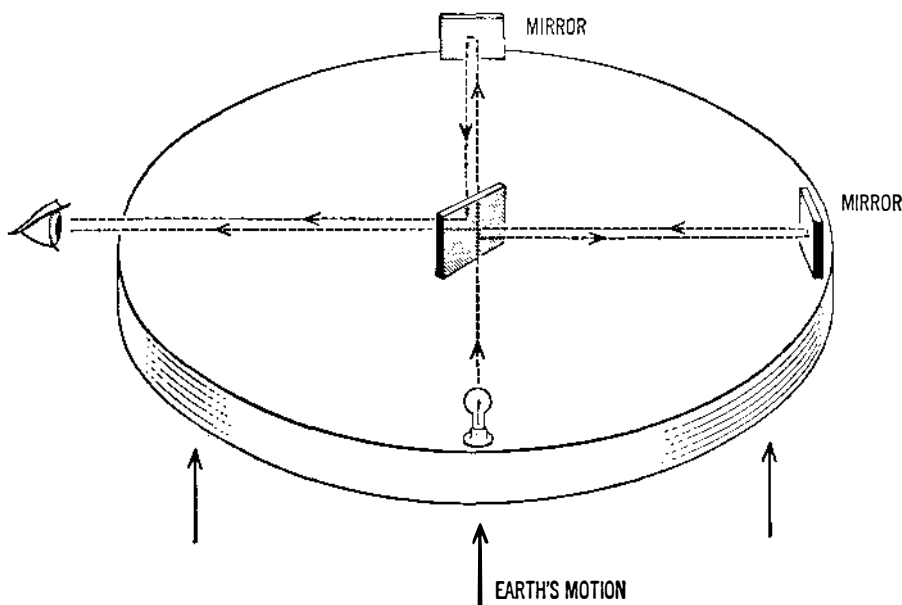

The earth changes speed in its passage around the sun. In the calculation of time, A is the apparent earth's position and B is the mean position.

THE VELOCITY OF LIGHT AND ITS SIGNIFICANCE

THE MICHELSON INTERFEROMETER

We cannot have something moving through space unless we have something to measure from. Michelson and Morley designed an experiment to try to find out if light crossed some media (called ether). They reasoned that the velocity of the earth through this media would influence the velocity of light in such a way as to cause a dragging effect on it. To perform this experiment Michelson designed an instrument sensitive enough to record this drag on a light beam, called an Interferometer. The Michelson Interferometer compared the light travelling against the ether flow to the light travelling across the ether stream and recorded any differences in light velocity between the two. To see a difference the instrument was rotated through 90° . Try as they did at different hours of the day and all times of the year a NULL RESULT was obtained. This meant to them that either light was not affected by the ether or that there was no ether. It was a null experiment. The second view that there is no ether is held by today's scientists, but incorrectly so.

MICHELSON'S INTERFEROMETER. The semi-mirror (center) splits the light beam, reflecting one half and letting the other half go straight ahead. If the two reflecting mirrors (at right and straight ahead) are at different distances, the returning beams of light will arrive at the observer out of phase.

FITZGERALD AND LORENTZ

Fitzgerald looked at Michelson's results and said that's fine since the velocity of the earth around the sun would cause the space between the atoms in the Interferometer arms to collapse slightly. This contraction would be equal to the expected fringe shift and so a null result would be obtained. He also postulated that objects travelling at the speed of light would have zero length and since we cannot have a length less than zero, then the SPEED OF LIGHT, which is 186,000 miles per second, is the MAXIMUM SPEED IN THE UNIVERSE.

LORENTZ

Lorentz also calculated the change in length with velocity and added a change in mass with velocity. Fitzgerald showed that objects travelling at half the speed of light would contract 15% and that matter travelling at 163,000 m/s would shrink by half, i.e. a 12" rule would measure 6" at 163,000 m/s. Lorentz showed that similarly at the speed of light the mass of an object is infinite. Infinite mass is mass stretched out across all of space: endless mass, which is the same as no mass.

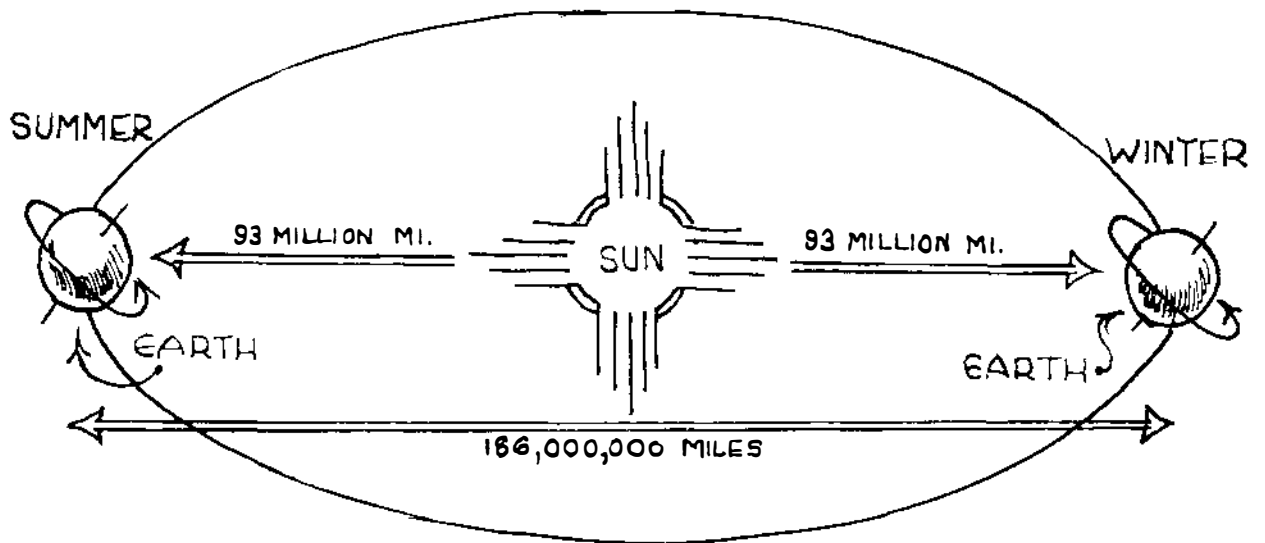

SPEED (m/s) SPEED OF LIGHT = C	CONTRACTION	DOES IT OBEY NEWTONIAN MECHANICS
0	0	YES
$c/2$	15%	NO
163,000 m/s	50%	NO
c	100%	NO

EINSTEIN CRACKS OPEN THE DOOR

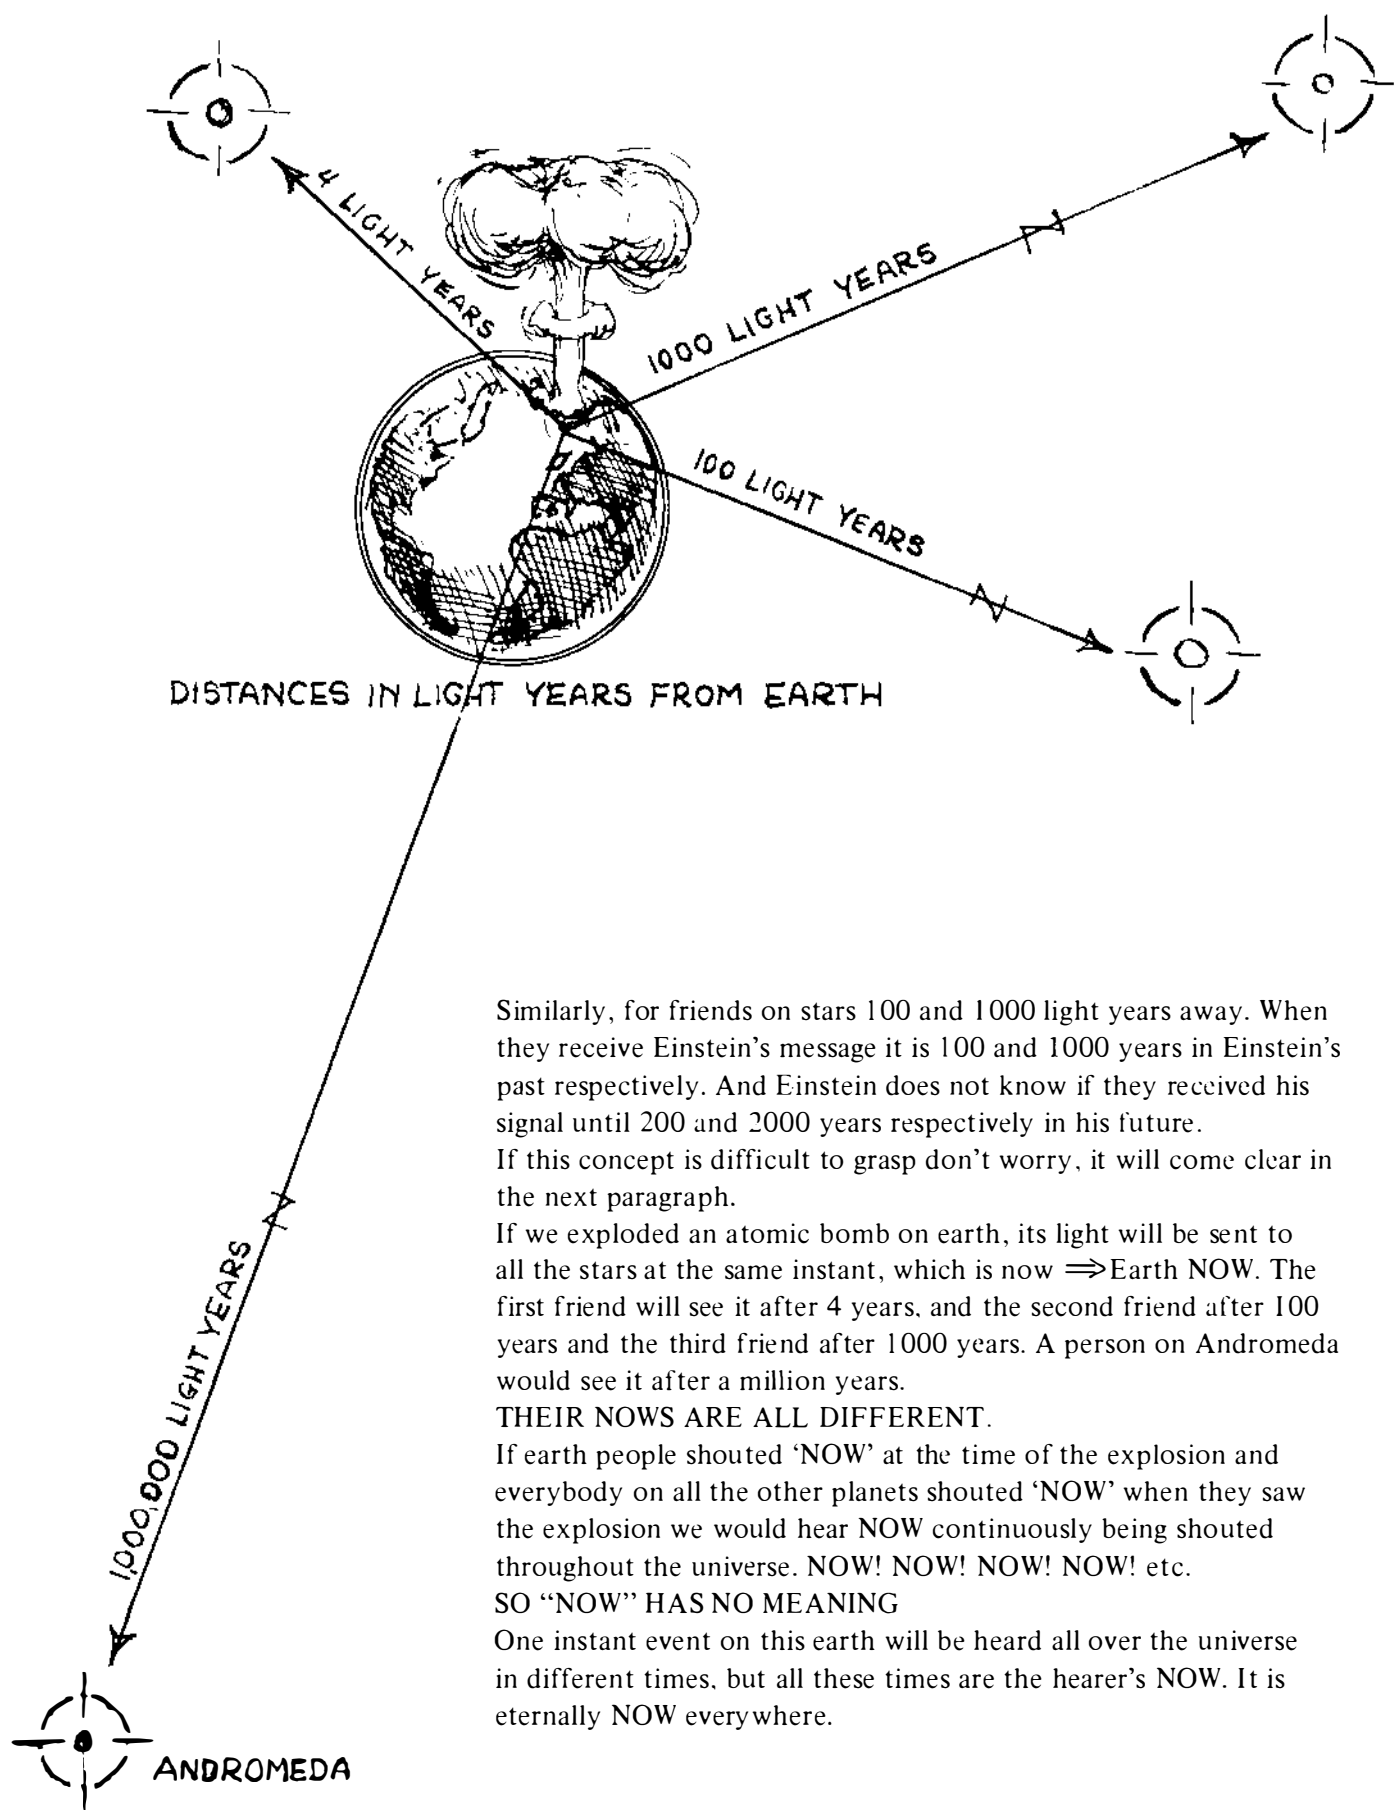

Einstein had the capacity of exploring the universe in his mind and so he designed a thinking experiment. He knew the average diameter of the earth's orbit between Winter and Summer was 186,000,000 miles. Given the speed of light as 186,000 m/s, he started by saying it takes light 1000 seconds to travel the average diameter of the earth's orbit. (time = distance/velocity). Therefore, for light to travel from the sun to the earth takes 500 seconds.

Einstein then reasoned that if he wanted to communicate with a friend on the nearest star which is 4 light years away, using a light beam or any other source of electromagnetic radiation, it would take 4 years for his message to reach his friend. When the friend got the message it would be 4 years in Einstein's past. For the friend to receive the message NOW, Einstein, would send it 4 years in the friend's future.

When the star friend receives the flash of light he acknowledges it by sending a flash back to earth. Another 4 years passes for the signal to reach earth. So Einstein does not know until 8 years in his future whether his friend received the message.

Similarly, for friends on stars 100 and 1000 light years away. When they receive Einstein's message it is 100 and 1000 years in Einstein's past respectively. And Einstein does not know if they received his signal until 200 and 2000 years respectively in his future.

If this concept is difficult to grasp don't worry, it will come clear in the next paragraph.

If we exploded an atomic bomb on earth, its light will be sent to all the stars at the same instant, which is now $\Rightarrow$ Earth NOW. The first friend will see it after 4 years, and the second friend after 100 years and the third friend after 1000 years. A person on Andromeda would see it after a million years.

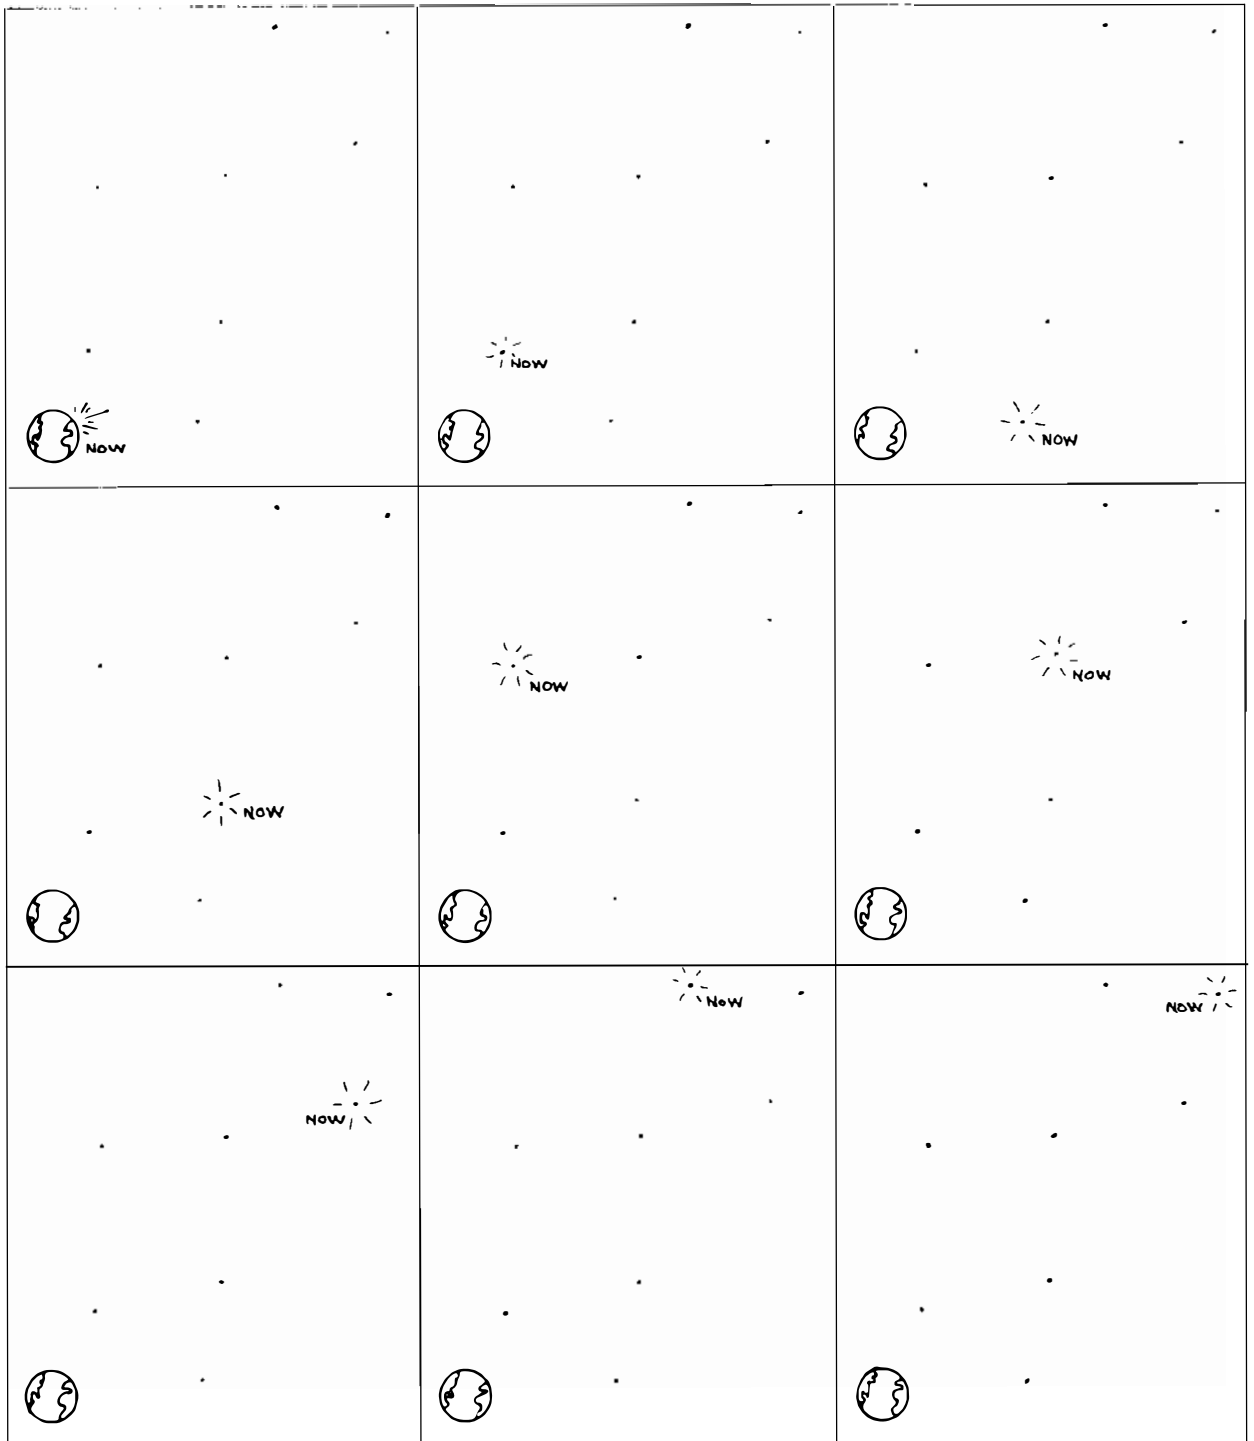

THEIR NOWS ARE ALL DIFFERENT.

If earth people shouted 'NOW' at the time of the explosion and everybody on all the other planets shouted 'NOW' when they saw the explosion we would hear NOW continuously being shouted throughout the universe. NOW! NOW! NOW! NOW! etc.

SO "NOW" HAS NO MEANING

One instant event on this earth will be heard all over the universe in different times, but all these times are the hearer's NOW. It is eternally NOW everywhere.

IT IS ETERNALLY “NOW” EVERYWHERE

EXPANDING AWARENESS

*Sir Isaac Newton,
The Great Scientist*

The light from an explosion on the earth will be seen rumphing* throughout time around the universe. From this Einstein concluded:

EARTH TIME IS MEANINGLESS OUTSIDE THE EARTH

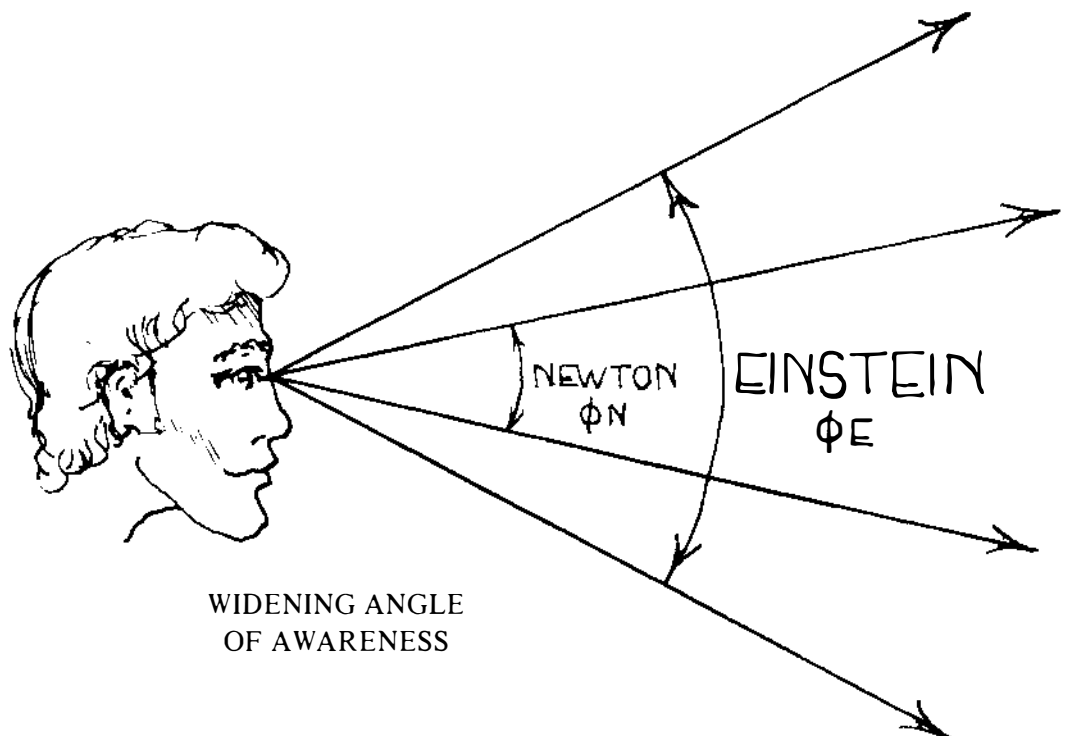

since one second on the earth is a different second elsewhere, or no particular second elsewhere. He followed with his postulate,

“ALL MOTION OF THE UNIVERSE IS RELATIVE TO THE OBSERVER.”

So Einstein said that

TIME HAS NO MEANING UNLESS YOU BRING IN SPACE.

In destroying the Newtonian concept of space being stationary Einstein did not destroy Newtonian mechanics but merely widened our angle of awareness.

*“rumphing” see Rumph Roomph Yoga tapes available from University of the Trees Press.

WHAT IS THE NEXT STEP FOR MANKIND / SCIENCE?

Inasmuch as Newton was correct when considering objects moving at slow speeds relative to the speed of light, Einstein is correct when considering our sensory experience of visible light, since this Lux (which the sages called Kasha) is space / time bound. The Lumen is not time-bound but it appears to our senses that it is. The Lumen is unquantized until it makes contact with objects. It is then that our consciousness measures it with our senses and records that its radiation travels at a constant velocity of 186,000 miles/sec. The next step for science is to include the perceiver or the observer's own consciousness in all the observation of light. This is something that Einstein was not able to do.

The consideration of consciousness will destroy the Einsteinian concept of the velocity of light being the maximum attainable speed in the universe and will again allow us to see further into nature's laws, without destroying Einsteinian science. Our angle of vision will again be greatly widened.

HILLS' THEORY OF CONSCIOUSNESS – THE NEXT QUANTUM LEAP

Consciousness is the same as unquantized invisible light radiation. The sages called it Akasha. The 'A' before a Sanskrit word means the 'absence of', and in this case means the absence of Kasha, the visible light.

Lumen	=	Invisible Radiations	=	Akasha
Lux	=	Visible Light	=	Kasha

The internal response to light radiation which we experience psychically as a brightness, is caused by our senses and is called the Lux.

LET'S DO A CONSCIOUSNESS EXPERIMENT

Consciousness is not space / time bound. When we look at a distant star our consciousness instantaneously travels there. Today's scientists tell us that some of the stars we are seeing no longer exist, since by the time their light reaches us the star has burnt out. In making this statement what is being considered is the time for our physical bodies to travel to the star at the speed of light radiation. But this is observing the star without taking into account the observer, whose consciousness is wrapping itself around the star.

DOES YOUR CONSCIOUSNESS REALLY TRAVEL?

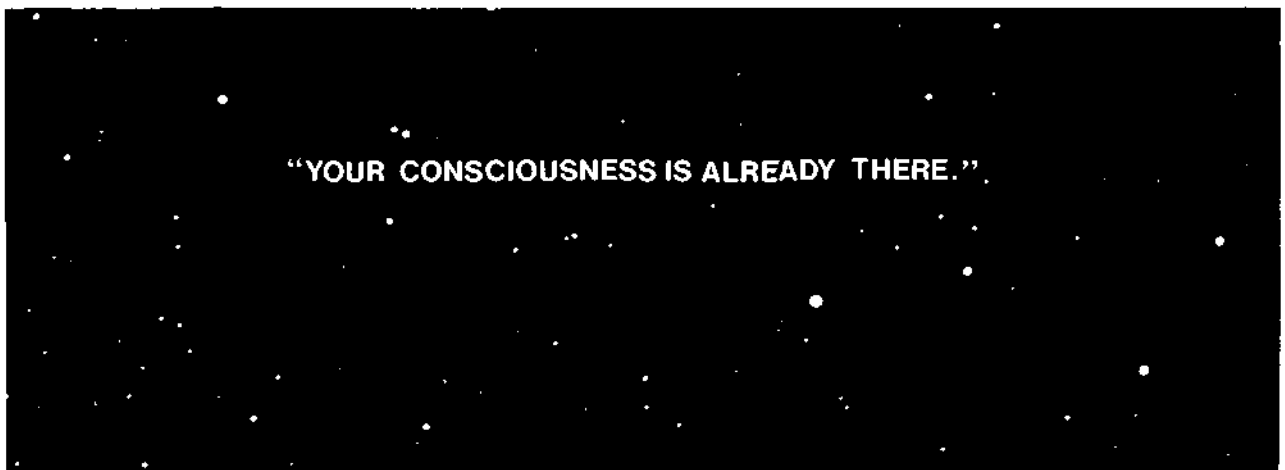

At night, look up at the stars in the sky. You can see all the stars at the same instant even though they are at vastly different distances from your body. Your consciousness fills the spaces between the stars. Your consciousness fills the spaces between you and the stars. You now realize that there is no space to cross. Your consciousness is already there.

There is no space. There is no time.

When you stop identifying with your body you know the above to be true. Your body is just one seventh (1/7) of yourself; one level of consciousness; a vehicle slit through which you experience the physical world. This is summed in the fourth law of consciousness which states:

THE FOURTH LAW OF CONSCIOUSNESS

YOUR CONSCIOUSNESS WHICH IS LIGHT RADIATION DOES NOT TRAVEL. IT IS ALREADY THERE, EVERYWHERE.

CONCLUSION:

THE FIRST LAW OF CONSCIOUSNESS

The lesson of this chapter is to realize the first law of consciousness:

“YOU ARE WHATEVER YOU IDENTIFY WITH”

When you identify with the invisible light of consciousness totally you will annihilate space and time. With this comes the realisation that you are everything in the universe, and that ALL IS ONE. You will be a cosmic being. In this oneness we see the universe as being inside our heads. The full impact of this will only come when we break into the centre of our nucleus. We do this by turning inwards, in an introverted manner, and identifying with our inner being for guidance. In this way the blueprint of our evolution will be revealed to us.

Nuclear Evolution is the coming together of a group of people who are learning to identify with the Akasha so that their consciousness is enclosing all the universe including all the egos in the universe. In this manner we will lose our identity with our small, egocentric self.

ON AUTHOR'S HAND

The air pressure on your hand is equivalent to two people standing on each side, and yet you are not aware of it.

DOES A FISH KNOW
WHAT WATER IS?

THE FIFTH LAW OF
CONSCIOUSNESS

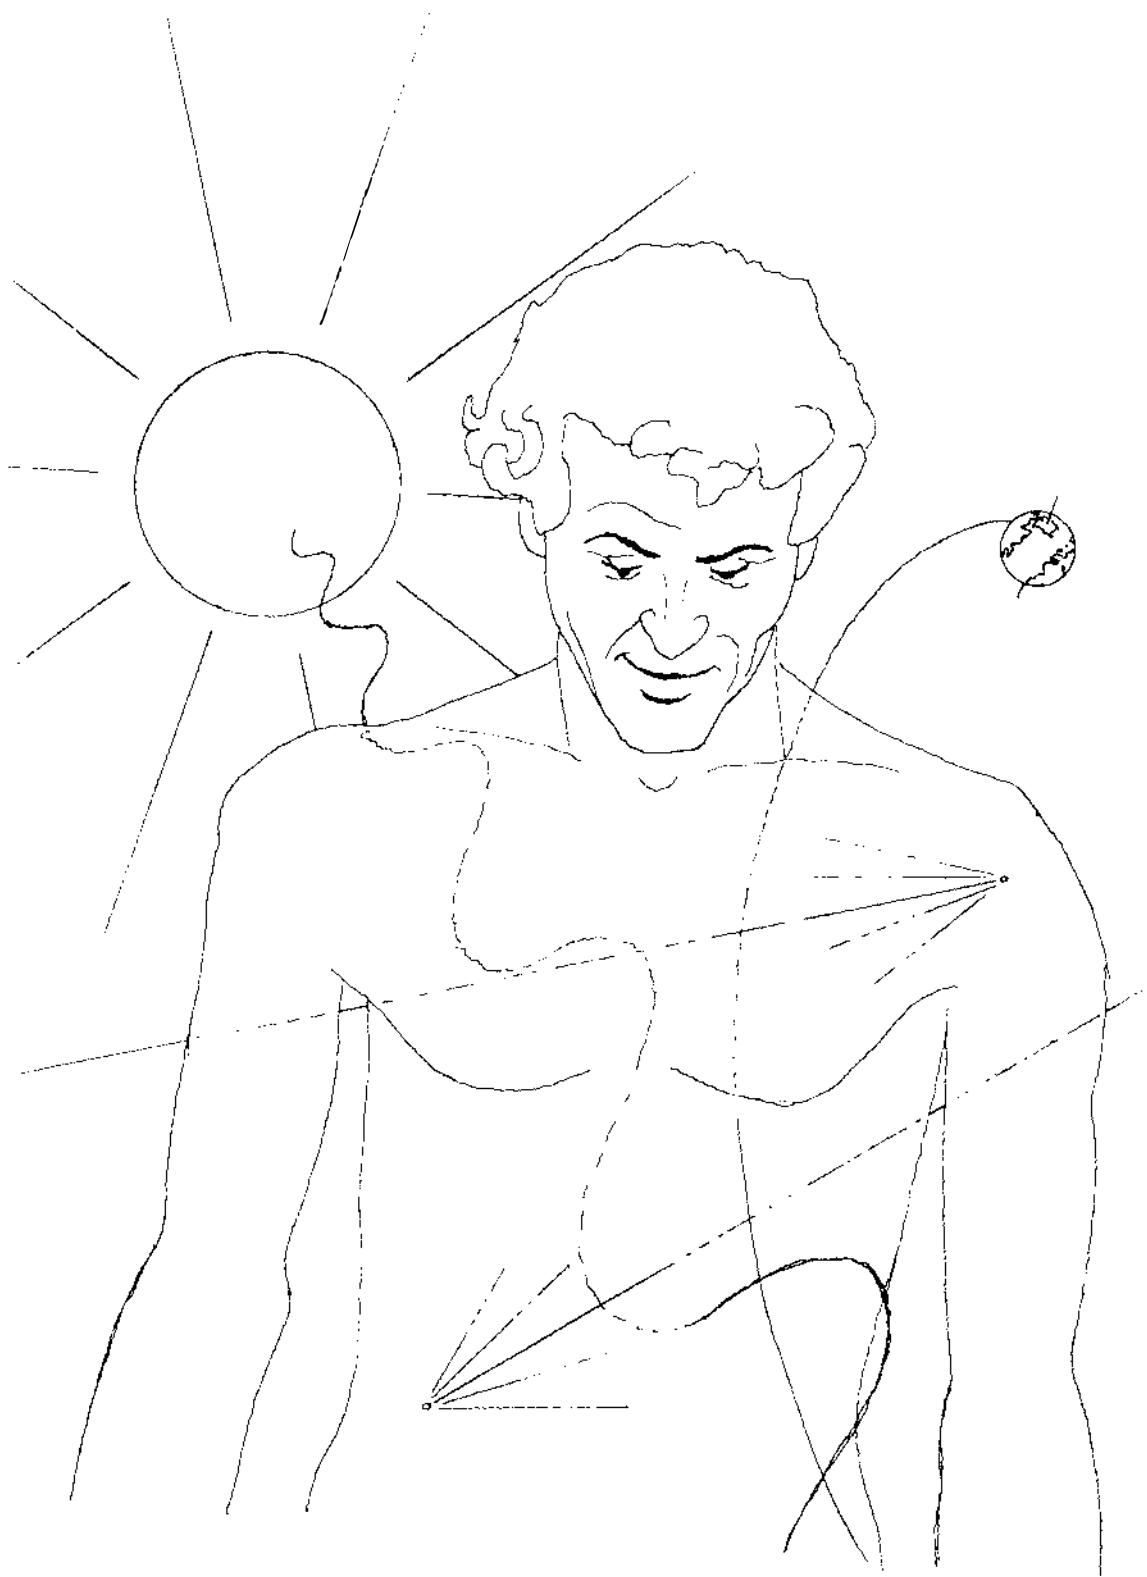

Our senses only tell us truth at the red / physical level. If our consciousness is attached to this level we believe in the False Reality of Separation, and in the False Reality of Space and Time. The True Reality is that we are totally interconnected to the universal field. There is no separation between us and the universe we live in. The air we breathe is air that everybody else has breathed. Each breath contains about 2 molecules of the last breath of everybody else in the universe. This air interpenetrates the earth's magnetic field which is hooked up to the sun and the interplanetary and intergalactic fields. All these fields and their radiations are criss-crossing through us now. As they do so they break up some atoms and create new ones. But we don't feel this, nor do we feel the effect of a solar flare on the sun which changes our consciousness. This is because our senses operate in a narrow frequency band which limits our reality.

Nuclear Evolution is the expansion of our frequency band to include the total spectrum of vibrations of the Akasha / Lumen. We don't feel these intense cosmic radiations, nor do we feel the effects of a cloud passing overhead carrying a charge of 1 million volts, nor do we feel the weight of the air on us. The air weighs 14.7 lbs./in², i.e., each square inch of our bodies is under 14.7 pounds weight. My hand, which measures about 24 sq. in. is subjected to 353 pounds on each side. This is an enormous weight, and yet we think of air as being almost non-existent. Airplanes fly in this thick substance called air. Without air they would fall out of the sky. When air starts to move rapidly its force, as in a hurricane, tears buildings apart.

Like a fish that swims around in water all its life not knowing what water is until it is on a hook outside the water, so we do not appreciate air until we are suffocating. Stop breathing now for about an hour, then you will know what air is. This brings us to an important law of consciousness:

EVERYTHING IN THE UNIVERSE AFFECTS US

Other examples that it is easier for us to relate to are bad vibes caused by other people and miserable weather conditions.

THE AKASHIC RECORD

THE SIXTH LAW OF CONSCIOUSNESS

The sixth law of consciousness states that:

EVERYTHING WE DO / THINK AFFECTS THE UNIVERSAL FIELD

So everything we have ever done is stored up somewhere in a cosmic memory which we call the Akashic Record.

WHAT IS THE AKASHIC RECORD?

The first thing to remember is that the Akasha is the same as Lumen, which is the same as the Universal Field. The Akashic Record is our unconscious storage of all our past karma. It is the storehouse of all our past actions – a cosmic computer. This computer contains all the mistakes and unlearned lessons of our past incarnations. It is a memory of our negative actions on the seven levels of consciousness. Some of these are red / sensuality, orange / pride, yellow / egotism, green / possessiveness, blue / self-satisfaction, indigo / fear, violet / chaos.

Our higher self at the centre of the nucleus is trying to grow into the total light / Lumen like a flower in a garden, but the past events / our karma act like weeds in choking the self and preventing its growth. There is no point in us working on the flower / self. What we need to do is to weed the garden, since the flower knows how to grow if only we let it. So we need to know:

WHAT KARMA IS IN OUR AKASHIC RECORD?

Everything I think and do builds karma for myself. The undesirable aspects of my thoughts and actions now drop into the Akashic record. At a later date either after a few minutes or incarnations these thoughts come back out of storage. They move into our past then on into our NOW where we experience them again and either deal with them this time or are tripped up and are unable to handle them. They then move into our future and finally submerge again in our unconscious. The thoughts we choose to suppress and not deal with drop into our akashic record only to return at a later date and give us a good kick. So the akashic record governs our thoughts and actions and inactions now. Whatever we are doing now and thinking now is a result of our akashic record. In Nuclear Evolution our job is to clear the akashic record's memory banks. When the computer's memory is empty the Cosmic Program of random events can come through.

“INSTANT KARMA IS GONNA GET YOU”

I have an attachment to being a smart guy, so if I can get away with something I will, and yet whenever I do the cosmos always gives me instant karma.

On a recent book promotion and sales trip, I made the decision to pay for single occupancy of a motel room knowing that two people would be using the room. The next day my sales accomplishments were negligible. To make matters worse, a phone call to the university brought the information that a team who had just returned from a similar trip had been very successful. I felt lousy. During the remainder of the day I tried to figure out what had put me out of tune with the Cosmic Will. A sense of relief did not come until I remembered the hotel bill. By this time, I was heading across the San Francisco Bay to look for another motel. I decided to pay for double occupancy. The salesman I was travelling with applauded this decision since he had not felt comfortable the previous evening. As we were driving along the freeway we saw three motels so we pulled into the one that felt good to us. When the clerk informed me of the rates, I lit up inside. The double rate was less than the single rate of the night before. I was back in tune with the Cosmos. Our sales on the next day were phenomenal. We topped the previous team by over 50%.

I get this sort of instant karma from the akashic record, continuously. The trick is to first recognize that you are out of tune and then find out what you did to cause the situation. Some deep-rooted patterns are much more difficult to see, let alone change. But we must change them if we are to evolve.

This cyclic nature of the universe just hides our patterns for a while and they rise again incarnation after incarnation to give us a hard time, until we detach ourselves from them.

GOOD GUY:

One of the deep-rooted patterns I have is not wanting people to think bad of me and, hence, I want to be the “good guy.” This leads me into situations that I do not really want to be in. Many times I have lumbered myself and done things for people that I did not really want to do. I found it difficult to say “No” to them, out of a fear that I would not be liked. Since the group at the University of the Trees has made me aware of this pattern, I have made strides to overcome it. This is Nuclear Evolution in practice.

MANIC DEPRESSIVE:

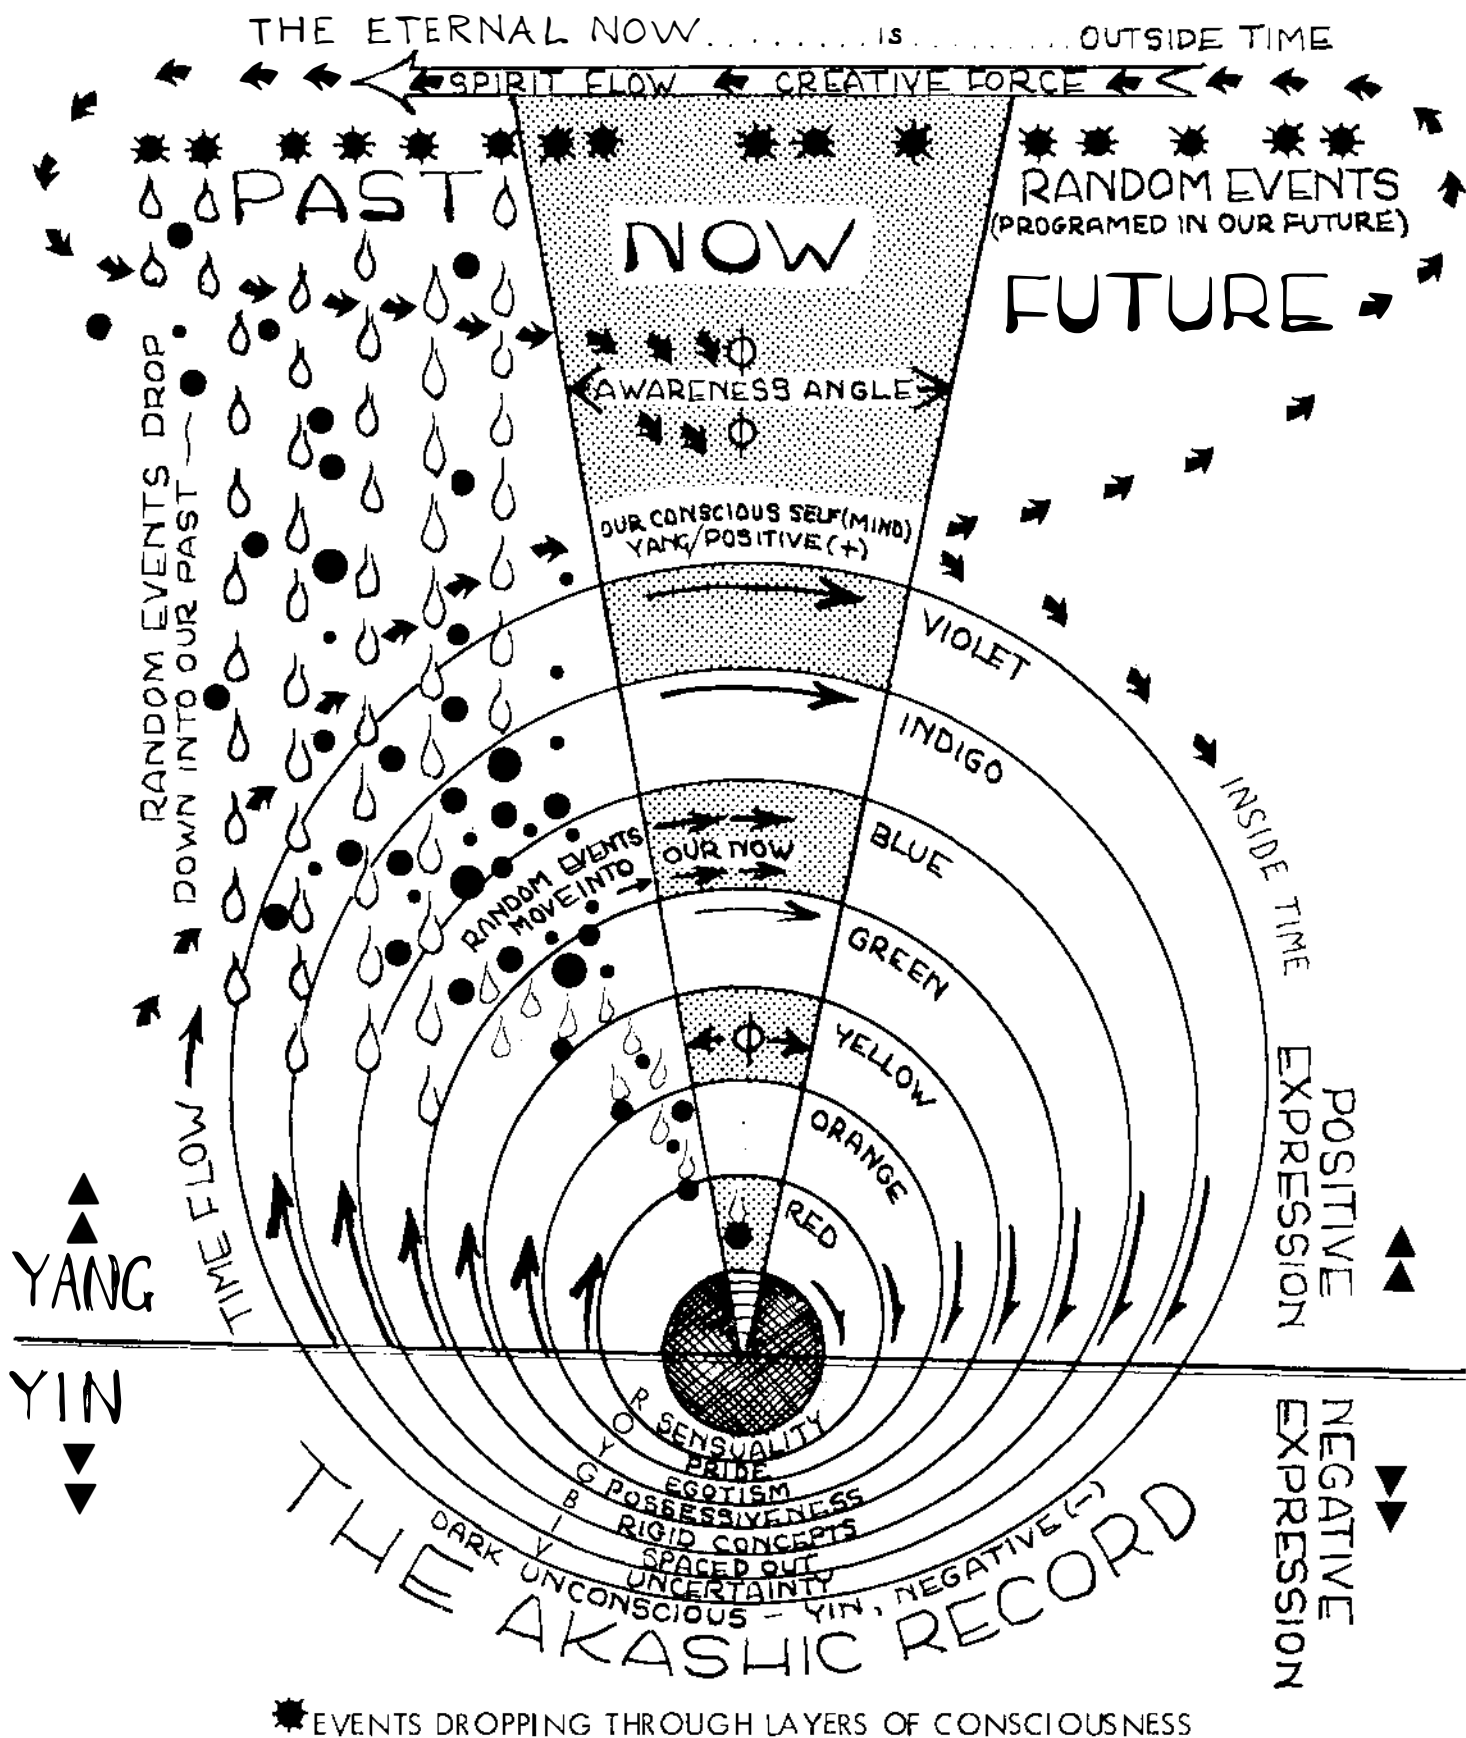

Two of the levels of consciousness that I function from are the red / physical and the blue / satisfaction levels. Swinging between these two levels has led to a manic-depressive syndrome. I will get very enthusiastic about a project and for a few weeks tackle it in a high-energy state. Then when the going gets tough I become depressed, lose confidence and am unable to finish the project. This is still a problem pattern that I have yet to overcome. If I actually complete this book, through to publication, I will have made great inroads into changing this pattern.

SELF-FULFILLING PROPHECIES:

Here I need to change my thought pattern. If I feel I cannot accomplish something, this thought will go into the akashic record and re-emerge at a later date to make me a self-fulfilling prophet. Stop now, and see what you are thinking. That thought came from and is going into your akashic computer. You must change your thought patterns.

HOW EVENTS ARISE IN OUR CONSCIOUSNESS

The beings outside time program these events in our future. They use time to allow the events to flow into our past where they filter down to our consciousness and move into our NOW where we can deal with them before they move off into our future and then drop down into our unconscious akashic record. When we expand our angle of awareness ϕ , we can see these past events before they happen. You will also have already experienced the future.

★ EVENTS DROPPING THROUGH LAYERS OF CONSCIOUSNESS

The above diagram shows the movement of events through time as they appear to our consciousness as a flowing stream from the past to the future. The colors of the levels of consciousness are harmonic vibrations of the chakra activity as these timebound events are processed by our total personality. See Nuclear Evolution: The Discovery of the Rainbow Body. Published by University of the Trees Press.

HOW DO WE TAP INTO THE AKASHIC RECORD AND CHANGE IT?

You are the akashic record and so you are already plugged into it. So you must now take notice of every situation you are in and see what it is telling you. Fiddling my motel bill, in the earlier example, was a 'No-No' and the Cosmos responded negatively to let me know this. As soon as I had made a positive change in my consciousness the Cosmos gave a strong 'Yes' signal. I have found the Cosmos does not bear grudges. It responds immediately, once your attitude has changed. I have also found that good actions in one situation do not buy any grace or leniency in another situation where you may have a lousy attitude. The Cosmos has programmed the universe to come back kicking, even when one event immediately follows the other. There is no carryover of protection from a good attitude to a lousy one.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF YES AND NO

Nuclear Evolution can be called the philosophy of Yes and No. Right now stop reading and note what you are thinking. Stop your thoughts and record your last thought. You have been thinking that thought for eons. Use this technique of Nuclear Evolution to see what thoughts you have in your akashic record. The situation you are in now is a result of your thoughts, so you need to first recognize, then control them. We need constantly to tune into this record by watching our thoughts and ask God what we are to do now. Christ said all we need to know is to learn to think in terms of Yes and No.* So we phrase our questions such that Yes or No / Yin or Yang answers make sense. When we do this, if a positive thought comes, let it manifest, and if a negative thought comes, say no, and stop it from manifesting.

Similarly, if we are engaged in some activity which is flowing easy and all the doors are opening for us with the minimum effort – this is a Yes. We are in tune with the Cosmos. Whereas, if the going gets tough and the doors need a maximum effort to open them – this is the Cosmos saying No.

Matthew 5:37*

HUMILITY IS THE KEY

We can readily see how much more fulfilling life would be if we adopted this philosophy. To learn this philosophy costs us. The price is to develop a lack of pride in our own self image of who we think we are. We must have the humility to surrender to the Cosmic Will, and exhibit a lack of pride in our attitudes so we can change them.

My lesson in this is to tune in more than I do. To tune in before I do anything.

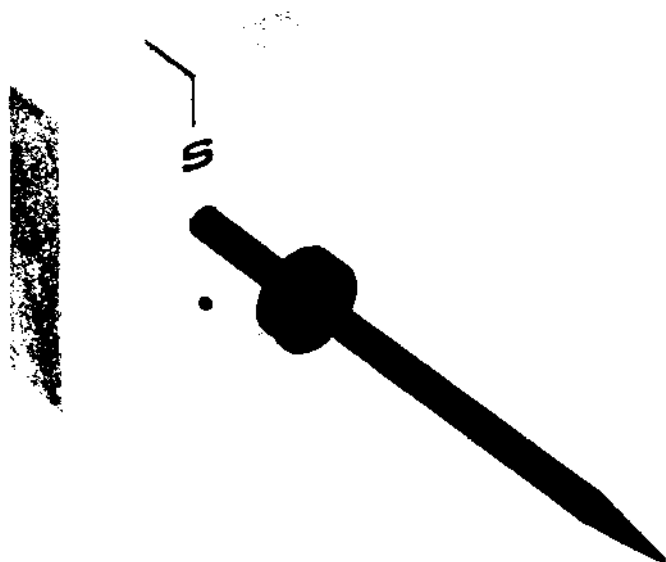

SUPERSENSONICS

There is a science of Yes and No called Supersensonics which uses small amplifiers to register the yes and no responses from the Akasha.

When we get used to this technique we can program our record with good thoughts. Meditation also helps in this way.

INSTRUMENT OF KNOWING*

Supersensonic Instruments of Knowing; Christopher Hills; University of the Trees Press*

CENTRE CONSCIOUSNESS VS. ONLOOKER CONSCIOUSNESS

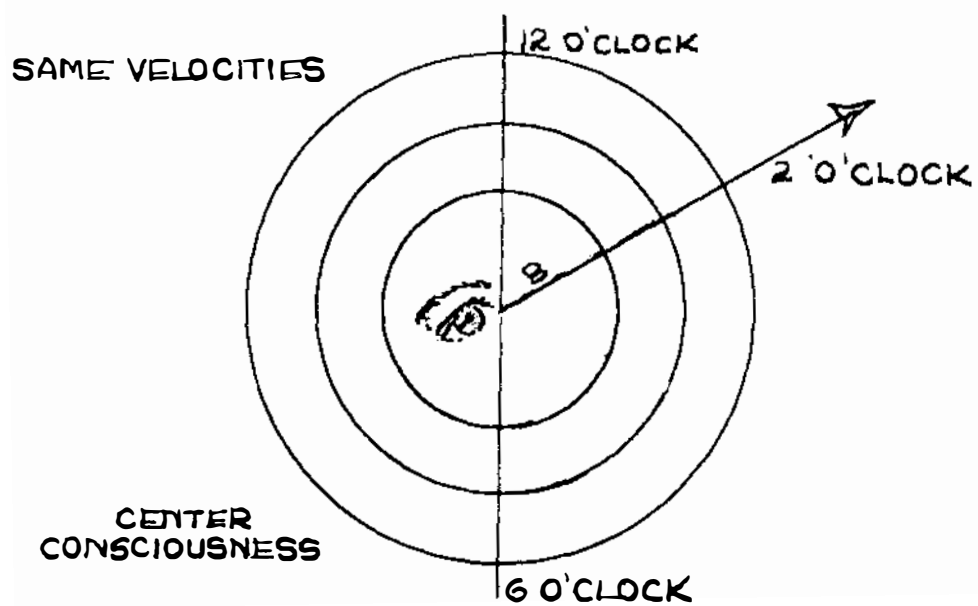

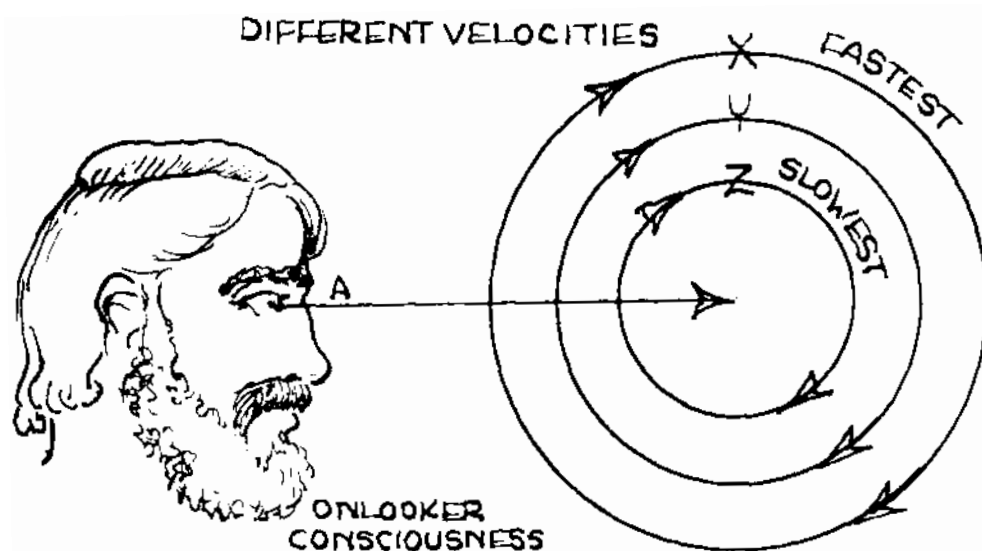

We have seen how people separate themselves from the universe and how this leads to concepts of space and time. To date, science has used space / time to base its reality on. And yet even small examples can show this to be erroneous. Viewing the universe from outside the system separates the observer from the experience of the system. Everything in nature is cyclic. So let us look at some cyclic events from onlooker and centre consciousness and note the different realities they produce.

ONLOOKER CONSCIOUSNESS

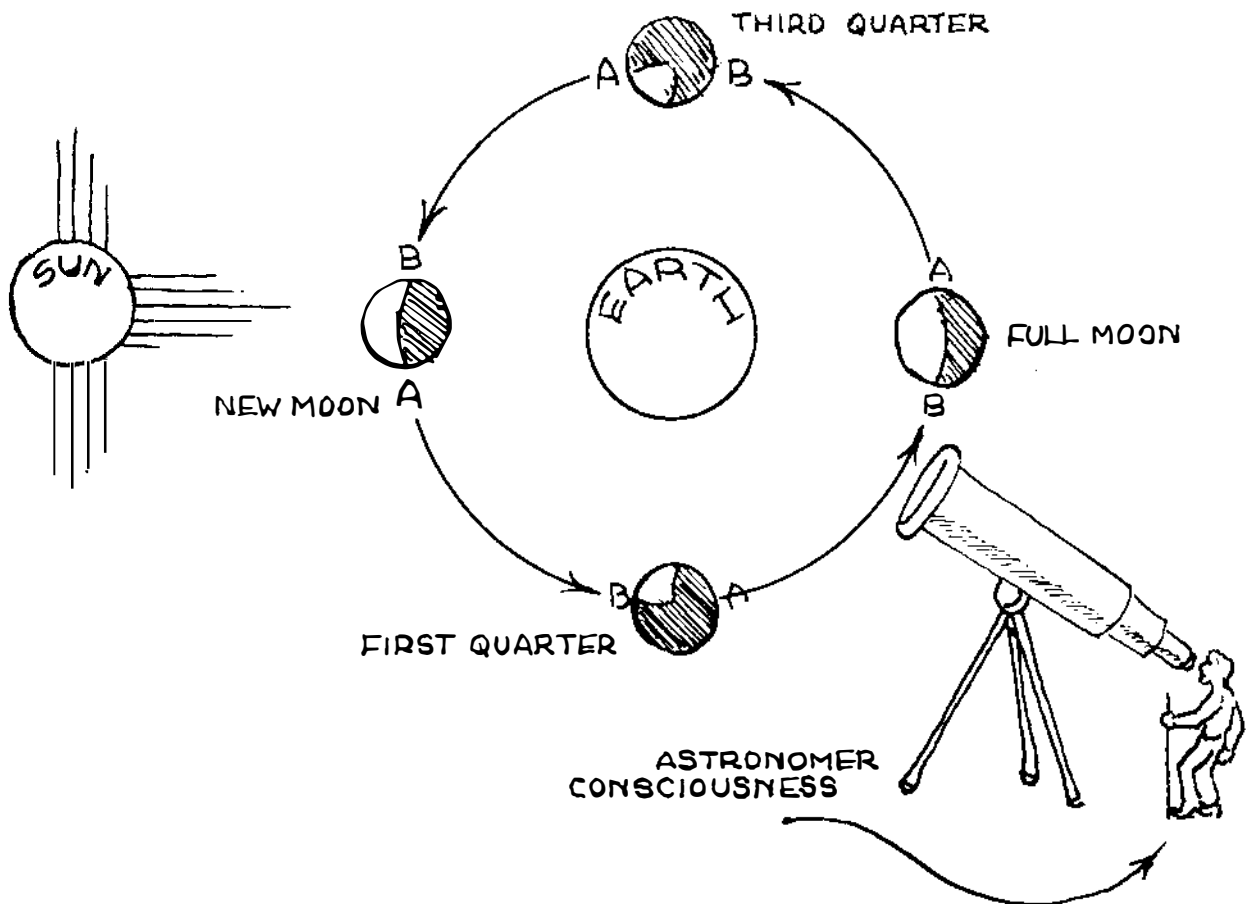

If we look from position (A) outside the circle, we see each participant X, Y and Z racing around the circle at different velocities so they can end up at their starting points together. We observe the time for Z's revolution as less than the time for X's revolution.

CENTRE CONSCIOUSNESS

With centre consciousness viewing the system from (B) we see each participant as if on a spoke of a wheel. They all reach 2 o'clock, 6 o'clock and 12 o'clock together. All these people are experiencing the same time from the centre, which is one cycle. This is resonance. It occurs when they are all experiencing the same point at the same time. Resonance can only be experienced with respect to the centre, not the outside observer. From the nuclear centre everything moves at the same velocity. So the events that come out of the akashic record happen to us in our imaginations a little before they happen in our intuition, a little before they happen in our past, etc. all the way down to the physical level where we manifest them now. The analogy is complete when we realize we are all the seven participants in the cycle.

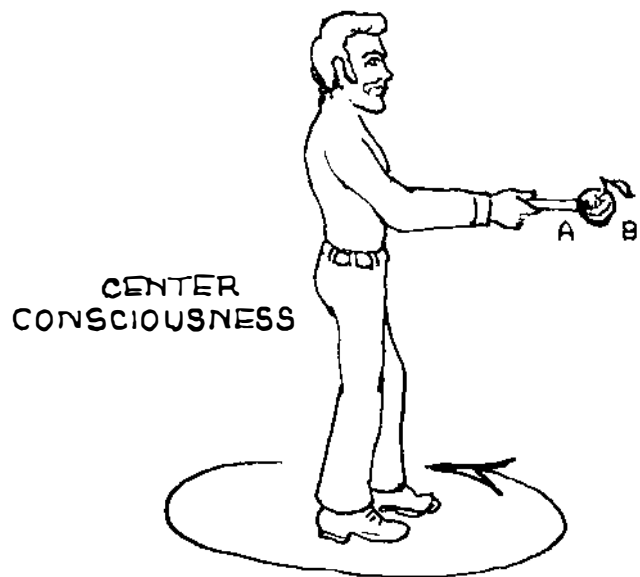

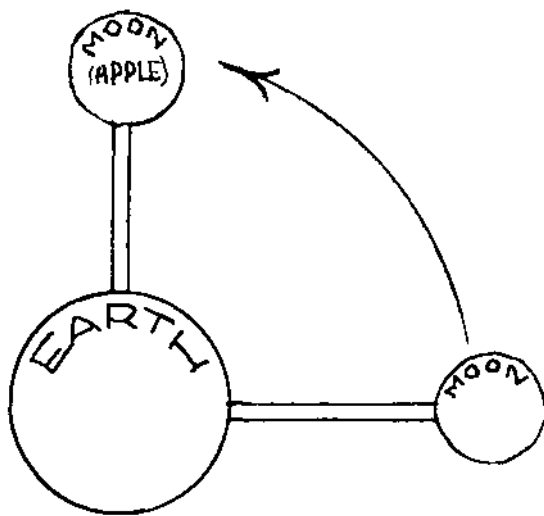

ASTRONOMER CONSCIOUSNESS: The same side of the moon is always turned towards the earth. Astronomers place themselves outside the earth / moon system and then say the moon revolves on its axis once a month so that we always see the same face. Their consciousness has been separated from the experience and created a false reality.

CENTRE CONSCIOUSNESS:

The true reality for the moon orbiting around the earth is seen when we stand at the centre of the system, i.e. on the earth. Here we see that to have the same side facing the earth, the moon does not have to turn on its axis.

To see this clearer hold an apple stuck on the end of a stick out in front of your body. Now turn the system; you being the earth at the centre of the system.

THE CENTRE PRINCIPLE

This is the Centre Principle. It is to experience reality from the centre of the system where you are in resonance with everything in that system, and where velocity and time have no meaning. We as humans have difficulty putting our consciousness at the centre of the system. We keep separating ourselves from the experience, and create many different velocities and times.

THE CYCLIC INTERCONNECTED UNIVERSE

The Akashic Record, like everything else in the universe, is cyclic. If one drops a thought into it like, "Group Consciousness is impossible," it will return from out of the past to trip us up. Group consciousness for that person will be impossible. But, also, since we are the centre of the universe and are interconnected to all aspects of it, then whatever we put into the Akashic Record affects everybody else. My akashic record is everybody's akashic record. There is one big universal akashic record.

Akasha = Consciousness = Lumen

The group working at the University of the Trees on Nuclear Evolution aims for resonance by each member putting himself at the centre of the group needs. We have committed ourselves to the group through a spiritual marriage to work together to obtain the next evolutionary step called Group Consciousness (see supplement). We realize, that like a computer, consciousness records everything. But we also know that:

THE SECOND LAW OF CONSCIOUSNESS

WHAT HAS BEEN DONE BY CONSCIOUSNESS CAN BE UNDONE BY CONSCIOUSNESS.

This is a restatement of the second law of consciousness. When we obtain this centre consciousness, external events like wars, killings, and others' reactions to us will not affect us. People with onlooker consciousness will still be disturbed by these events.

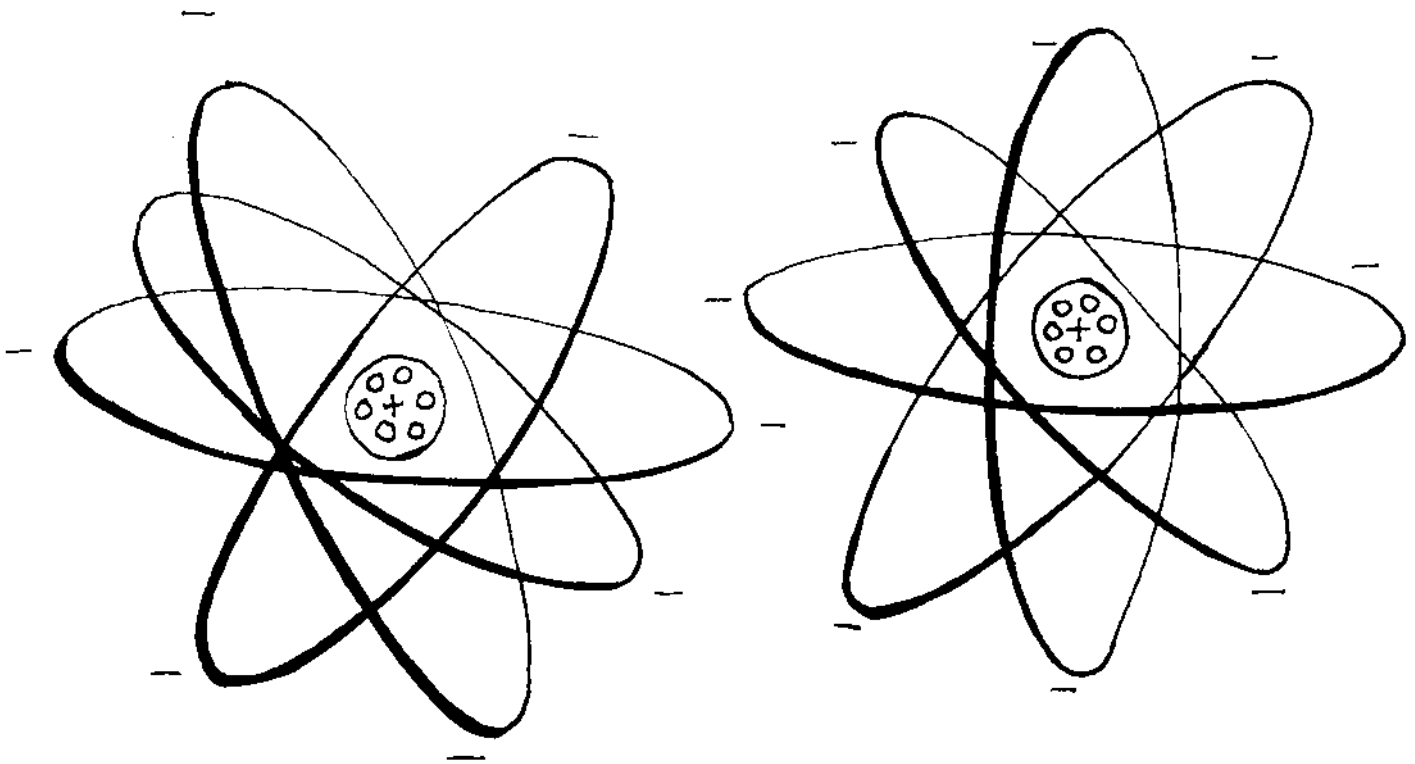

*"A thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand; but it shall not come nigh thee."

Psalm 91, verse 7*

SUPPLEMENT

HOW NUCLEAR EVOLUTION AND GROUP CONSCIOUSNESS ARE PROGRAMMED INTO NATURE

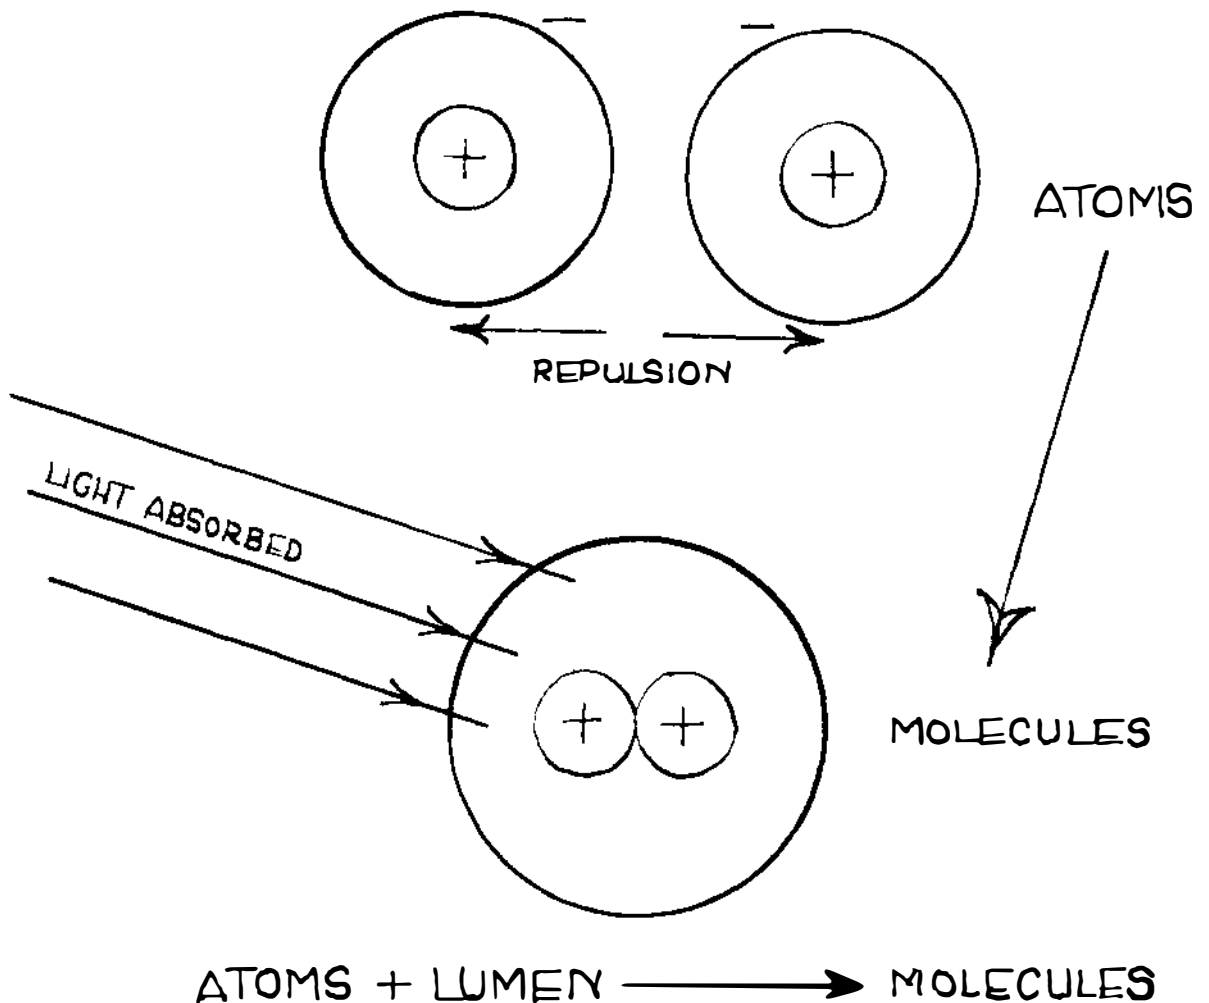

Nuclear Evolution is the pattern that nature uses to transform organisms in growth leaps by metamorphosis of one biological system into another more expanded system, through absorption of light. As an example of this process we must take ourselves back in time before man, cells, and molecules were created to a time where atoms were the most evolved manifestation. If you look at the diagrams of the atoms, you will see they have a positive centre (the nucleus) which is surrounded by electrons whose charge is negative.

Two similar charges repel each other. This means that as the atoms approach each other, they will only get close enough to where their similar negative fields push them apart again.

If the universe had remained in this state, with each atom repelling its neighbor, we would never have evolved. So something must have taken place to pull the atoms close enough together that their nuclei shared each other's electrons and stayed together to form molecules. This process of nuclear evolution is accomplished by the absorption of more Lumen into the system. This absorption of light changes one biological system into a more complex system. Evolution then continued to form cells, then bodies. The next jump in evolution was the formation of a hemispherical brain. Each step of this process was accomplished by an increased absorption of Lumen from the pool of Pure Consciousness.

The next step in the evolutionary cycle is group consciousness.

Molecules + Lumen	$\Rightarrow$	Cells	E
Cells + Lumen	$\Rightarrow$	Bodies	V
Bodies + Lumen	$\Rightarrow$	Brains	O
Brains + Lumen + Lux	$\Rightarrow$	Sensorium	L
			U
			N

Group Consciousness is a method of putting away our individual egos and transcending our physical incarnation. In doing so we are developing a Planetary consciousness in which each of our individual brains is a cell in a giant world cortex so that a World-Wide Sensorium is formed. This is a mind-boggling step in evolution.

THE COSMIC FEEDBACK SYSTEM

At this point it is worthwhile to revise some of the concepts that have been introduced in the previous pages. In doing so we will tie them together so they do not appear to be separate topics, but rather all parts of one story. To do this they will be considered in a different sequence than when they were first introduced.

The order will be:

- | | |
|-------------------|-------------------------|
| 1. One Total Mind | 4. Self - Sense |
| 2. Akashic Record | 5. Centre Consciousness |
| 3. Yes and No | 6. Invisible Light |

ONE TOTAL MIND

There is a total intermingling between ourselves and the environment around us. We are not separate from other people or things. There is one total mind of which we are part. While we continue to cling to believing we are separate we limit ourselves to one little box. When we realize our linkup to the universe the box bursts open; the limits are removed; and our awareness expands without limits. This is the process of Nuclear Evolution.

We can test this linkup even now with our limited consciousness.

Here are a few experiments you can perform:

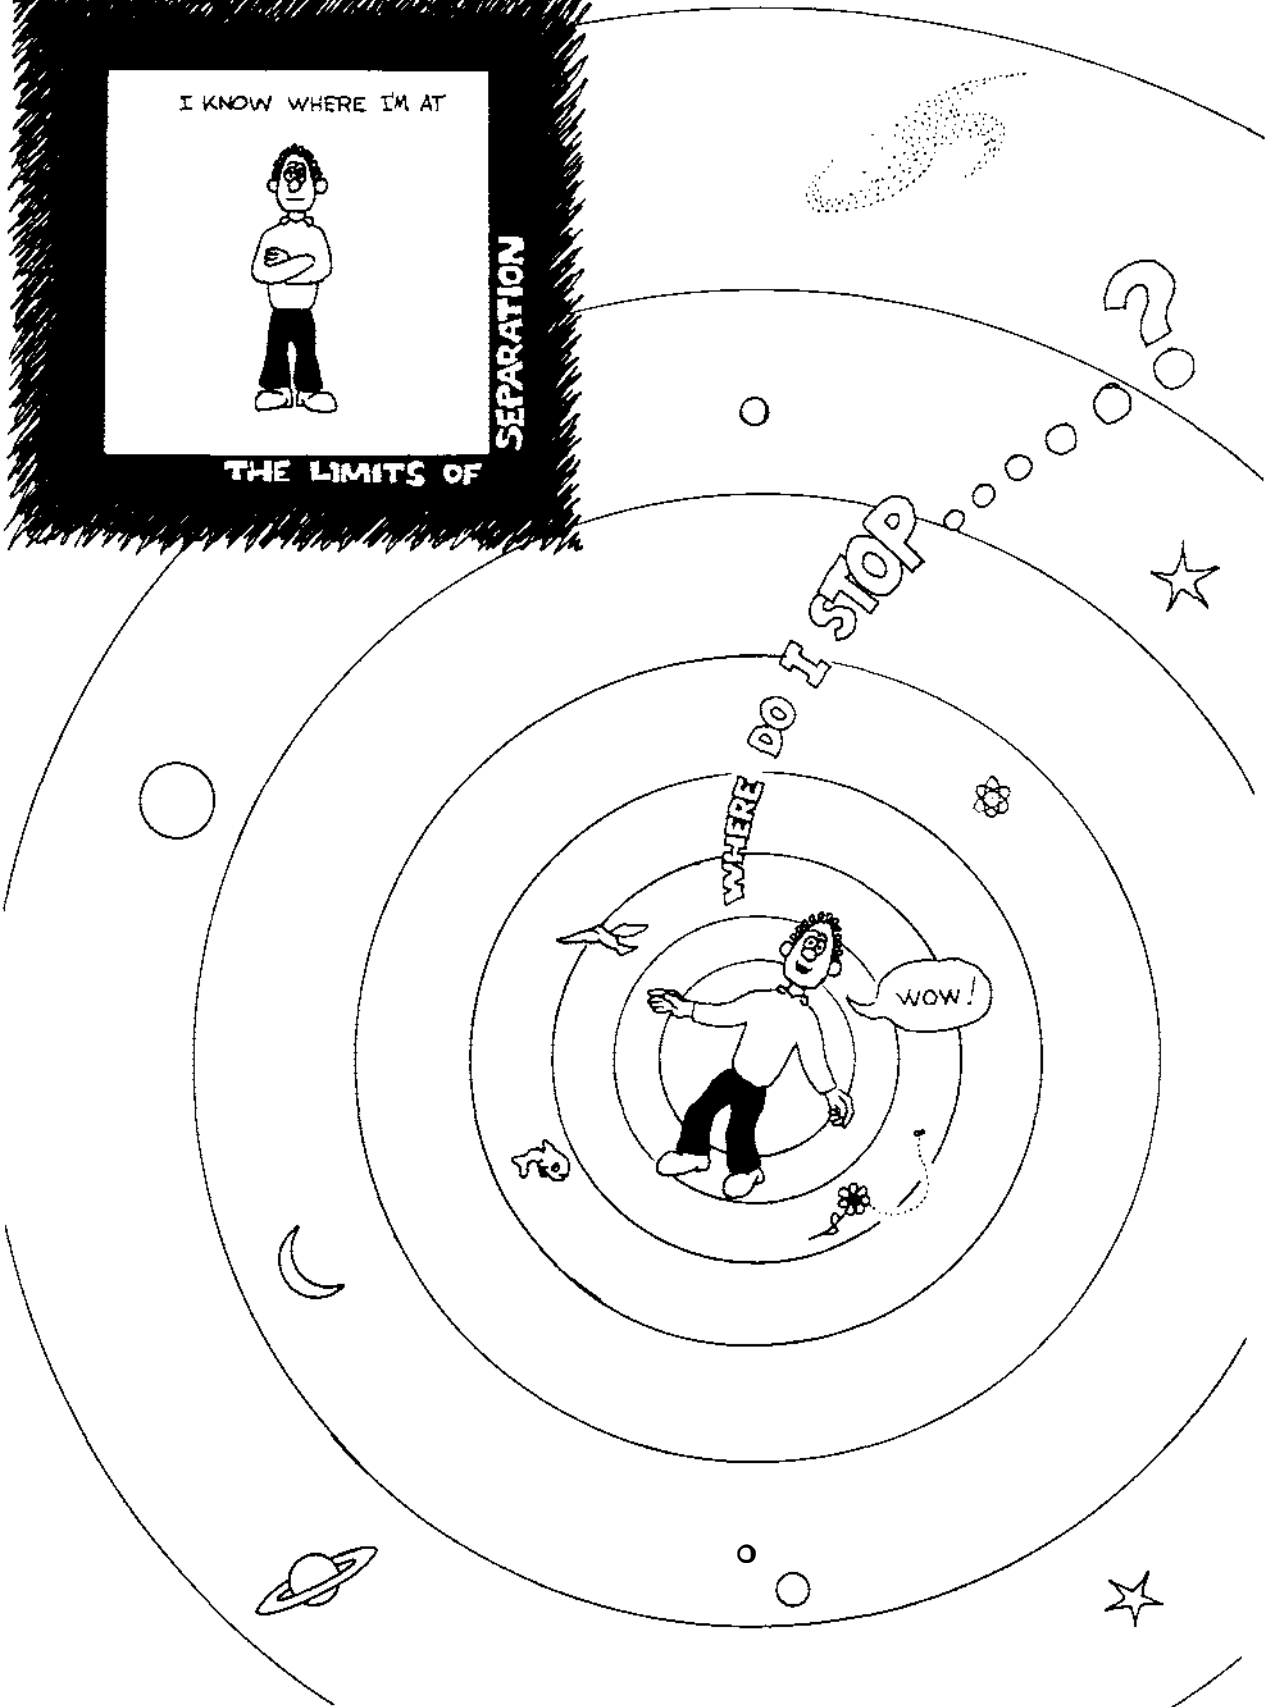

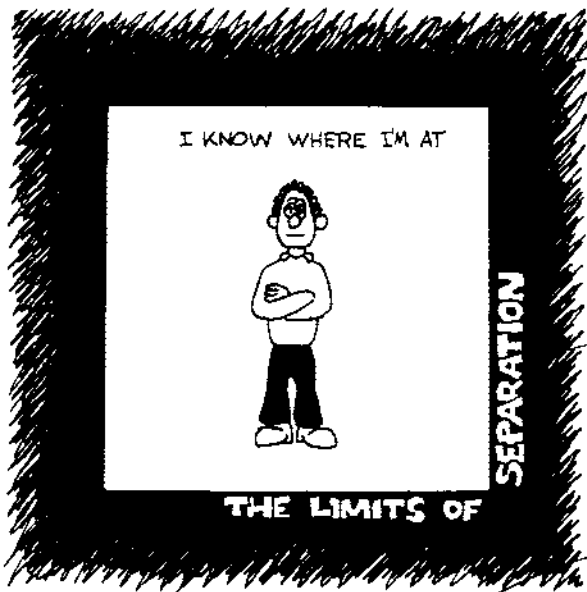

- 1) Go around being cheerful all day, and watch the effect it has on others.
- 2) Get a calendar and note when the next full moon occurs. Watch your behaviour during the evening of the full moon. If this type of enquiry is new to you, it might be better for you to observe the actions of someone else who you know well. It is easier to see changes in another.
- 3) Note how you act differently around different people. What vibrations are they giving off that affect you in this way?

As your consciousness expands and your angle of awareness increases, you will eventually reach the state where all the information in the universe is available to you. From the singing of the smallest atomic particle to the thoughts in the minds of OTHERS and the actions in DISTANT galaxies. When this happens you will realize

THERE ARE NO OTHERS.

THERE IS NO DISTANCE.

YOU ARE PART OF EVERYTHING.

EXPANDED AWARENESS

THE AKASHIC RECORD

Even though you have not attained this degree of awareness it does not alter the reality that all the information of the universe is available to us now. It does not matter if the event is from the past, present or future. The event exists now, in what we call the Akashic Record. The Akashic Record is a huge cosmic computer storage. Any thought, any action, any inaction, by anybody goes into this storage. At a later date, when you least expect it, out pops this action or thought to trip you up, or to put you to some test.

KARMA

Only when you pass that test and lay the karma to rest will the computer erase it from its tapes.

To bring this down to earth to practical living let us look at the situation we are now in, since it is a result of our past programming of the Akashic computer. In my own life I can determine why the situation I am in exists:

- (a) Why don't I finish projects?
- (b) Why can't I communicate to the group when I see the need?
- (c) Why do I shut off women once we become very close?

The answers to these questions are:

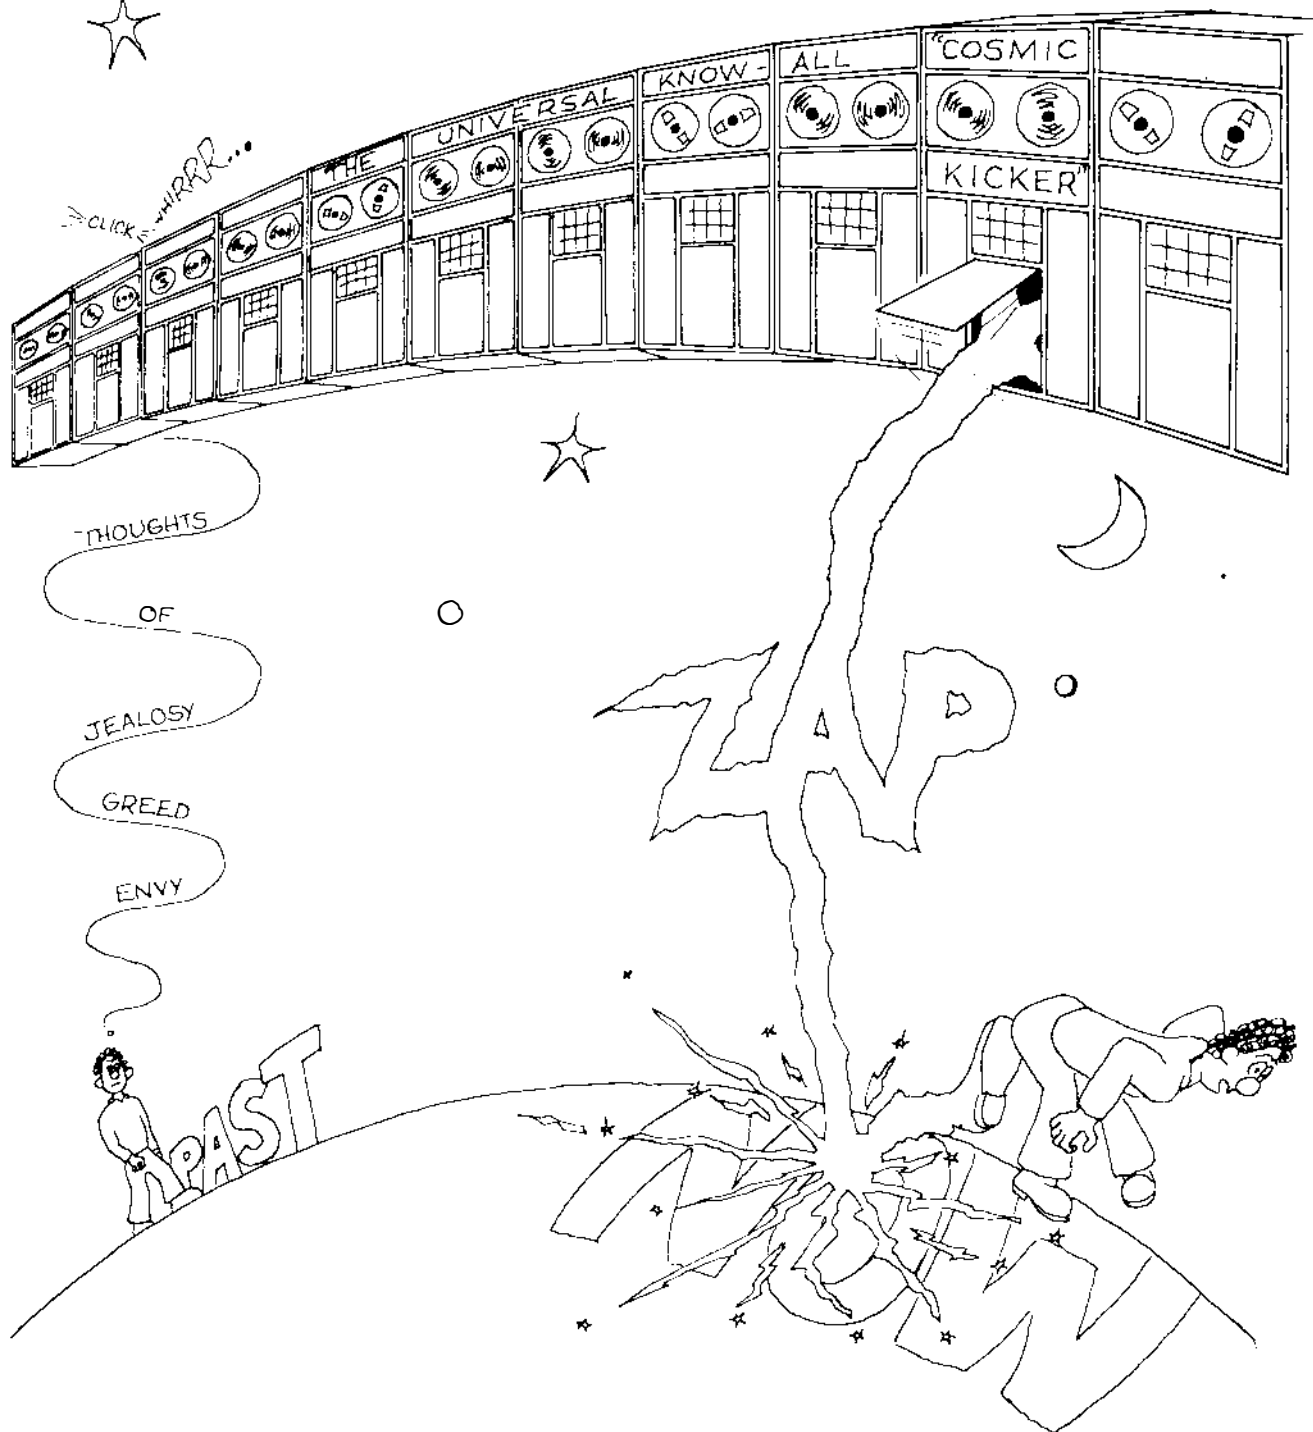

- (a) Searching for the ego food that starting a project brings, but which fades when the work of doing the task has to be done.
- (b) Reacting too much when I see the need. And projecting my need as the group's. Also, presenting the idea in a condescending attitude.
- (c) I get wary of my attachment to sex and react from realizing I am still a Sex Addict. This repulses me and so I shift the blame onto the girl and shut off.

Knowing these answers is only the first step for there is an Akashic Record Law which states:

THE SEVENTH LAW OF CONSCIOUSNESS

YOU CAN'T DO WHAT YOU THINK OR SAY YOU CAN UNTIL YOU DO IT.

So the next step after seeing our karmic patterns is to break them.

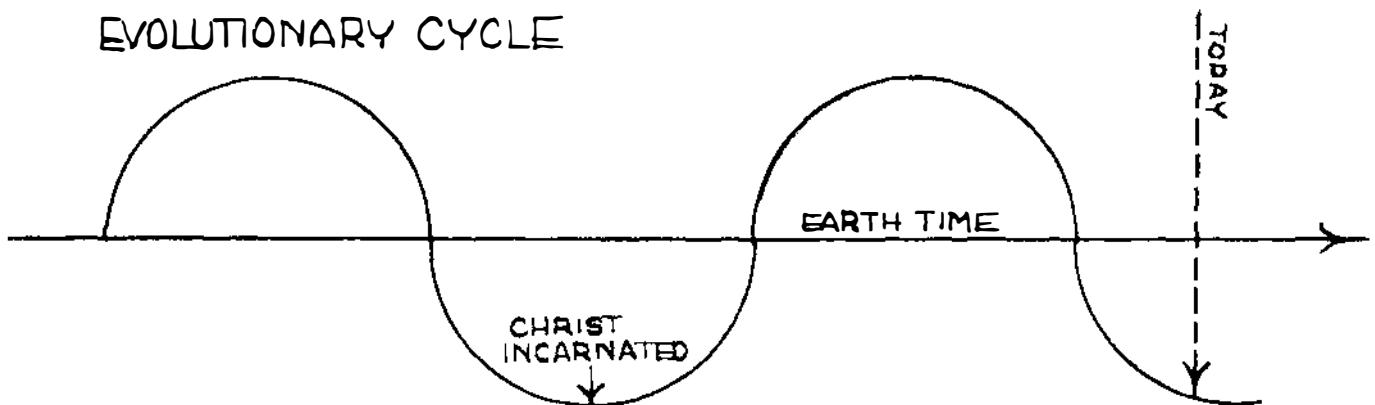

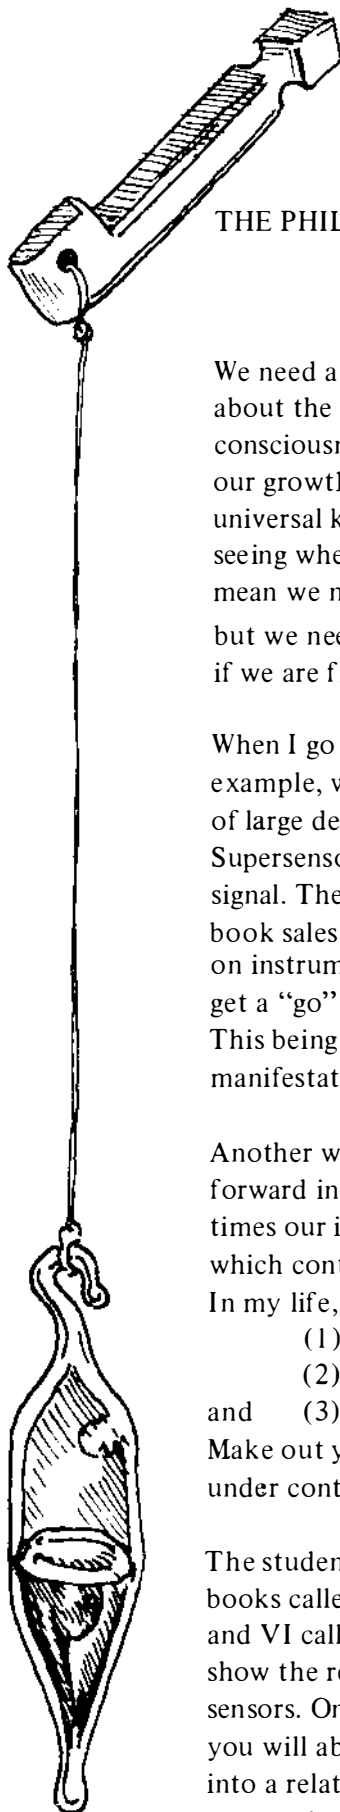

UNIVERSAL KARMA

Since there is one big universal hookup, you are subject to everyone else's karma. Village, state, country, job, marriage and friends' karmas must all be looked at. If you are free of a person's karma with whom you are close that is fine, but if their karma is affecting your life and hence you are absorbing their karma, then it is best to end the relationship. This same argument applies equally well to your job. Country karma can be seen in wars and the devastation wars cause. Constant pollution of the seas is causing a lack of fish to the extent that some areas are completely barren.

City smog is karma,
Road accidents are karma,
Our hectic way of life is karma,
Cancer is karma,
Street violence is karma
Crime is karma

There is a lot of work here for all of us if we are to turn the tide of evolution around.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF YES AND NO

We need a method of tuning into our karma so we can bring about the change needed to comply with the fifth law of consciousness. Then all these negative situations can be used for our growth, and will actually be welcomed. We can tap into this universal knowledge by using Yes and No questions and simply seeing when the cosmic intelligence is with us. This does not mean we need to go around asking questions with every action, but we need to be aware of what is happening at all times to see if we are flowing with the cosmic will or trying to push against it.

GO & NO-GO

When I go against the flow I get a “things are not go” feeling. For example, while in Los Angeles, I spent a morning calling buyers of large department stores for an appointment to show the Supersensonic instruments, but not one was in. This was a “no go” signal. Therefore, for the remainder of the week I concentrated on book sales and was very successful in this area. The “no go” signal on instruments was for that week. This does not mean that I won’t get a “go” signal the next week to sell the tools.

This being in and out of tune is seen throughout my daily manifestations.

FUTURE KARMA

Another way of knowing the universal will is to progress an act forward in time to see the result of an action or inaction. Many times our inactions and lack of disciplines are indulgences. All of which control us. We lose in growth every time we indulge ourselves. In my life, I have problems with:

- (1) getting up early
- (2) meditating regularly
- and (3) writing daily

Make out your own list of inactions and systematically bring them under control.

SUPERSENSONICS

The students at the University of the Trees have written a series of books called The Supersensitive Life of Man, of which volumes III and VI called Supersensonics and Alive to the Universe, respectively, show the reader how to tune into the universe by using selective sensors. One of these sensors is particularly useful in determining if you will absorb the karma of a person who you are about to enter into a relationship with. All these sensors give Yes or No answers to questions you ask.

SELF - SENSE

The separation function of our ego brings an illusion of a self-sense. Hence, we feel we are not part of the total environment and that we are separate from the Akashic Record. This ego separation is due to the illusion of seeing others as bodies from which my body is separate. It is this identification with our bodies that causes the illusion of separation from others and the environment.

ILLUSIONS:

An illusion is based on real things. If we see someone following us for many miles we might become paranoid and think “they are after me” or “why are they following me?” Then, when they eventually take a different turn to us, we realize our paranoia was an illusion.

DELUSIONS:

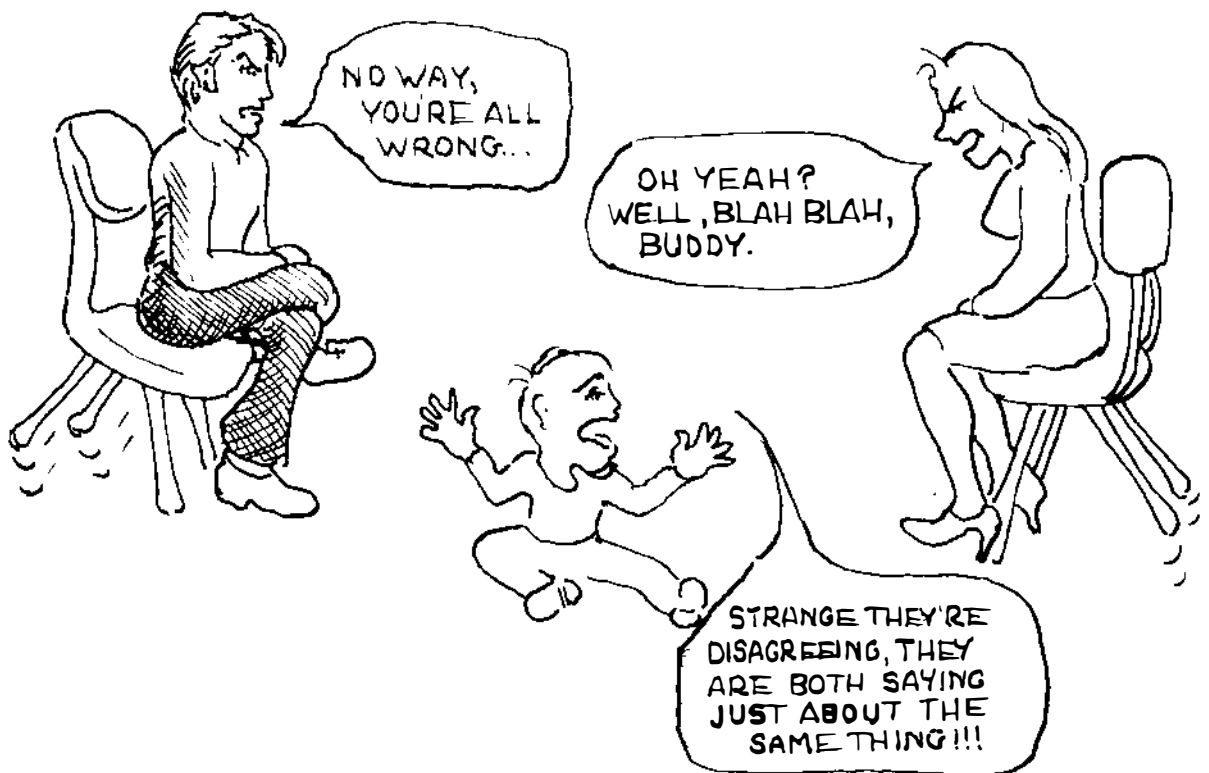

A delusion is when nobody is actually following us and yet we think somebody is. This form of paranoia is destructive. So delusions are always harmful since they are based on NOTHING real. A common form of delusion is when we project our own problems on others as their problems.

HALLUCINATIONS:

A hallucination is based on reality and hence does not lead us astray as delusions do. Dreams are hallucinations based on what has happened to us on that day. Interpreting them can greatly aid us in letting us know where we are REALLY at. For we normally suppress the real base cause of our problems. Psychomatic readings of objects and pictures are hallucinations based on the vibrations that the object is in resonance with. On touching the photograph of a missing person we might receive a cold shudder and a falling sensation and conclude the person fell over some cliff. This is based on reality.

CENTRE CONSCIOUSNESS

This self-sense causes onlooker consciousness. We think we are separate from others and, therefore, we behave as observers. From this position we judge others' actions; act self-righteously; and become self-obsessed. If we can learn to view situations from the Centre a different reality is seen. Not only in physical situations but in personal interactions. When someone is talking or acting or reacting, if we have observer consciousness we will respond with our egos out front and real communication will not occur. Whereas, if we get inside them, into their centre, and see where they are coming from, we can know what are they really saying. In Nuclear Evolution, our group is learning to understand each other's levels of consciousness in an effort to drop our egos when we communicate. When we have reached this state we will have achieved – Group Consciousness – the next evolutionary step for mankind.

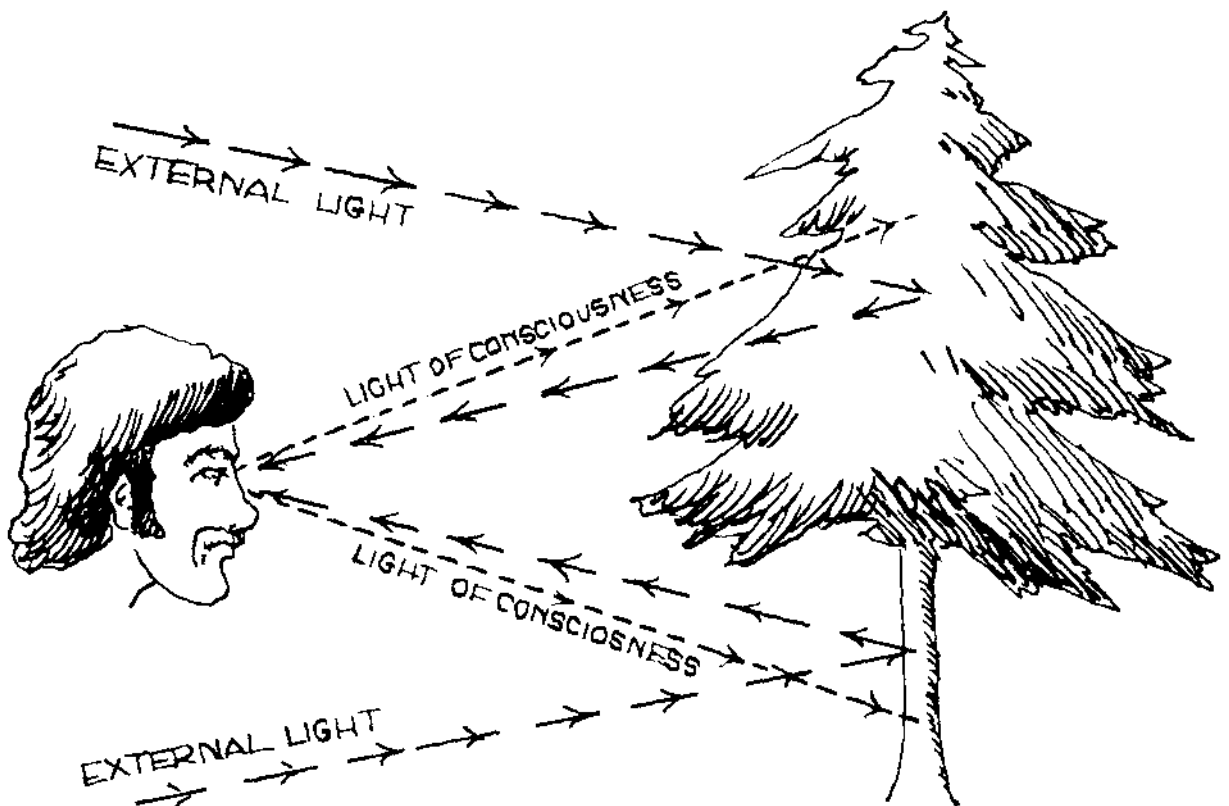

INVISIBLE LIGHT

The light of consciousness combined with the external light in the Akasha make perception possible. Both these lights are invisible and yet when combined enable us to see.

CONSCIOUSNESS (INTERNAL LIGHT) + EXTERNAL LIGHT
= VISION

These lights are only one and the same in the Akasha. The light of consciousness in ourselves is subjected to many trips and it becomes distorted. We see a tree because the light of consciousness is filtered through our sense. Everybody's view of the tree will be different due to the filters they use to view the world. Scientists, artists, builders, lovers and dogs all view the same tree differently depending on their levels of consciousness. What we are seeing as a tree is external light plus our consciousness.

Here is a question for you to meditate on. If your consciousness was pure what would be your reality when looking at a tree?

REPEATING KARMA

Consciousness plus light in the Akashic Record unfolds our good and bad karma. Remember here that karma is just the trips that we put ourselves through. The way our consciousness filters through our levels controls our awareness of all situations, i.e. of seeing a tree or the akasha in the tree. In our imaginations we can experience things that we have done. We can feel skin, excitement, speed, highs etc. all in our imagination, and so we repeat those experiences that we find pleasing, even though they might be working against our evolution.

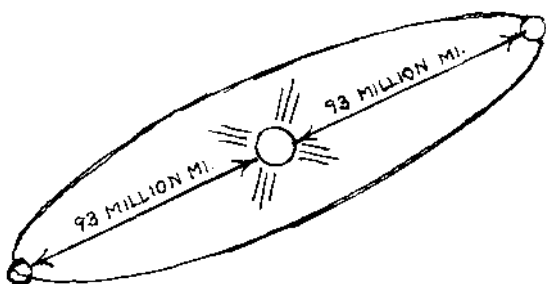

SEXUAL KARMA

I had a real gem of a trip going for me here. I was and still am hooked on sex. I could not leave it alone. Every night would find me with some woman or another until in the end I threw my back out and could not walk. After 10 days in a hospital in traction I was enjoying sex again, completely ignoring the cosmic lesson. Eventually my physical and psychic states were shattered. I could barely walk using crutches and my mind was confused no end. Yet I still did not give up my addiction. I then met Christopher Hills who, over a year, guided my mental state to repair and then, as a result of his teachings I realized that this addiction must be brought under control. My back was still giving excruciating pain and I was still indulging in sex as often as possible. Unfortunately, I had to take the same stringent steps of renunciation that any other addict must (drug, alcoholic, gambling). Now, a year later, I am still hooked on the idea of sex, but at least the physical act is under control and I can make progress in learning more about sex and its function in evolution.

NUCLEAR EVOLUTION

Having developed all these karmic patterns we go round and around, trapped in our Akashic Record, incarnation after incarnation. The mass of mankind is caught in this very slow learning process — only changing when they have to. Our continual failures teach us when we have had enough. Then we change. If you want to evolve faster and change the downward cycle of our society join a group practicing Nuclear Evolution. Here all your patterns will be shown to you by the group, so that you can work on them one by one. The group will also help you erase the patterns. Having once exposed the patterns to you the group will vigilantly point out when you are about to repeat a pattern. This hard work on ourselves is done in an atmosphere of caring and love. We all bask in the joy when someone changes. The changes we have seen at our Centre have been remarkable, almost miraculous. Some of the effects of Nuclear Evolution are that it transcends our Akashic Record, wipes out our karma, and transcends all we have ever been. I can only thank God, that something in my past karma allows me to be here now, a student of Nuclear Evolution, and a student of Christopher Hills.

THE SENSE(LESS) TRAP

On earth our reality is tied to the skin and its senses. This is the red / physical level of awareness. Our senses are governed by the maximum velocity of the speed of light (c), and is set up by the earth's orbit around the sun. As we have previously illustrated, light takes 1000 seconds, approximately, to travel the diameter of the earth's orbit, which is 93 million miles in radius. The velocity of light is found by dividing the distance by the time to give 186,000 miles/second (c).

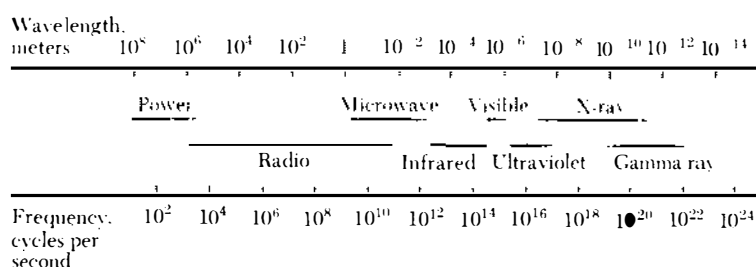

$$\begin{aligned} \text{velocity} &= \text{distance} / \text{time} \\ v &= D/T \\ c &= \frac{186,000,000}{1000} = 186,000 \text{ miles/sec.} \end{aligned}$$

If we assume the orbit approximates a circle, then the circumference of the earth's orbit is a constant times the diameter. This constant is called pi (π).

$$\text{orbit circumference} = \pi D$$

So this circumference is a boundary in which the velocity of light governs our physical world; our sight, smell, touch, taste and hearing. Our physical reality is based on electromagnetic radiation covering a wide range of frequencies. All these different waves travel at the velocity of light.

The electromagnetic spectrum

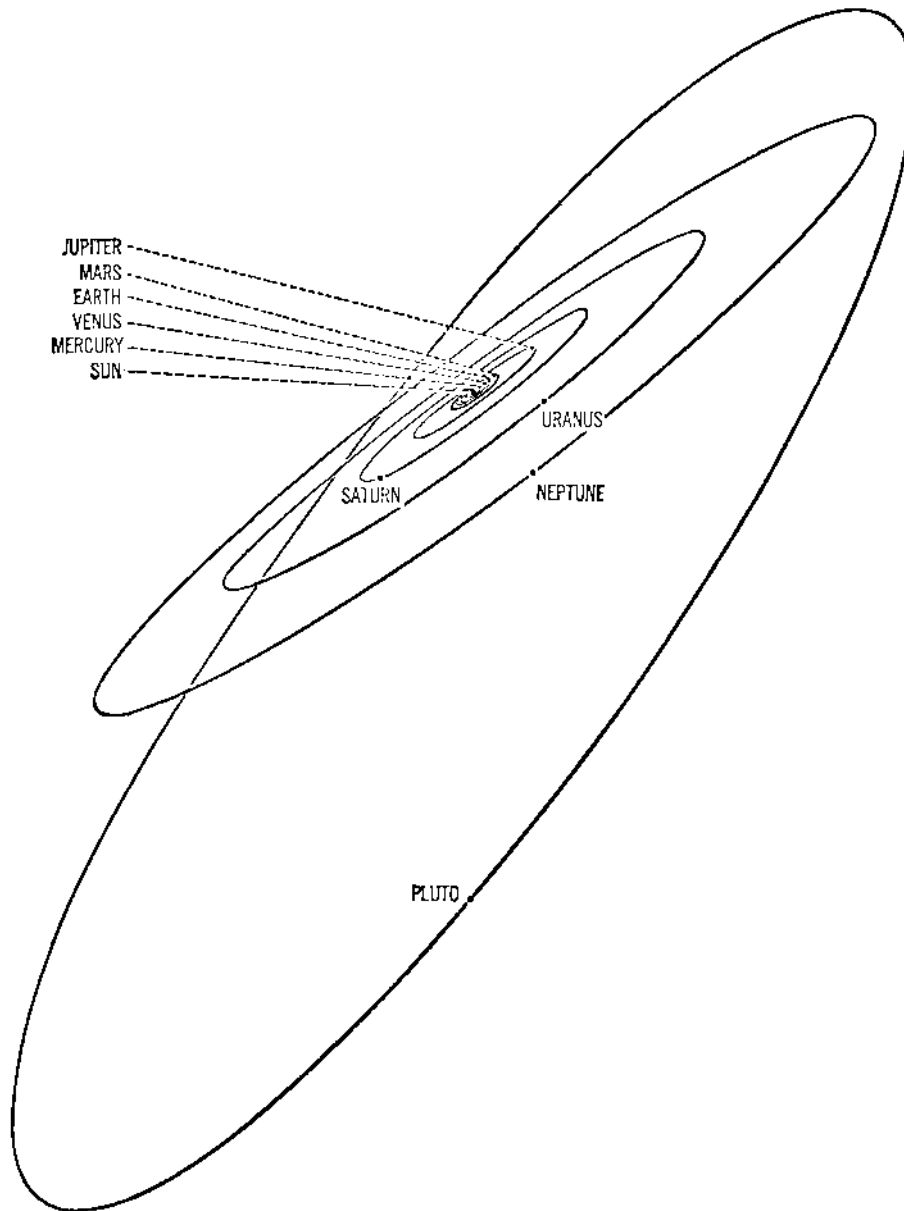

The electromagnetic spectrum. Note: Wavelength and frequency scales are logarithmic.

SUN CONSCIOUSNESS

The sun is at the centre of this system. All life on the earth comes from the sun through the process of heat, and photosynthesis. So the source of our consciousness is also the sun. Now, if we could only identify with the sun as our centre, our view of the world would be different, and we would not identify with our bodies and be imprisoned in our senses.

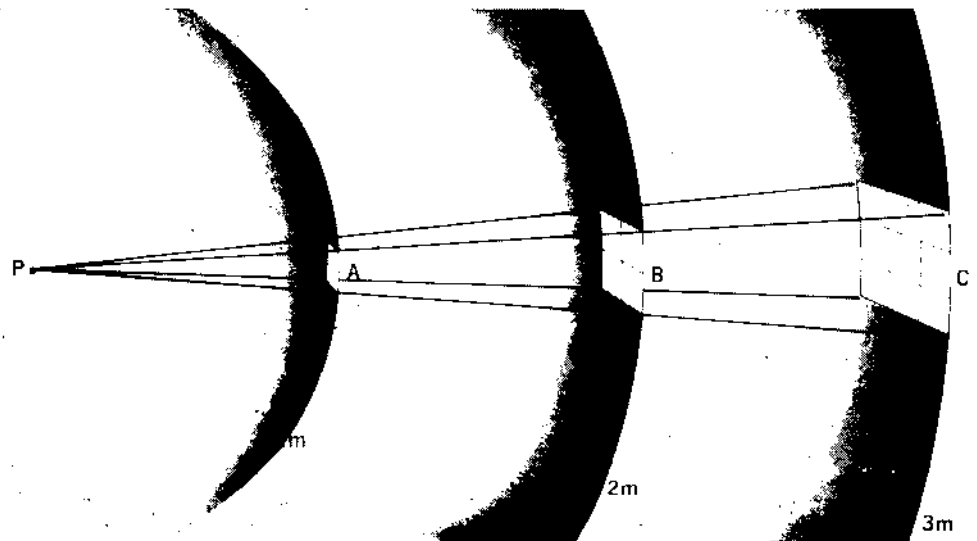

CENTER-CONSCIOUSNESS

THE SOLAR SYSTEM, drawn schematically.

THE INVERSE SQUARE LAW

Science tells us that all physical phenomena that impinge on our senses obey the inverse square law. In the diagram below, a source of light at P covers an area of 1 square at A, a distance of 1 meter from the source, P. When this area is doubled to 2 meters the light covers an area of 4 squares, i.e., $(2)^2$, and at a distance of 3 meters the area covered is 9 squares $(3)^2$. The inverse square law states that the intensity of a source (light, sound, heat, radioactivity, etc.) falls off as the square of the distance from the source. So the intensities are 1, $1/4$, and $1/9$.

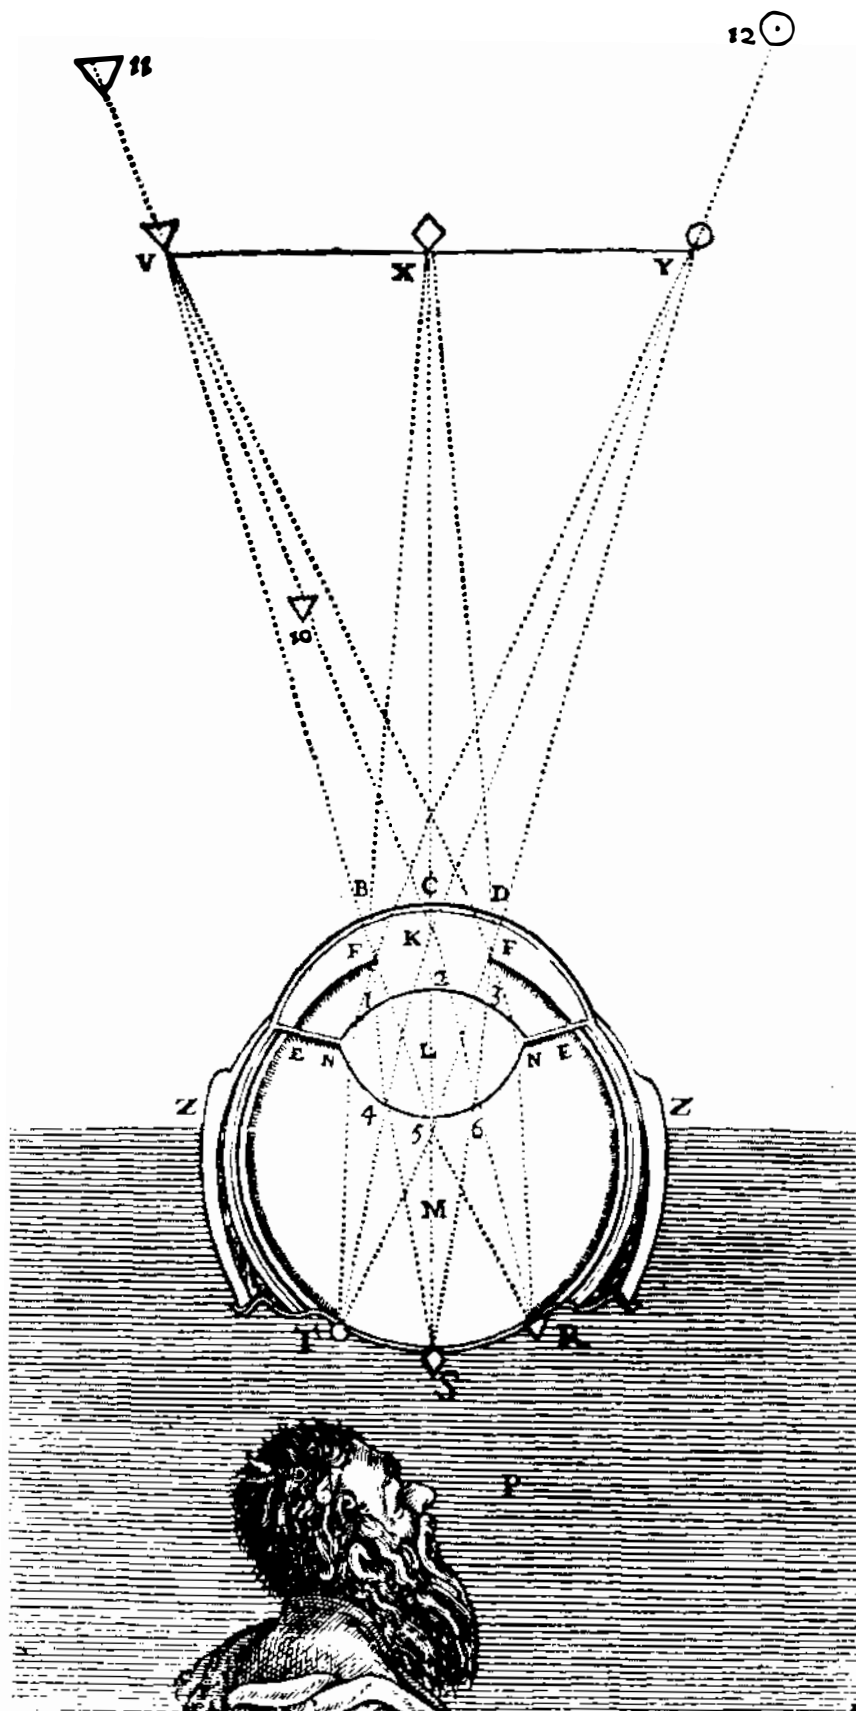

The illumination on a surface varies inversely as the square of the distance from the luminous source.

DESCARTES

This can be seen to be true for all detecting equipment, but* science has overlooked that this law does not hold for SIGHT. In fact, scientists say our eyes work just like a camera. In the classical experiment by Descartes, he removed the eye of an ox and scraped the back of the eye to make it transparent. Here he observed on the retina the inverted image of a scene. Yes, this is exactly the way a camera works. But can you see the error in this experiment in applying the results to our eyes or Descartes's eyes? Here Descartes looks at the ox eye with observer consciousness. He is not the ox eye but his own eye onlooking. In this manner he neglects the effect of his own consciousness on the experiment.

With the exception of Vasco Ronchi, Director of the Istituto Nazionale di Ottica in Florence, Italy.*

DESCARTES'S OBSERVER CONSCIOUSNESS

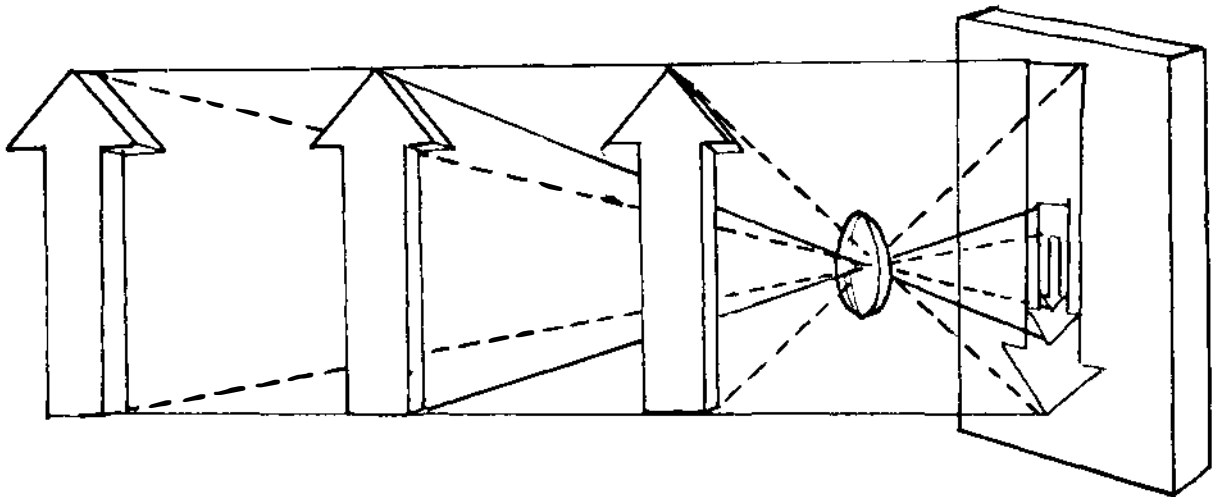

OPTICAL ANALYSIS BY DESCARTES included an experiment in which he removed the eye of an ox, scraped the back of the eye to make it transparent and observed on the retina the inverted image of a scene. The illustration is from Descartes's essay La Dioptrique.

THE EYE AND CONSCIOUSNESS

If we take a photograph of an object, an upside-down image is found on the film whose size is governed by the inverse square law. As the object approaches the camera the image gets larger, but the size of the object stays the same.

A camera seems to “represent” the eye since its lens is ground to give an image of what the eye sees. We can use lenses on cameras which distort the image to one unobtainable by the human eye.

Now if we take the slide produced by this camera and project it on a screen we see the object. As we move the screen away from the projector the object gets bigger, and as we move the screen towards the projector the object gets smaller. All in accordance with the inverse square law for light. Sound, gravity, radioactive decay, heat, static electricity, in fact, all electromagnetic radiation obeys the inverse square law, but consciousness does not.

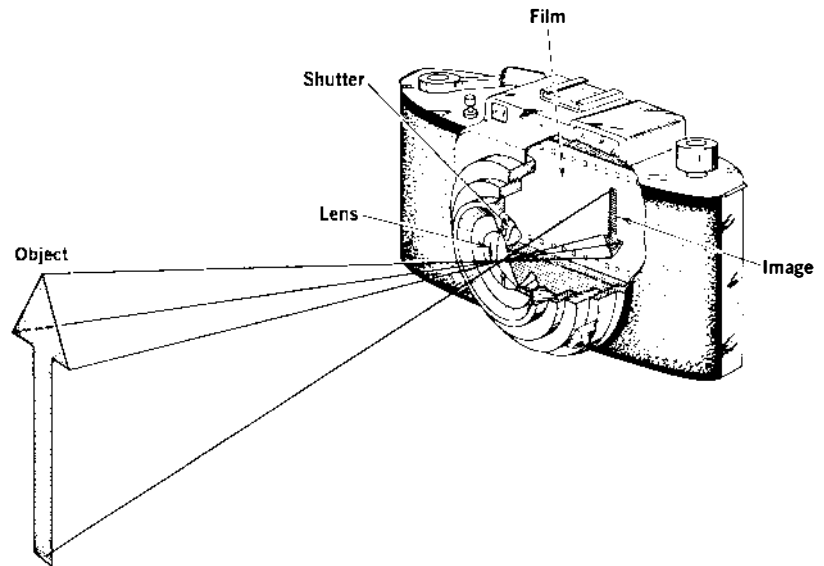

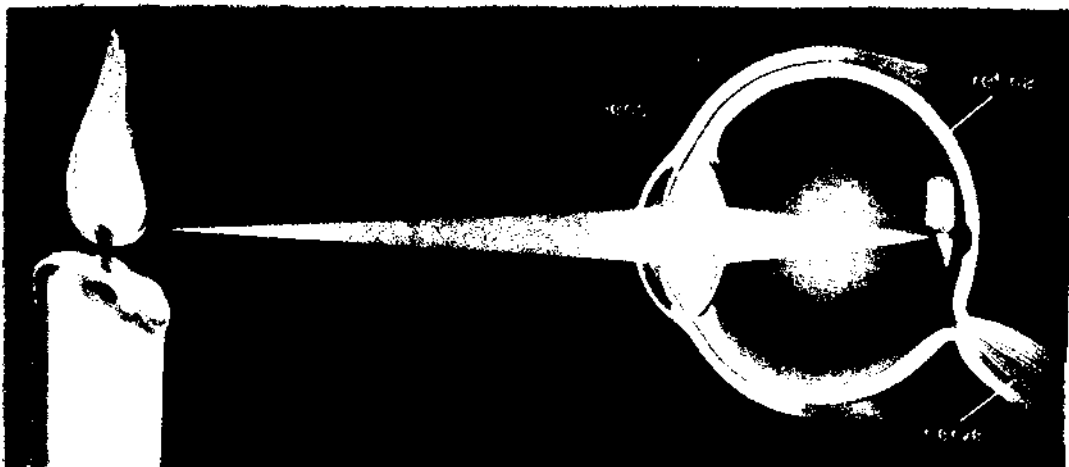

Fig. 16-38. The formation of an image in a camera.

Today's scientists tell us that the eye works like a camera. This is not correct. For an eye to work like a camera, all eyes would have to be built the same to very fine tolerances just as lenses in cameras are. The finer the tolerance, the more identical the picture will be. But no two human eyes or cameras are built the same, and tolerances are so wide that everyone must see a different picture if the camera theory is correct. The fact is, the psyche adjusts the picture and rebuilds it in the mind. Moreover, the type of eye lens is not like a camera.

HOW DO WE REALLY SEE?

Here is a simple experiment which shows how our sight really works. Find yourself a partner and each of you place one hand between your two faces, as illustrated. The distance between your faces being two hands. Observe the size of your partner's face.

Now increase the separation to four hands by placing your other hands as illustrated.

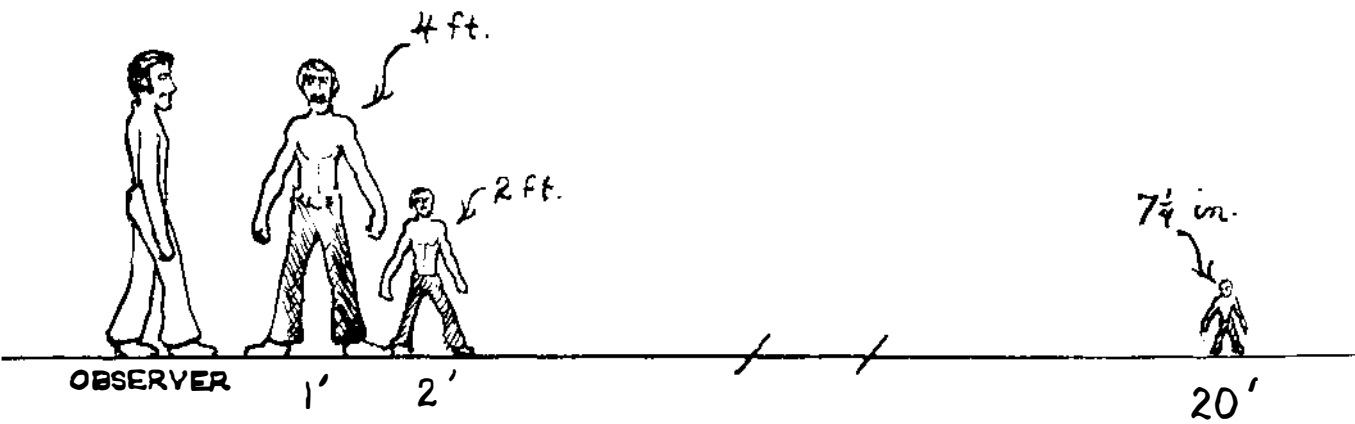

Now that you have doubled the distance between your faces, the inverse square law says that the face you are seeing should be one quarter of its size. In other words the face should have shrunk by three quarters of its size. You can see that the reduction in size is quite small – more like $1/3$ of the original size. Here is proof then that:

THE INVERSE SQUARE LAW DOES NOT HOLD FOR SIGHT

VISION

Say we have a friend who at 1 foot away from us looks 4 feet tall. Then by the inverse square law at 2 feet away they will look 2 feet tall; and at 20 feet away less than one quarter of an inch tall. Clearly, this is not the way our perception works, and yet the inverse square law for sight has not been questioned except by Ronchi and Hills.

Distance (D)	1	2	20	feet
D ²	1	4	400	feet
Area	4	4/4=1	4/400= $\frac{1}{100}$	inch
Height	4	4/4=2	4/200 < $\frac{1}{4}$	inch

At this rate of shrinkage people would be just dots at 100 yards away from us. Clearly, our sight is not governed by this law.

EXPANSION AND SHRINKAGE

We have seen how light expands from a point source to quadruple its area as it doubles its distance from the source. So if sight followed this principle, people would expand similarly as they walked away from us, but they do not – they shrink with distance. How do we solve this problem of light expanding with distance and objects shrinking with distance?

IF OUR CONSCIOUSNESS IS INDISTINGUISHABLE
FROM INVISIBLE RADIATION
HOW DOES OUR CONSCIOUSNESS AFFECT WHAT WE SEE?

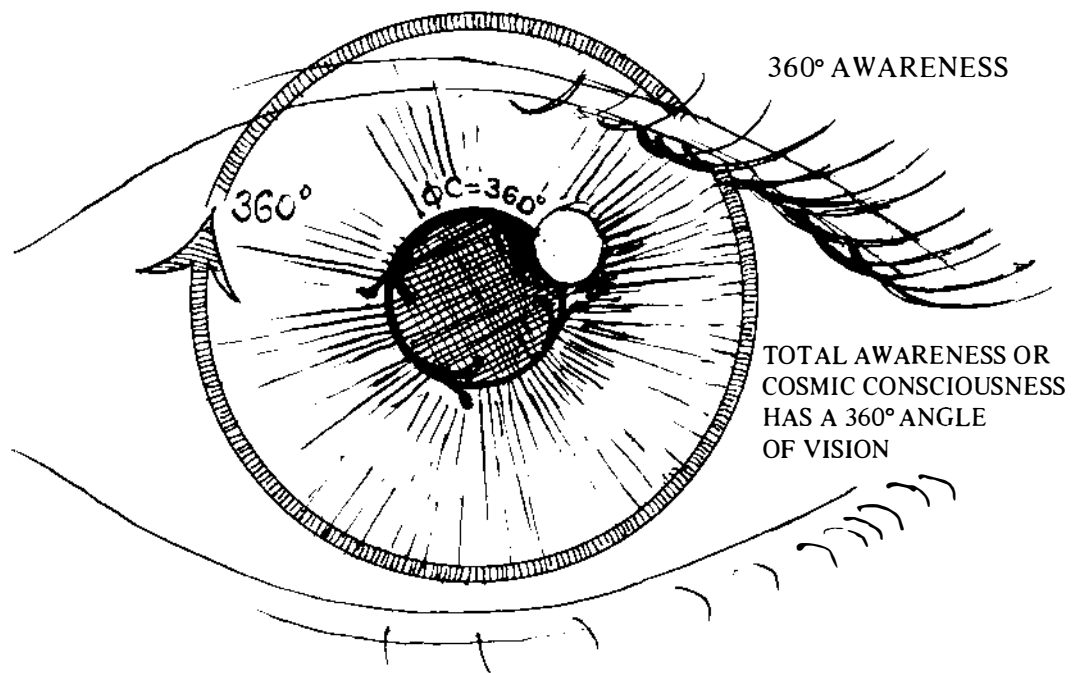

When we look at a photograph of a scene or an object, we are looking at a two-dimensional piece of paper. But our consciousness turns it into a three-dimensional view, so we see in 3-D.

Consciousness adds the space.

In a movie theatre the images on the screen are many feet taller than real-life people. But our consciousness adjusts the images to a comfortable (normal) size regardless of whether you are sitting close or far from the screen, which is against the inverse square law, as well as adding the 3-D aspect. While watching a movie our consciousness even has us identifying with these images. Furthermore, each person's consciousness sees the show differently, and in re-telling the story would tell it differently.

WHAT IS CONSCIOUSNESS?

One way we can answer this question is to see how consciousness validates our experiences. Our senses send us electrical signals which pass down our nerves. Something makes sense of these electrical impulses. That something is our consciousness. Our previous concept of the signal will govern our awareness of it. As our consciousness expands our awareness increases. Cosmic consciousness is 360° awareness.

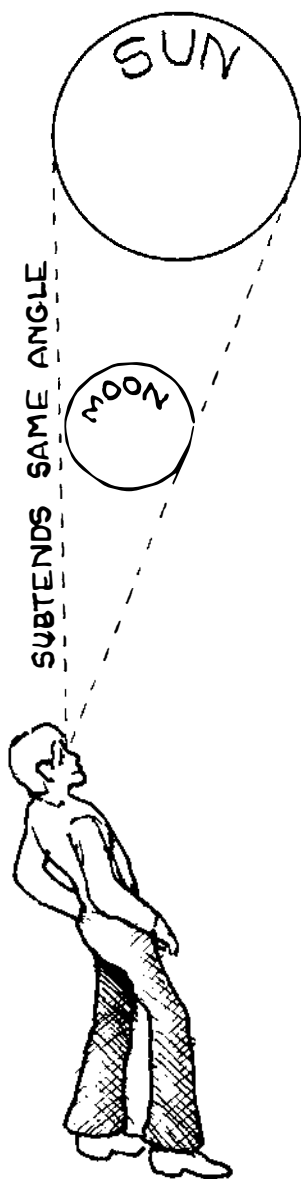

NUCLEAR EVOLUTION IN PRACTICE

What is consciousness then, but our awareness of life. Nuclear Evolution is the process of finding out what our awareness of life is. Once we have determined this we can expand our limited view of life. As our consciousness expands we become aware of all the things we can do.

A little over two years ago, after I had been living at the University of the Trees for a few months, I volunteered to write a book on Radiesthesia. I thought, like most people, "anyone can write a book." It never occurred to me that I could not. Month after month I struggled. After a year I had about twenty pages which, I realized later, were full of ego and were not useable. After eighteen months, I told Christopher I did not have what it took to manifest a book and that I could not write one. He then produced a newly printed sheet advertising the series The Super-sensitive Life of Man, of which my book was volume six.

Obviously, without letting me know Christopher had anticipated this move. I tried again and this time, using a different approach, produced sixty pages. Another fifty pages followed before Ann Ray moved onto campus. Ann has a doctorate in English and is an excellent writer and editor. She saw my dilemma and offered to help. For many months we worked side by side. She showed me how my writing style was unacceptable; compressed; and had most of the sentences written backwards. Even with Ann's help I took a day to write one page. So when Christopher suggested to the group that we each write a summary of his weekly Nuclear Evolution talks, I groaned. The one thing that I did not want was more writing. Fifteen pages a week were asked for on top of all the other work we were doing.

I took three weeks to complete the first summary. It was agony. The second summary took two days and the third was completed in one day, so was the fourth. FIFTEEN PAGES IN ONE DAY. That is quite a change, and change is the process of Nuclear Evolution. The changes in my consciousness and the blocks that had to fall away for this to occur are the miracles of Nuclear Evolution.

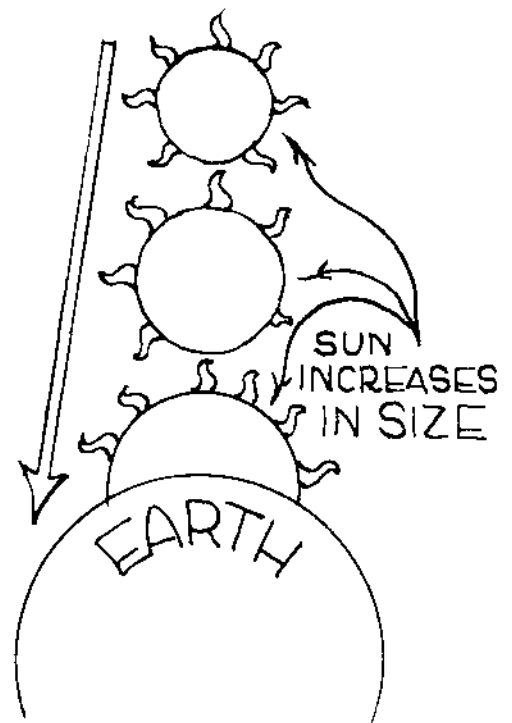

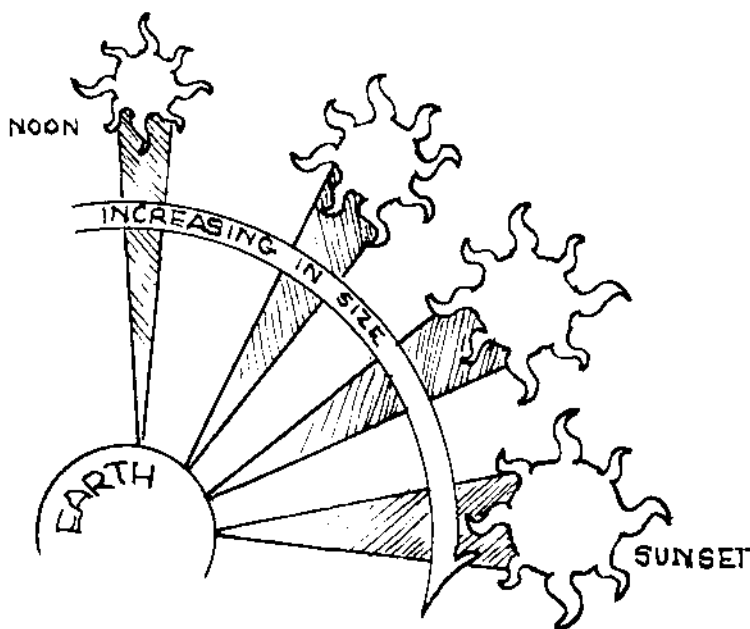

CONTINUING WITH THE WAY OUR CONSCIOUSNESS AFFECTS WHAT WE SEE.

Our consciousness makes mountains look nearer than they are. On a clear day the Sierra Mountains are visible from parts of the East San Francisco Bay Area. Without a sextant, which is governed by the inverse square law, it would be difficult to estimate their distance or heights.

The sun's diameter is 398 times larger than the moon's diameter. Yet when we look at them they look approximately the same size. But we say this is correct since the sun is 398 times further away from the earth than the moon, and when we measure their diameters using a sextant they both subtend the same angle. All in keeping with the inverse square law. But when we look at the sun and the moon our consciousness makes an adjustment and they look about the same distance away from us.

Our consciousness plays another trick when it looks at the sun at noon and at sunset. For at sunset the sun looks bigger. In fact, we see the sun get progressively larger from noon to sunset. Scientists say this is due to some refraction effect. But when we measure the angles subtended by the sun at noon and when it sets we find no difference; i.e. ($x = y$). It is our consciousness that expands the sun as it appears to get closer to the earth.

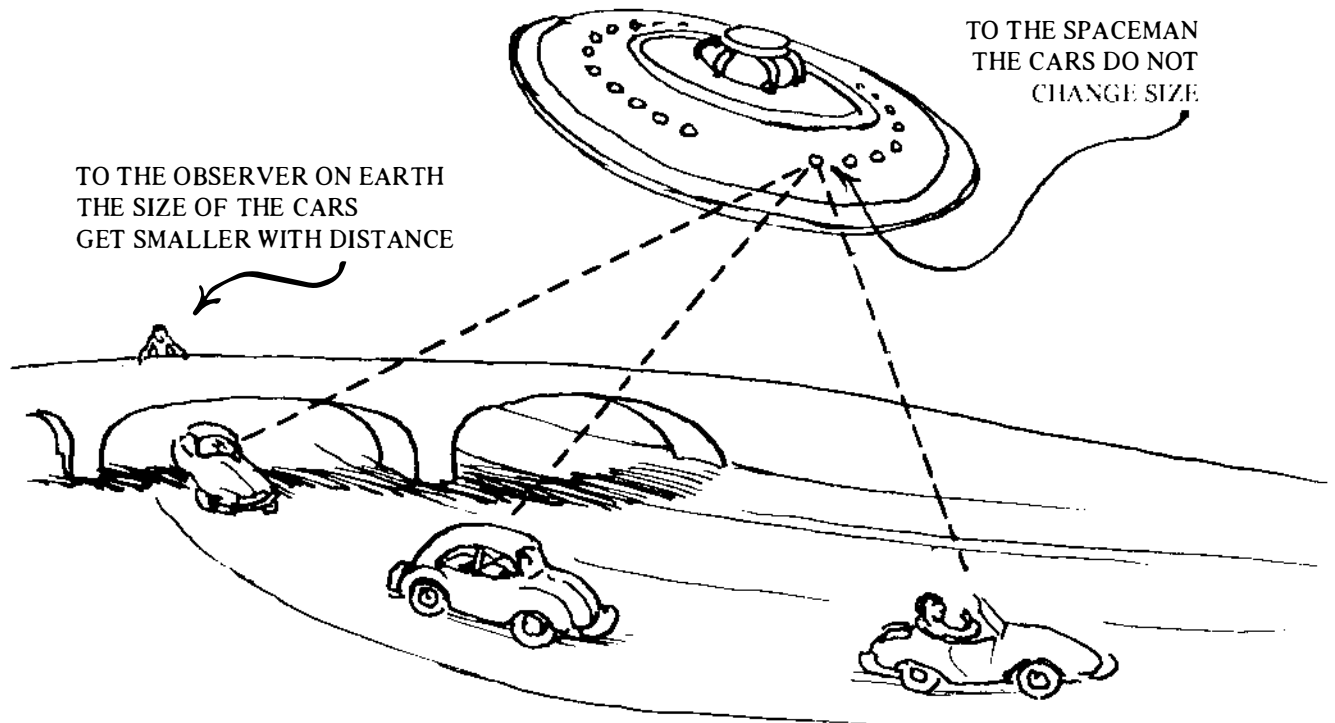

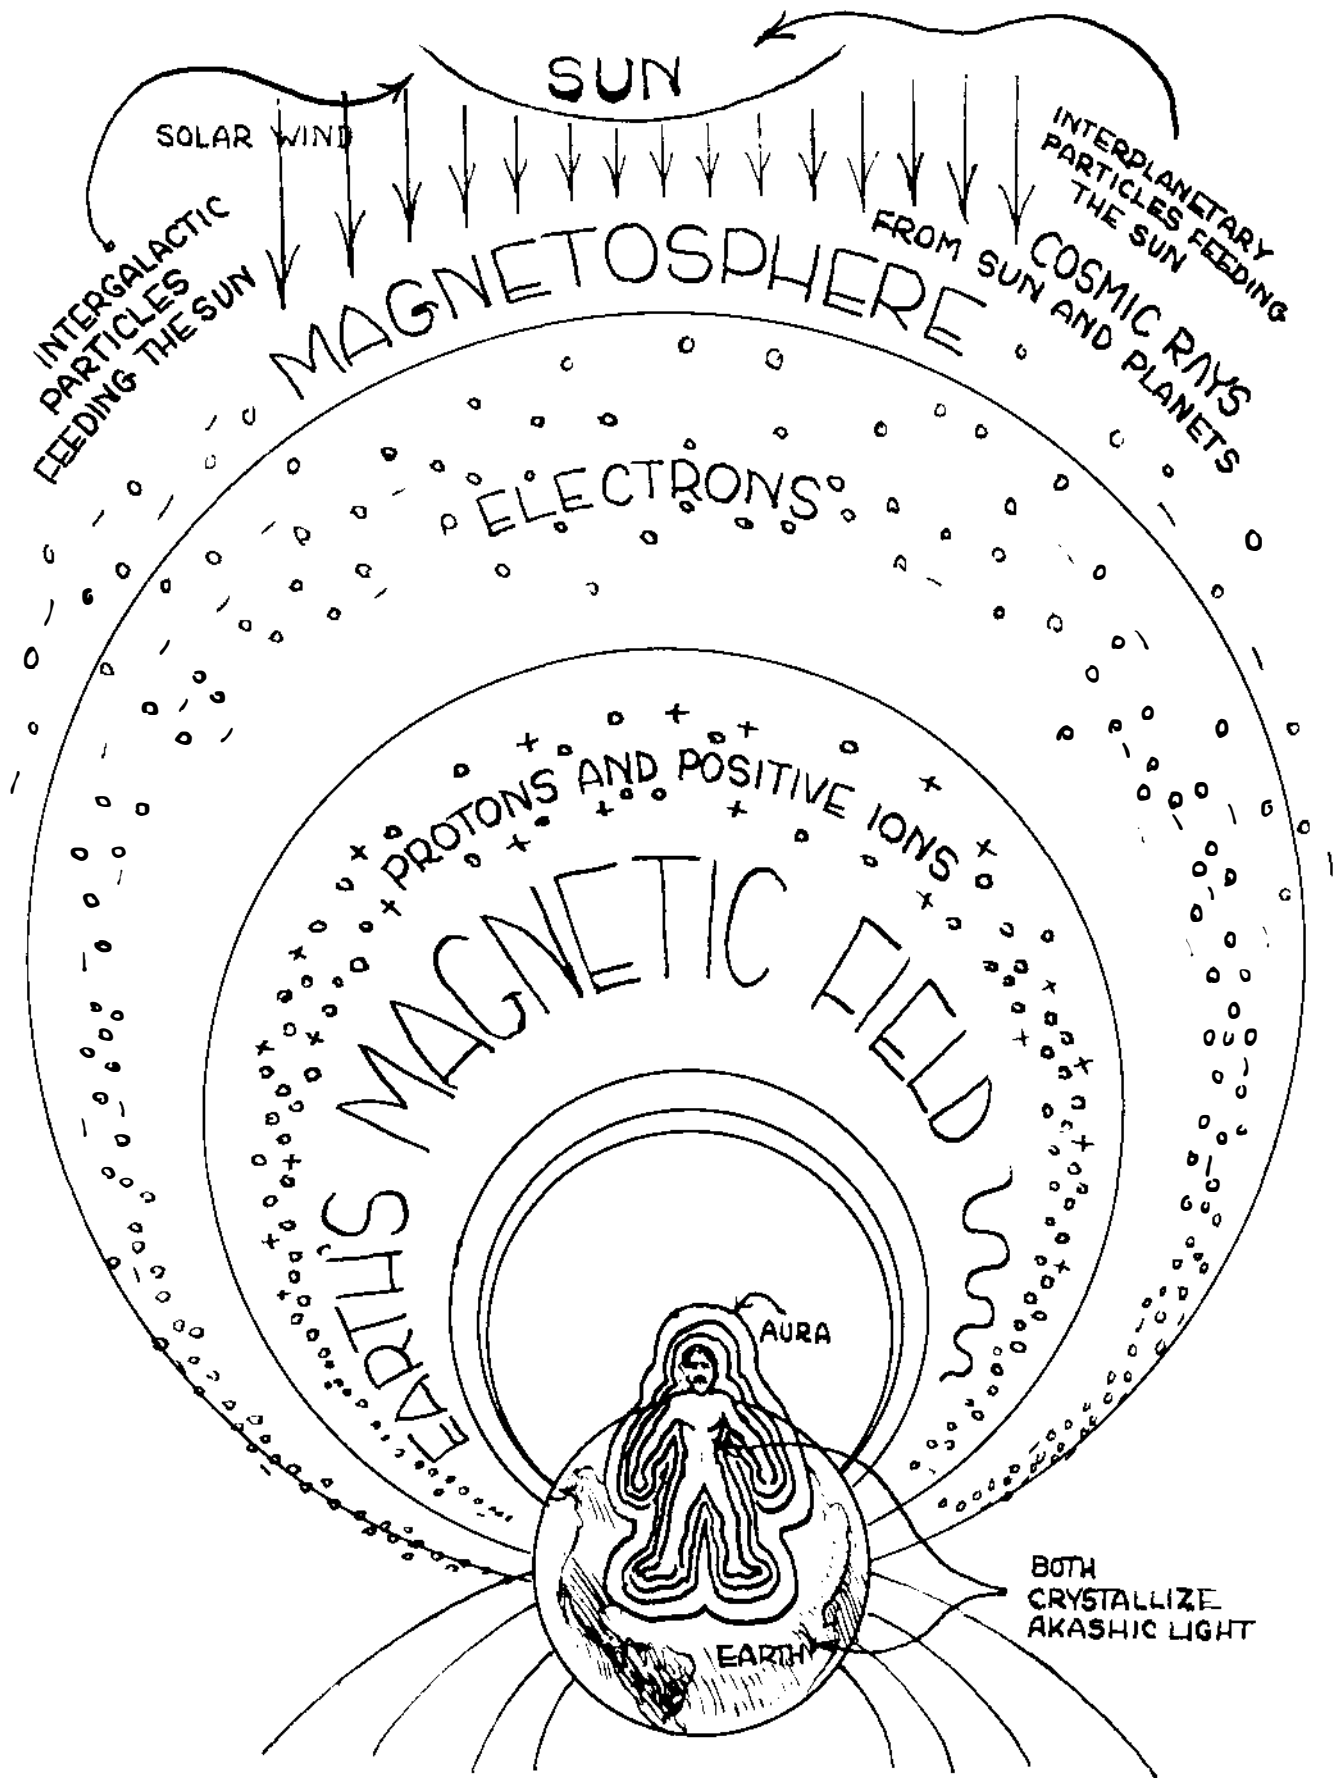

CONSCIOUSNESS AND SIGHT

Clearly, the physical boundaries do not apply to SIGHT. There must be in consciousness an exact opposite law. While our reality is tied to sitting in a body, consciousness must shrink objects with distance or our view of the world would be crazy. Consciousness shrinks as light expands.

But perhaps consciousness does not contract and light does not expand. Perhaps this is just an illusion of the physical world. Consciousness and light / akasha are the same. It is our perception of visible light / kasha which causes differences. With helicopter vision from outside our body we see that people do not shrink as they move away from each other. Again this is a problem of observer or onlooker consciousness vs. centre vision. Our senses tied to the velocity of light (c) create onlookers in the immediate now.

$c + \text{senses} = \text{onlookers (now)}$

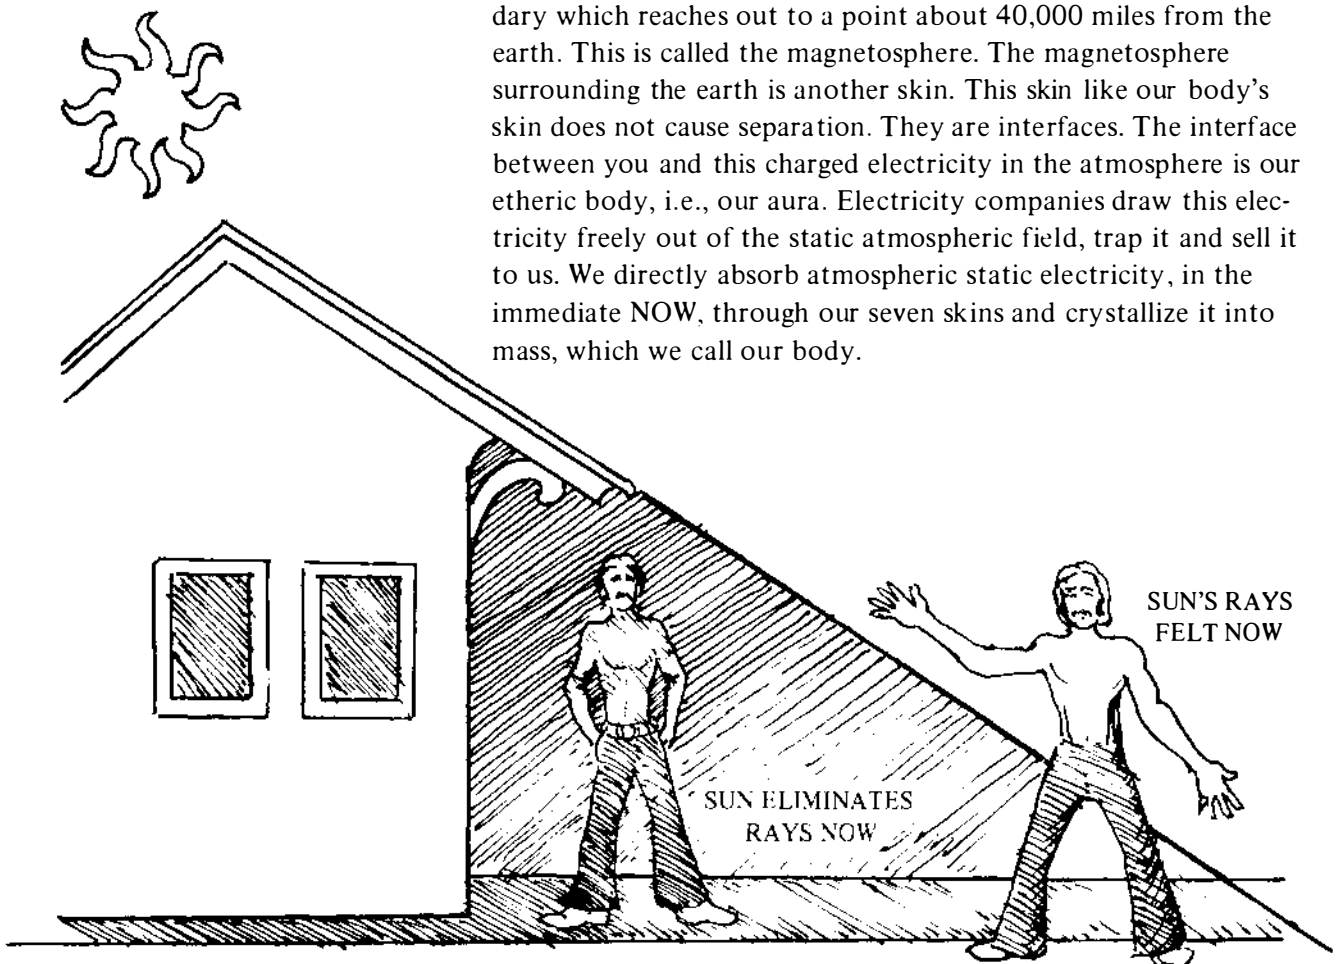

WHAT DOES BEING TRAPPED IN THE SPEED OF LIGHT MEAN?

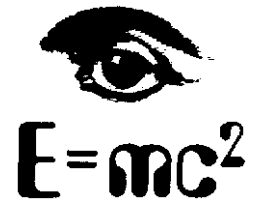

We have these seven skins, or levels of consciousness, through which light filters before it hits the nucleus. You can only experience a ray of light from the sun NOW. When you step into the shade you don't experience it. Your senses are completely tied to the physical NOW and bound by the velocity of light which creates an onlooker in the immediate NOW. You cannot even experience a ray of light 1 second after you step in the shade. This is onlooker consciousness. It is not the eternal NOW.

INTERFACES

We are crystallizing the sun's energy at every moment, even though we don't realize it. Cosmic particles from the sun interact with the earth's magnetic field and form electrons and protons in a boundary which reaches out to a point about 40,000 miles from the earth. This is called the magnetosphere. The magnetosphere surrounding the earth is another skin. This skin like our body's skin does not cause separation. They are interfaces. The interface between you and this charged electricity in the atmosphere is our etheric body, i.e., our aura. Electricity companies draw this electricity freely out of the static atmospheric field, trap it and sell it to us. We directly absorb atmospheric static electricity, in the immediate NOW, through our seven skins and crystallize it into mass, which we call our body.

EINSTEIN'S INSIGHT

Energy is constantly being conserved and crystallized into matter by the absorption of light. All matter is capable of absorbing light and imprisoning it. We can see how close Einstein was to solving the secret of the universe with his realization of matter and energy being the same, and the conversion factor from one to the other being the velocity of light.

The seven levels of awareness are the sensors by which we experience the physical world. They enable us to experience something about the light condensation NOW.

The next question is:

- How do we free ourselves from the sensory world?
- or, How do we free ourselves from the boundary of the velocity of light?

Albert Einstein (1879–1955) was an outstanding theoretical physicist. This photograph was taken at about the time he predicted the relationship between matter and energy. (Bettmann Archive)

make light

ONE THOUSAND TIMES FASTER

First we have to realize that we are trapped in the world of absorbed light by our senses. The akashic light exists everywhere, inside and outside of everything. But only the sensory input out of the akasha can be made manifest to our senses, in what we call the material world, i.e., creation. So we limit creation to that which we can experience through our senses. This is the tree of knowledge, but there is also a tree of life.

To get beyond our physical limitations we must increase the frequency of our NOW by one thousand times. This is the outer boundary of onlooker consciousness.

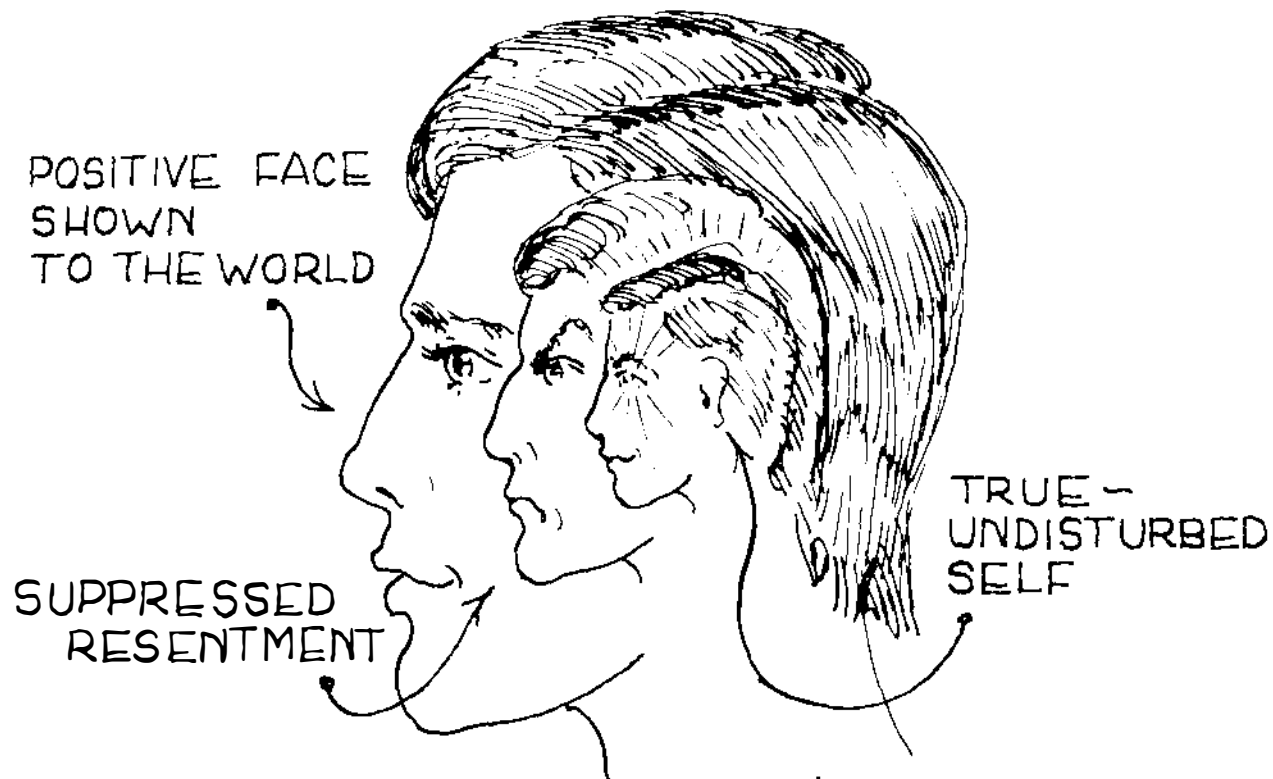

$$\text{velocity of light (c) } \times 1000 = \text{centre consciousness}$$

Beyond this physical world is our consciousness, vibrating at 1000 c. Your nucleus is vibrating at 1000 c. Your nucleus, your consciousness, is the cosmic being that you are trying to become. You do this by identifying with it.

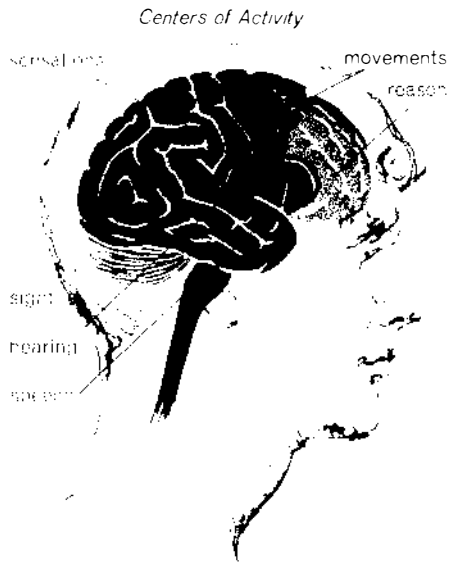

WHAT DOES THIS MEAN IN PRACTICE?

If you were a complete vegetable on the outside, your consciousness inside your mind would still be alive and very much aware. You would still be able to think "I am." It is this "I AM" that vibrates at 1000 c. It is this "I AM" that we must learn to identify with and stop identifying with what we see by the visible light / kasha. When we do not see with our senses any more, we begin to see by the light of consciousness.

You can easily experience this inner light in another person also, by just watching carefully when they speak to you. The external effects may be calm and seemly happy, while internally they may be angry or churning. Beyond this is the inner I AM that you need to learn to see more. You will only gain knowledge of this "I" when you stop using your senses. This is a whole new way of seeing. This is I - to - I contact.

DIRECT EXPERIENCE OF THE INNER I

FUNCTIONS OF THE BRAIN

If you cannot readily experience this inner I, imagine you are driving down a highway and you have a bad car crash. Imagine that you are trapped in a mass of iron. The car roof is still collapsing against your head. The pain is excruciating, blood is inside your mouth, you can smell burning rubber, and everyone is shouting. You try to talk and realize you have lost the power of speech. Everything suddenly goes quiet, but you can see people rushing frantically about. You realize that your hearing has gone, and so has your taste, for you can no longer feel the blood in your mouth. You wish someone would get you out, for the pain is tremendous.

The car roof moves against your head and immediately all the pain stops. In fact, you can no longer feel anything. As you look out at the people, you realize that you only have one sense left, your sight. You are very comfortable without your other senses.

The car roof moves and everything goes black. Your vision has gone. But you are very much aware, your I is still there. This I is the real you. This is the I that vibrates at 1000 c. This is the nucleus, the nux. This is the I you must start to identify with. When you can do this the outside world can be in chaos like the edge of a hurricane, but you will be calm at the centre of the hurricane where all is peaceful.

THE AKASHIC COMPUTER

UPI Photos

From the Akasha we crystallize our own body. Its shape, fitness, colour and all the things about it are predetermined by the thoughts we have programmed in our Akashic Computer. In our ignorance we turn the akashic light into thoughts of self which in turn become actions. All of which trap us in our seven skins. To stop this cycle we must fully understand the seven levels of consciousness and how we process and crystallize the akashic light into thoughts and mass in our physical world. In doing so our vibrations will be increased to 1000 c. This is the process of Nuclear Evolution.

NUCLEAR EVOLUTION AND THE ELECTROMAGNETIC SPECTRUM

THE LIGHT BARRIER

We know that the velocity of light is 186,000 miles per second and the diameter of the earth's orbit around the sun is 186,000,000 miles. And so it takes invisible light / Lumen 1000 seconds to radiate across this distance. This represents the light barrier that man is presently limited by; and hence is trapped in.

We have said that our consciousness travels one thousand times the speed of light, i.e., 186,000,000 miles per second. So for your consciousness to travel the diameter of the earth's orbit it takes 1 second, which is the instantaneous NOW of the senses. Let us stop a minute to realize that this is how we are experiencing the world.

Look at an object close to you,

— you see it NOW.

Transfer your eyes to another object,

— you experience it NOW.

Look out of the window to a distant object,

—you see it NOW.

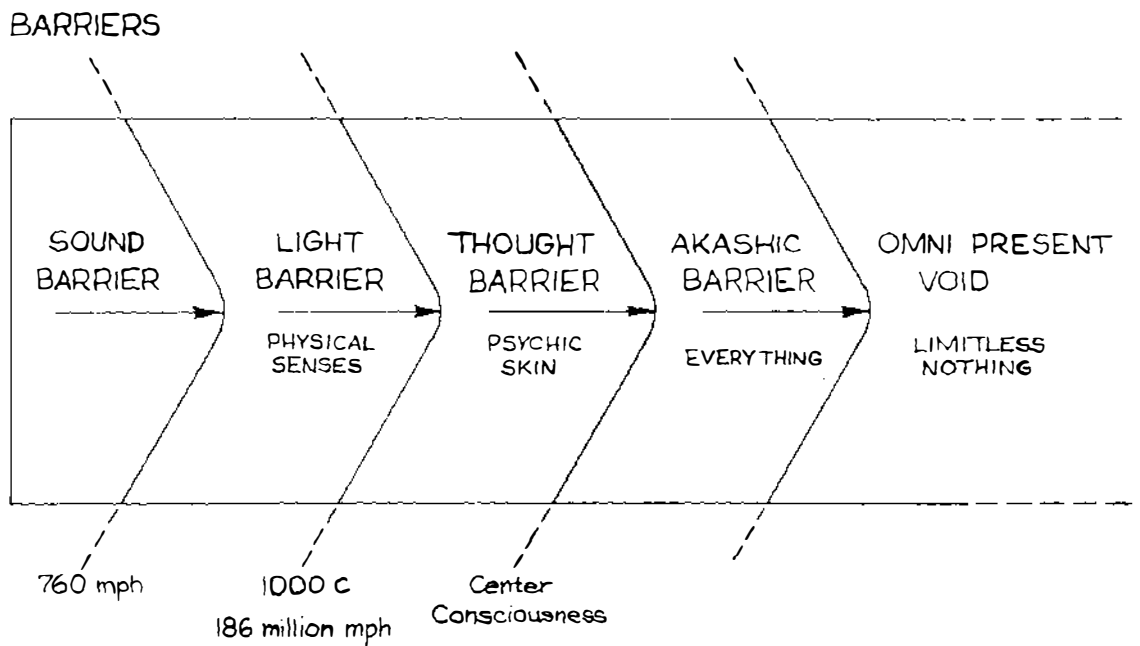

You can only experience things and events NOW with your physical senses. At this level of awareness your consciousness experiences everything NOW, this second, and, in doing so, travels at one thousand times the speed of light (1000 c). 1000 c is the light barrier.

SUPERLUMEN

For enlightenment we need to break this light barrier and see with superlumen. Superlumen is another word for lux, the internal light of consciousness which is always present everywhere in a timeless domain and is therefore instantaneous perception, irrespective of distance. The senses, however quickly they perceive the now in one second, are still imprisoned in the inverse square laws because there is separation between what is perceived and the perceiver of images in the mind.

THE MIND BARRIER

- Another trap is the thought barrier. When you look at these
- seven dots how many spaces do you see between them? Six is
- the answer given by most people since they are stuck in
- onlooker consciousness. Your consciousness sees separate
- spaces if it separates itself from the space surrounding the
- dots. When you can expand your awareness to include everything,
- (this is centre consciousness again), you will see only one space,
- not six. So whenever you look at anything don't look as an
- onlooker or you will keep seeing and thinking there are lots of
- spaces between things. See only one space. The trick is to
- realize you are that space. Then all other spaces disappear. Centre
- consciousness is needed to overcome the mind barrier.

THE ELECTROMAGNETIC SPECTRUM

To date, science believes the spectrum only applies to matter as measured along the 80 octaves of electromagnetic phenomena. We speak of the different parts of this spectrum as vibrating at so many beats or cycles per second. But on either side of this 80 octaves of the electromagnetic spectrum are 80 octaves of spiritual energy and 80 octaves of sub-atomic or etheric energy. Using the physics of Yes and No in Supersensonics* we can train our own neurological nervous system to respond to the subatomic and superatomic frequencies which resonate with our thoughts and our imaginations respectively.

THE SPECTRUM OF CREATION

Subatomic Spectrum	Electromagnetic Spectrum	Superatomic Spectrum
Thoughts	Physical	Imagination
80 octaves	80 octaves	80 octaves

THE ELECTROMAGNETIC BARRIERS

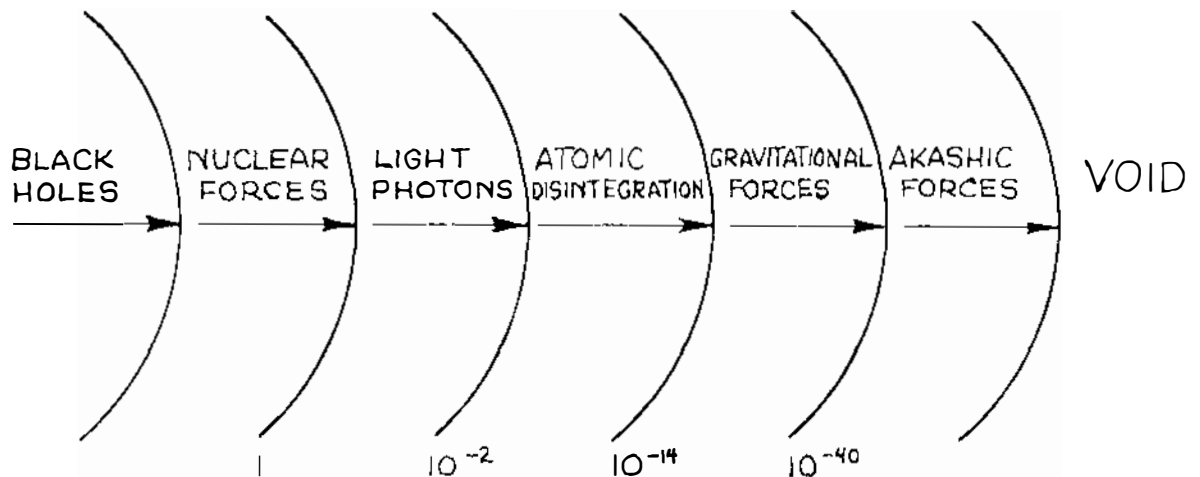

Here we will first look at the electromagnetic spectrum to see how its energies interact. Then we will apply this reasoning to our levels of consciousness. First we will assume that the very strong forces holding the nucleus together have a strength of one unit. Then on this scale light photons, which have an energy one hundred times weaker, will have a strength of 10^{-2} . The weak disintegrations of the atom, as in radioactive decay, are much smaller than the strong nuclear forces and would rate 10^{-14} on this scale. Gravitational forces which hold the planets together are still weaker and rate at 10^{-40} . There is a barrier between the nuclear force and light radiation. When light shines on matter it does not affect the nucleus. Light does excite the electrons in matter but it cannot split the nucleus apart and release the atomic (bomb) forces.

The next threshold is the weak disintegrations of the atom, which send out the radioactive, alpha, beta and gamma rays. We have found that light falling on matter does affect it, so that it gives off the subtle radiations we measure in the radiesthesic arm of Supersensonics. These subtle radiations are in the subatomic spectrum. Weak disintegrations are not limited to radioactive materials. They occur in all matter, but are hardly noticeable. Normally, gravitational forces do not affect the nuclear forces, nor the atomic decay, and they only attract light under certain conditions. Only when the gravity is so intense that it sucks the light back into the system do we get a BLACK HOLE which does not impinge on our senses. So in the gross sense none of these fields are interacting. They have no heavy influence on each other so these barriers act like skins isolating themselves from each other. Whenever we think of skins we think of our levels of consciousness.

THE CREATION SPECTRUM

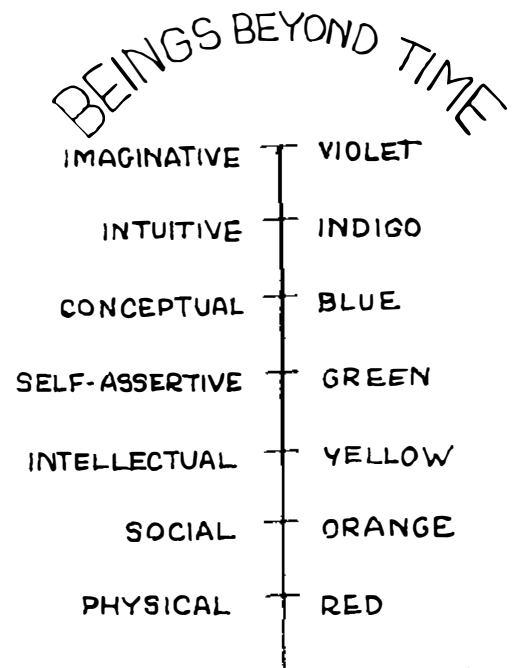

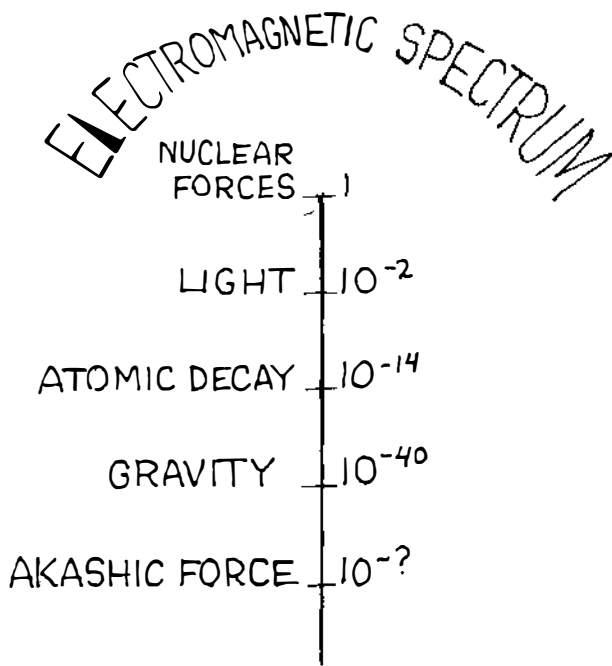

Before we go into the levels of consciousness we can look at this spectrum in another way – as a long continuum of decreasing frequency – as spectrums within one large spectrum.

THE CREATION SPECTRUM

HOW DOES KNOWLEDGE OF THE ELECTROMAGNETIC SPECTRUM HELP US TO UNDERSTAND OUR LEVELS OF CONSCIOUSNESS?

Our picture of nuclear evolution is similar to that of the electromagnetic spectrum shown on the previous page. Like the E - M spectrum, each of our seven levels is a resonant frequency which does not interact with the other levels. They have no heavy influence on each other so they act as barriers which are like skins isolating themselves from each other. (You should recognize this sentence). The frequencies of each of these levels of awareness are so different that a person stuck in one world or level is not aware that other people operate in different worlds. This unawareness is one of the big drawbacks to our evolution. On earth, our job is to first realize that there are seven entirely different worlds in which people's realities are trapped. We must also recognize our own worlds and see how they colour our view of every situation we are in.

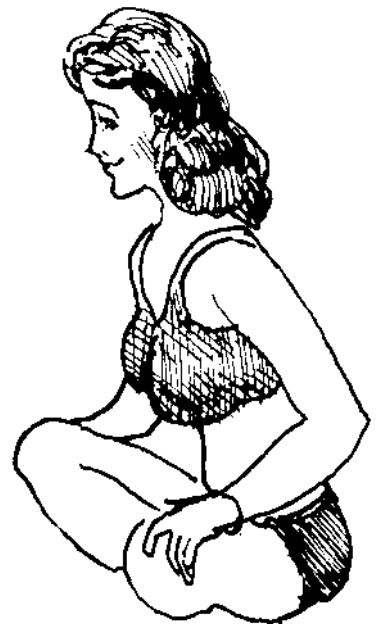

NON-COMMUNICATION

In doing this we begin to see the worlds that others operate in and so start to relate more effectively with other people. Upon accepting that their reality is true from their perspective and that your reality is true from your viewpoint, you do not disagree so readily. But rather, try to see what they are seeing, that you cannot see from your own levels. There is little communication that can go on between one person in the red and green worlds and another in the yellow and violet worlds. If they are unaware of their communication gaps they will probably argue forever, with neither seeing their own gaps.

Whereas, when they realize that they are both seeing the situation correctly, they can learn from each other. The next stage of awareness would be for them to look for people who operated on the social, mental and intuitive levels to fill in all the gaps. Good decisions are made when all seven levels are involved. When there is a gap at any one level a problem arises. For example, people

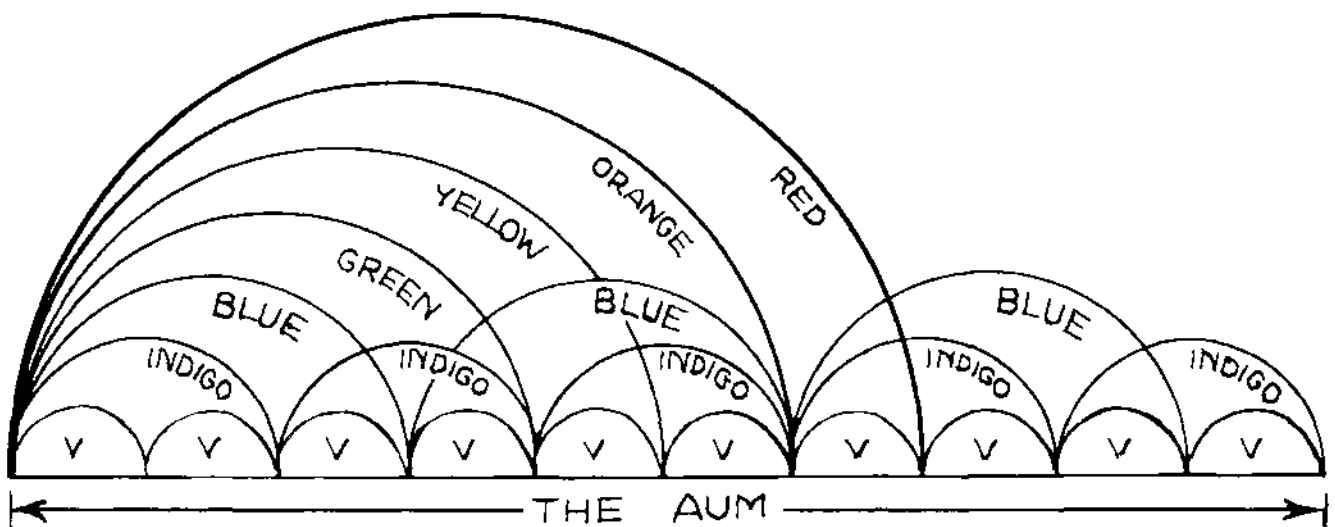

SELF-ASSERTIVE
PLUS PHYSICAL

IMAGINATIVE PLUS INTELLECTUAL

can design a great project but if there is no physical / red level energy available, the project will not be manifested. Or if there is physical energy but no social energy the group will not be able to work together. Similarly, without the intellectual level available, there would be no planning, and so on through all seven levels. The communication between these levels is beyond the speed of light. Since they are interpenetrating each other, the communication is instantaneous between them. This is why we are not aware of these levels of consciousness functioning within us. Thought is so fast it jumps these inner gaps or barriers. Although they are interpenetrating they are not intermingling. Each of these levels resonates in a colour harmonic, i.e., if we stepped the vibration down to the visible spectrum we would see a colour. A person in the red level or any of the levels is not aware of the existence of the other levels. Completing the comparison to the electromagnetic spectrum, the resonances of the levels will look like all parts of one Aum spectrum, with the violet vibrating $7 \times 7 \times 7 \times 7 \times 7 \times 7 \times 7$ times faster than the red level.

DISCOVERING THE GAPS IN YOUR CONSCIOUSNESS

THE GAP BETWEEN NUCLEAR EVOLUTION AND YOUR OWN CONSCIOUSNESS

For most of what we know we rely on comparative knowledge. We say this thing is hot and that thing is cold; this is up and that is down. All this comparative knowing is relative to the observer. Obtaining knowledge in this way creates a gap, which we must first become aware of and then learn to close. To get a feel for this gap let us look at a few examples.

UP AND DOWN

Imagine you are a small star somewhere way out in the middle of the universe radiating your light everywhere in all directions. Does the word 'up' have any meaning for you? Of course not, nor does the word 'down'. From this viewpoint all directions are the same. So up and down have no meaning in reality except in relation to each other.

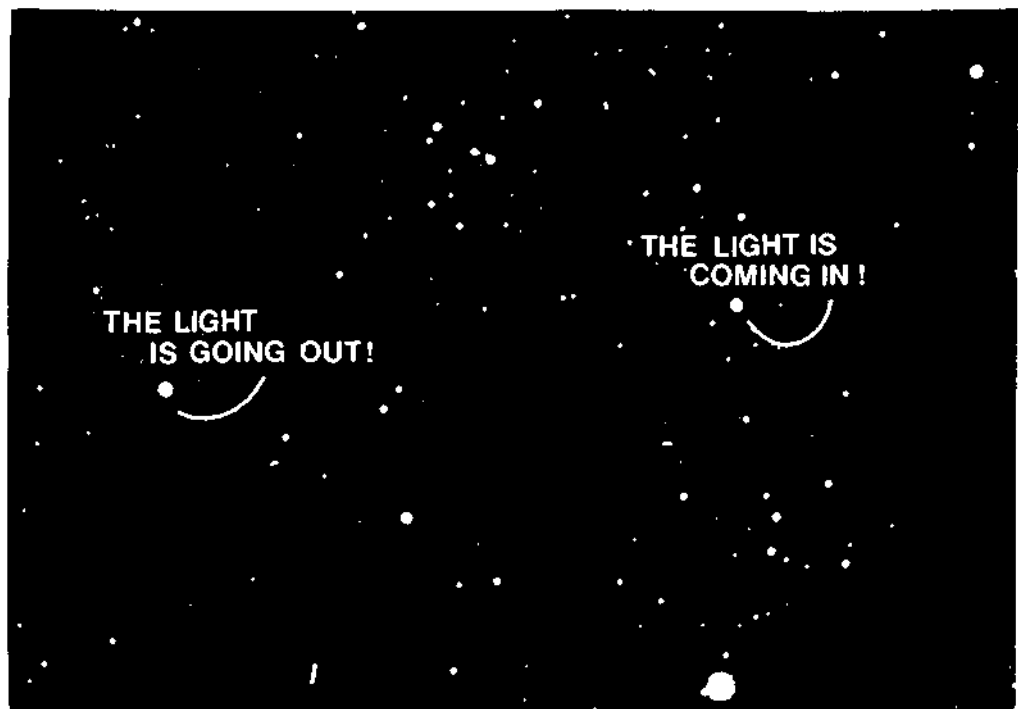

From this example we can see that many of the words we use have no meaning by themselves. Meditate on the following list before going on to the next examples.

In	THE GAP	Out
Sound		Silence
Love		Hate
Nothing		Everything
Hot		Cold
Shrinking		Growing
Motion		Stationary
Fat		Thin
Short		Long

IN AND OUT

Continue to imagine that you are still the star sending out its radiation throughout space. You are sitting quietly thinking, "I am sending my light out to all the other stars." The star nearest to you feels the light coming into it and sends you a message "The light is coming in." To which you respond, "No, the light is going out." The other star replies, "No, it's coming in." So a gap in communication is created by this relative knowledge. An observer at the centre of the system experiences the real situation without any gaps.

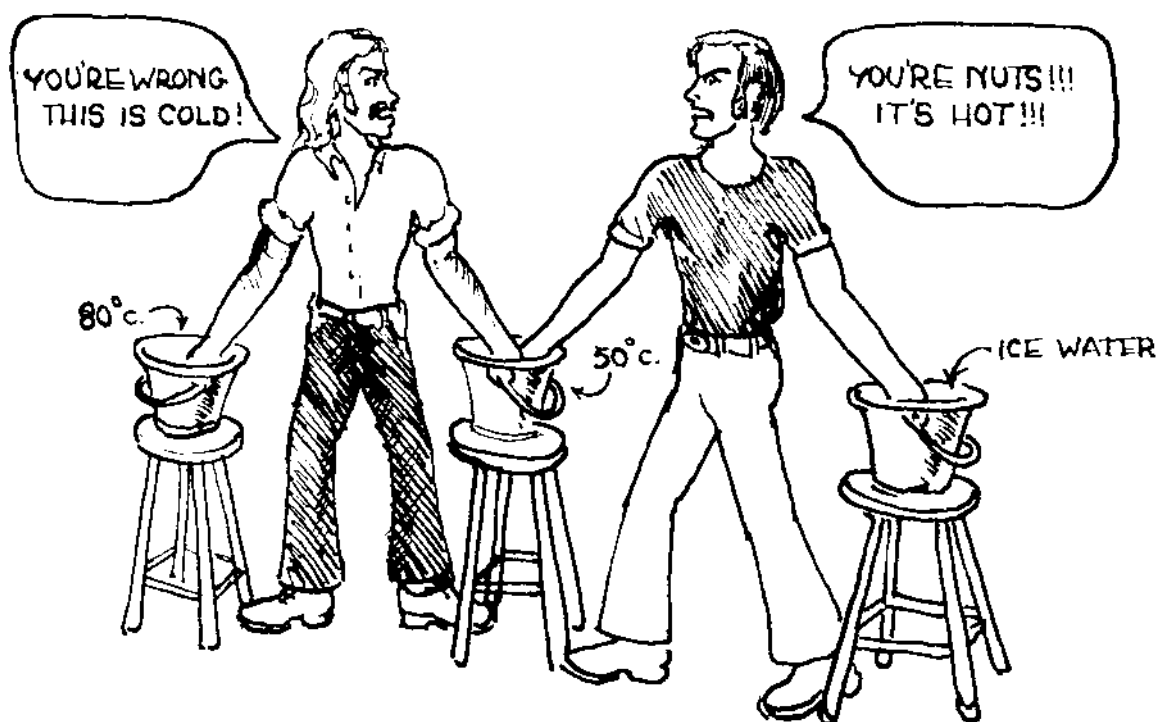

HOT AND COLD

If you put your left hand in a bucket of warm water and your right hand in a bucket of hot water you would say the water surrounding your left hand is cold.

Now if I place my right hand in the same bucket as your left hand and my left hand in a bucket of ice water I would say the water surrounding my right hand was hot. And here would start a big argument, since I know I am right. But you know you are right. There is a gap in our communication caused again by comparative knowledge, and observer consciousness.

THE GAP

NUCLEAR EVOLUTION AT WORK

SEPARATION

These gaps are not real. As we have shown in the examples, they would not appear if we could stop identifying with our bodies and see the whole situation. We can observe this state in babies who cannot see their mothers but feel no separation from them. As a baby grows beyond three months a sense of separation emerges.

Fear is also a cause of separation. And yet a child who was abandoned in a jungle as a baby does not feel fear of the wild animals since he feels no separation from them. The animals do not attack him since he does not secrete adrenaline as do humans who believe they are separate from the animals.

JEALOUSY

Jealousy is a form of this fear of separation. Unfortunately, jealousy is a disease (dis-ease) that I am afflicted with to a very deep level. This jealousy is not limited to anyone or anything, but it can hit me at any time when I am least expecting it, or when I am bracing to resist it. This can be solved if I could only realize that there is no separation between myself and everybody else. Obviously, I do know this intellectually, but this only illustrates the limits of intellectual knowing. I need to let go of my insecurities and realize this non-separateness in my heart. During periods when I have done this, I am very peaceful. It is like a big weight of anxiety has been lifted from around my heart. That aspect of my life changes to an extremely joyful, fulfilling one.

GROWING PAINFULLY

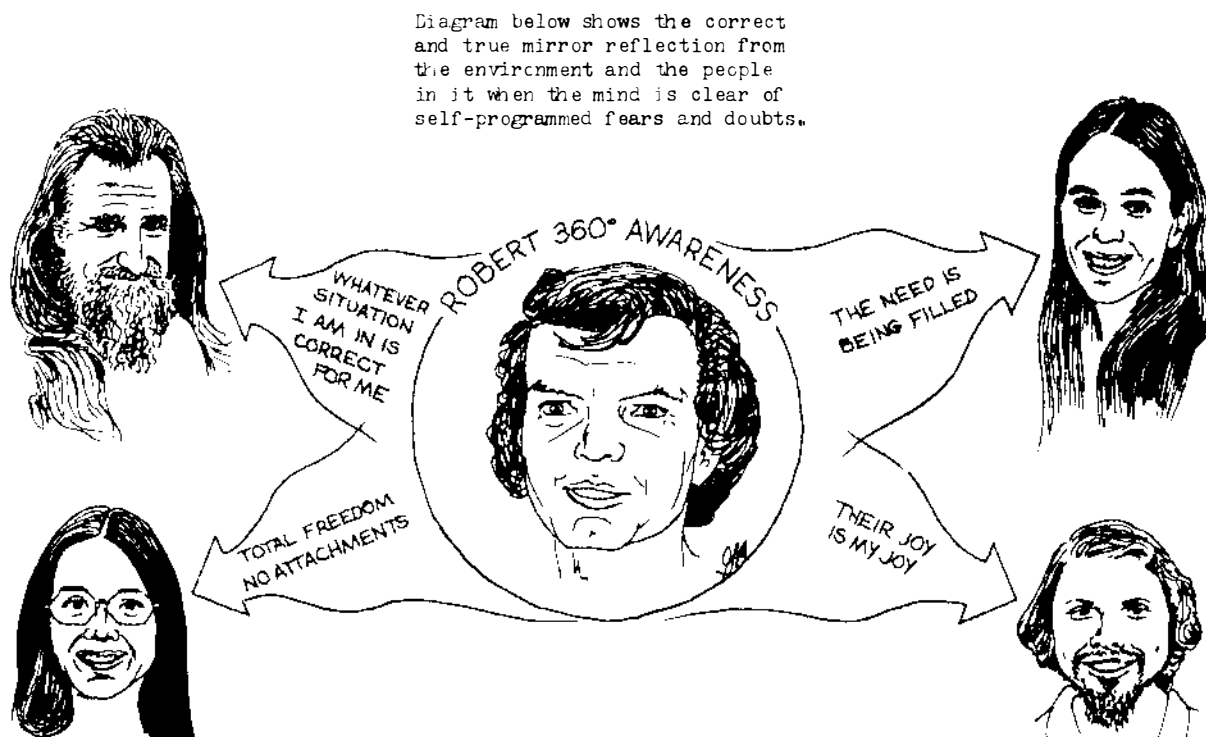

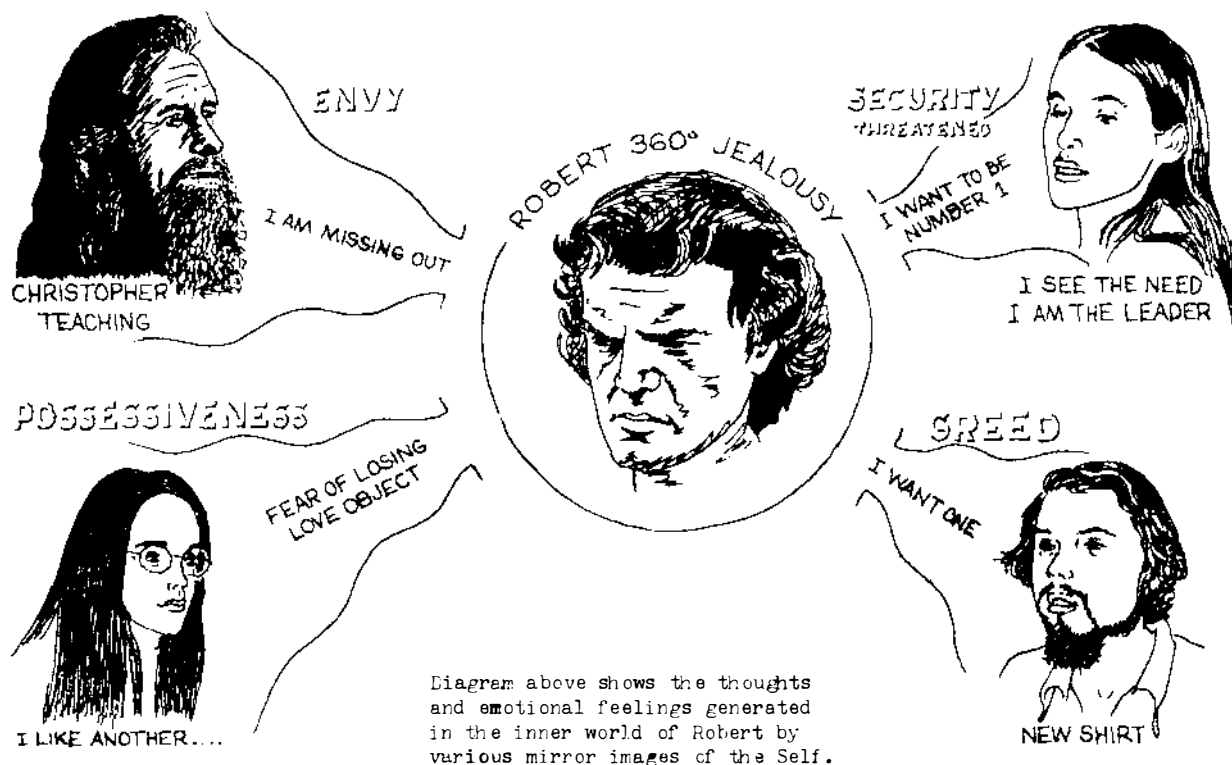

One of these joyful periods was when I first moved into the University of the Trees. I was the first resident student and so had Christopher and Norah all to myself. Just being here was a turning point in my life. I had finally found something with tremendous meaning. I was just bubbling over with love for Christopher and Norah. Unknown to me, my love at that time was selfless. I had many other faults which they were helping me to see, but my overall attitude must have counteracted these since we three were companions for many months.

Then other students began to move on campus, and started to grow and show their constructive sides. As this happened the jealousy which lay dormant in me began to rise, slowly at first, and then it spread out to cover many angles of awareness. As I became increasingly selfish my relationship with my teachers suffered. I was not too aware of what was happening. A gap developed between the Hills and myself. As I sensed this gap I became even more envious of others and so the gap grew. Christopher and I rarely did things alone. I lost contact with Norah and no longer had talks with her. This is something that I have never gotten back and still miss. Jealousy is very destructive. As I write this I am still in this self-created situation (all situations are self-created).

AN INSIGHT

Recently there have been some insights and changes. For months I had been rationalizing my situation since I did not know how to change it. Then something happened to help me see more clearly. I coordinated a group project. This in itself was not new. What was new, although I did not know it at the time, was that I did this in a selfless manner. Now Christopher acts like a mirror for each person who meets him. What this means is, if you have a big ego you will think Christopher has a big ego. If you have lots of love in you, then you will see Christopher as a loving person. Seeing Christopher change towards me woke me up to the change in my attitude. I could finally see what I was doing, and the bad vibes I was previously putting out. I saw the difference between selfishness and selflessness. From there I began to get in touch with jealousy. Slowly, at first, I started to admit to this within myself, until I finally saw just how deep this envy at the green level of the insecurity drive is within me. It is a huge pit, filled with ugly animals, and it is part of me. I realized that I have 360° jealousy. The drawing opposite helps to illustrate the extent of the problem. Now that I have admitted to the problem I can start to work on it. This is where I am now at, trying to release myself from the jealousy, envy and insecurities that put gaps between myself and others.

JEALOUSY, A NEGATIVE MANIFESTATION OF THE GREEN LEVEL OF CONSCIOUSNESS

TOTAL AWARENESS ELIMINATES SEPARATION AND HENCE ANNIHILATES JEALOUSY

AN ENLIGHTENED TEACHER

This is a good illustration of what a teacher is for. He cannot do the work for a student, but does speed up growth by pointing the way. When I first brought the jealousy problem to Christopher he said, "Look at it." So I did. Two weeks later, Christopher started a morning meditation by asking everyone to get in touch with this jealousy type of problem, to the extent that it existed inside each person. The next instruction was to dissolve these negative reactions by sending out waves to counter them. He then said we should do this exercise whenever this type of thought pattern started within us. This teaching is helping me to gain control over jealousy.

INTELLECTUAL / YELLOW GAPS

I can see how these gaps are all man-made by separations and comparisons. The next step is to experience that I am part of a huge continuum, which is the glue that holds everything together and is also the everything. I need to see the I coming out of my eyes; to see myself looking out of another's eyes and to see I am the space in-between. So this brings up another gap: that between knowing the truth in theory (yellow / intellectual level) and being the oneness (Direct Perception). I would love to actualize this state.

CONCEPTUAL / BLUE GAPS

Ever since I joined the University of the Trees Christopher has told me that I do not listen in depth. At first, my ego reacted to being told that I did not listen. Then I realized, after much help from the group, that I was too busy reacting to what was first said (red level) that I could not hear what followed. So I never got the whole story. But there was still a gap between what Christopher was saying to me and what I was hearing. I was holding on rigidly to my concept of the word "listen" and not attempting to see deeper into Christopher's meaning. During this talk on gaps I saw that when he said listen, he meant for me to hear from the speaker's point of view. He wanted us to hear as them. In this way there is no gap between people. As our awareness expands the gap closes.

ARE YOU AWAKE?

In our state of awareness now we believe that we are awake and can see and hear all. This is not so. Someone who is really awake sees that we are really asleep.

A person with Cosmic Consciousness sees that we are blind and deaf, as I was deaf to Christopher's teaching in this example. I do realize that I am asleep since I have experienced glimpses of awareness, and know I am slowly awakening. I am more awake than I was three years ago when I first came to the University of the Trees. An unfortunate dilemma of man's is that he uses this I as an absolute reference point to validate all human knowledge. But this I is the asleep, unaware I. This leads to a big gap, for how can we know what is unknown? Only by getting rid of the knower, your I. To do this you get rid of the separation between the knower and the field of the knower. When you do this there is no such thing called knowledge, because there is no one to know the knowledge. When this is achieved you are in the state described by Christ when he said, "I am of myself nothing." You then just talk whatever the Father puts into your head. You have then closed the big gap, that exists between you and the Cosmic Intelligence. Our job on earth is to close the gap between God and Man.

THE EIGHTH LAW OF CONSCIOUSNESS

Interwoven in the practical examples in this work is Hills' eighth law of consciousness which he normally puts in question form.

HOW CAN YOU KNOW WHAT YOU DON'T KNOW?

CAN YOU KNOW WHAT YOU DON'T KNOW?

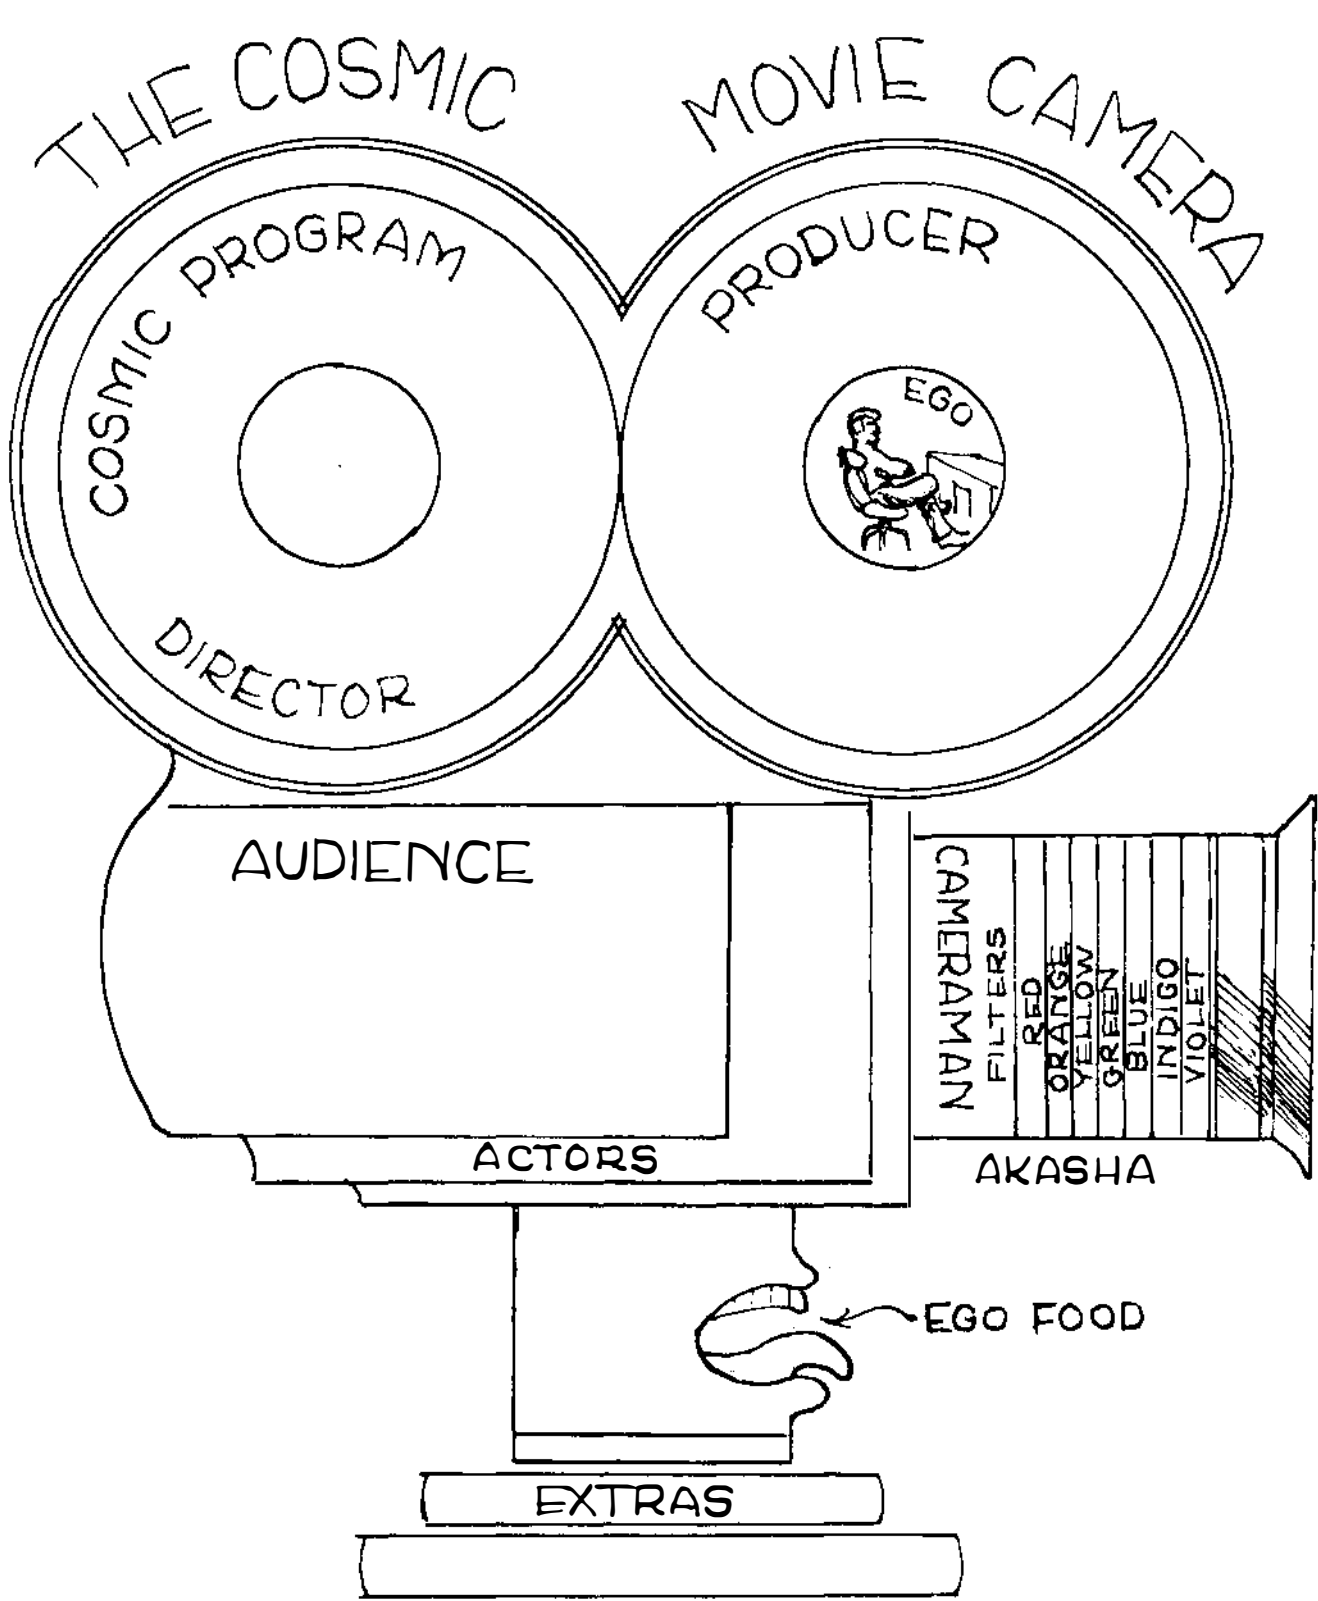

I have attempted to express Hills' Theory of Consciousness as clearly as possible throughout these pages, with a minimum of unanswered questions, but the above law of consciousness is left, as it stands, for you to meditate on.

MAKING YOUR OWN COSMIC MOVIE SHOW

DIRECT EXPERIENCE OF NUCLEAR EVOLUTION

The process of Nuclear Evolution is one of expanding our awareness of life. To help us understand life better Christopher Hills gives us two modern parables. They are the Cosmic Movie and Uncle Alf's Circus.

THE COSMIC CAMERA

Before we can make a cosmic movie we need a cosmic movie camera, which consists of:

- 1) a cosmic program
- 2) a producer
- 3) a director
- 4) an ego
- 5) a cameraman
- 6) the audience
- 7) the actors / reactors
- 8) extras

We are the cosmic camera. We photograph the show with the invisible light of akasha. Different filters are used depending on what we are recording. The physical world is photographed using a red filter of physical energies. When I get jealous I am using a green filter of insecure heart energies. The audience seeing this show sends out hisses and boos of disapproval. So the ego shouts "CUT" to the director and cameraman.

EGO FOOD

The producer never gets to see shows that the ego does not like. The ego then takes control of the cameraman and puts on a show it likes which brings in ego food. The ego's main purpose is to store up ego food to make itself feel good. It does not know how a show is going to turn out unless it has made one like it before. The ego thinks he is running the show. On his desk he has placed a sign which says the BIG BOSS.

THE CAUSE OF SUFFERING AND DEPRESSION

The ego buys only those shows that the audience likes and that provide him with ego food. So in most of his movies the reality has been filtered out. The ego then shows these tasteless movies to the producer. The producer says, "This is not the cosmic program." He then reaches his leg down from his office into the ego's office and kicks the ego. The ego in turn kicks all the other parts of the camera, which causes bad feelings all around, called SUFFERING. If the ego gets kicked really hard, for showing one lousy movie after another, the camera goes into a state called DEPRESSION. This is a bad state since it is not constructive. It is like wandering about lost in a fog, or being held under water. You cannot work on yourself while you are in a depressed state. You wander about aimlessly not knowing what to do for yourself. Or you may fight and kick out only to fall back into defeat.

THE PRODUCER

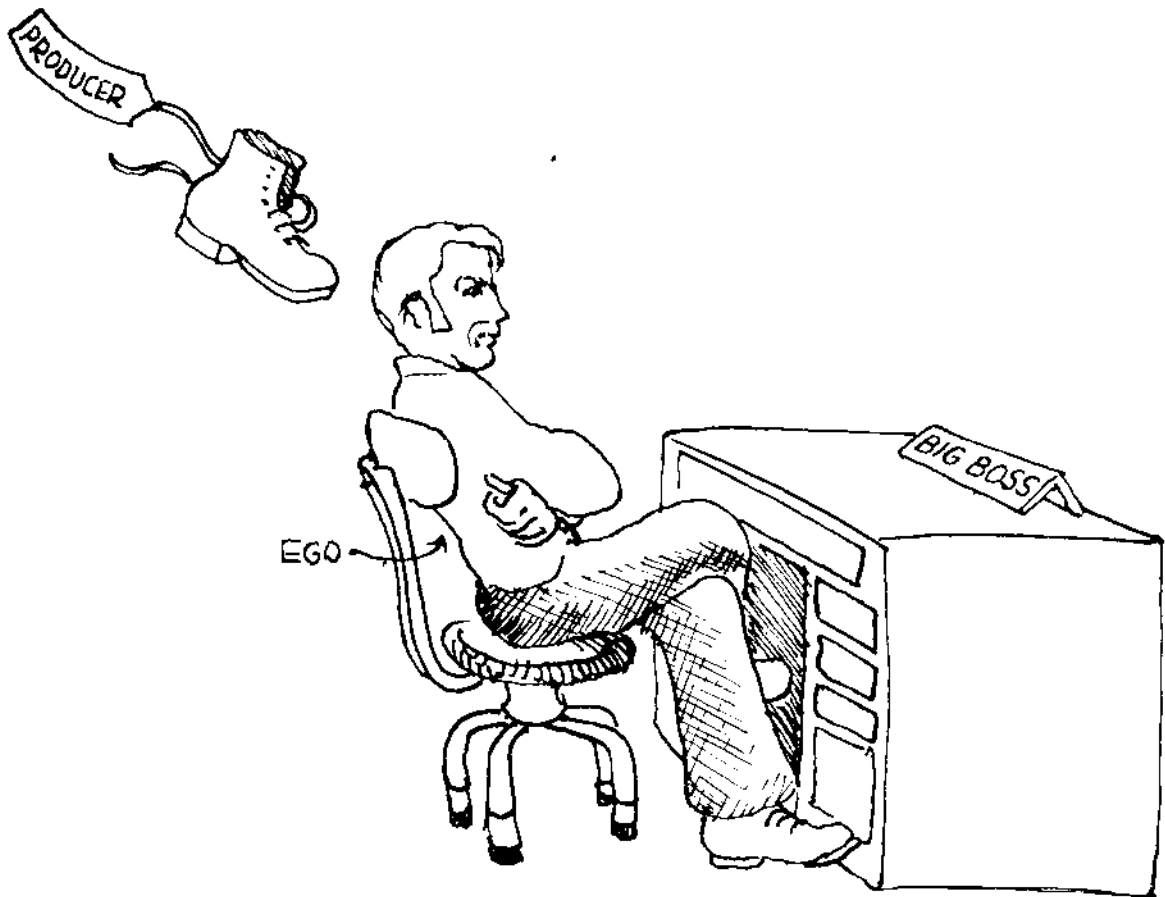

The producer's role is to kick the ego to cause just enough pain so that the ego will realize that he does not run the show. Some amount of suffering is good for us. It acts as a spur to drive us on. It is under this pressure that people usually change the most. This discomfort can be caused by internal pressure from ourself and external pressure from others. At the University of the Trees both these pressures are at work. The group members who are most alive to the universe are motivated mainly by internal pressures.

The problem is that the producer never gets to see a good show because the ego only makes those movies which please its vanity and satisfy its self-image. The ego thinks he is paying for the whole show and so he repeats what he likes as often as possible. These are the patterns in our akashic record that we keep repeating over and over again. This continues until the producer has had enough. He then refuses to buy the show. He says, "O.K., ego, you made it, you think you are paying for the show. Now you pay for it."

LEARNING THE HARD WAY

This is what happened with my sex addiction. I kept playing the common male chauvinist role of man meets girl, man chases girl, man catches girl (ego food), man conquers girl (ego food), man looks for another girl for more ego food.

Then, when the producer had had enough, I paid for the show with a jelly back and a huge depression.

We are all the parts of the cosmic camera, including the cosmic program trying to express itself as it really is, and not through our seven filters. The cosmic program will only be the same as the akashic program when we have cleaned up the negative aspects of our seven levels of consciousness. This is the work of Nuclear Evolution.

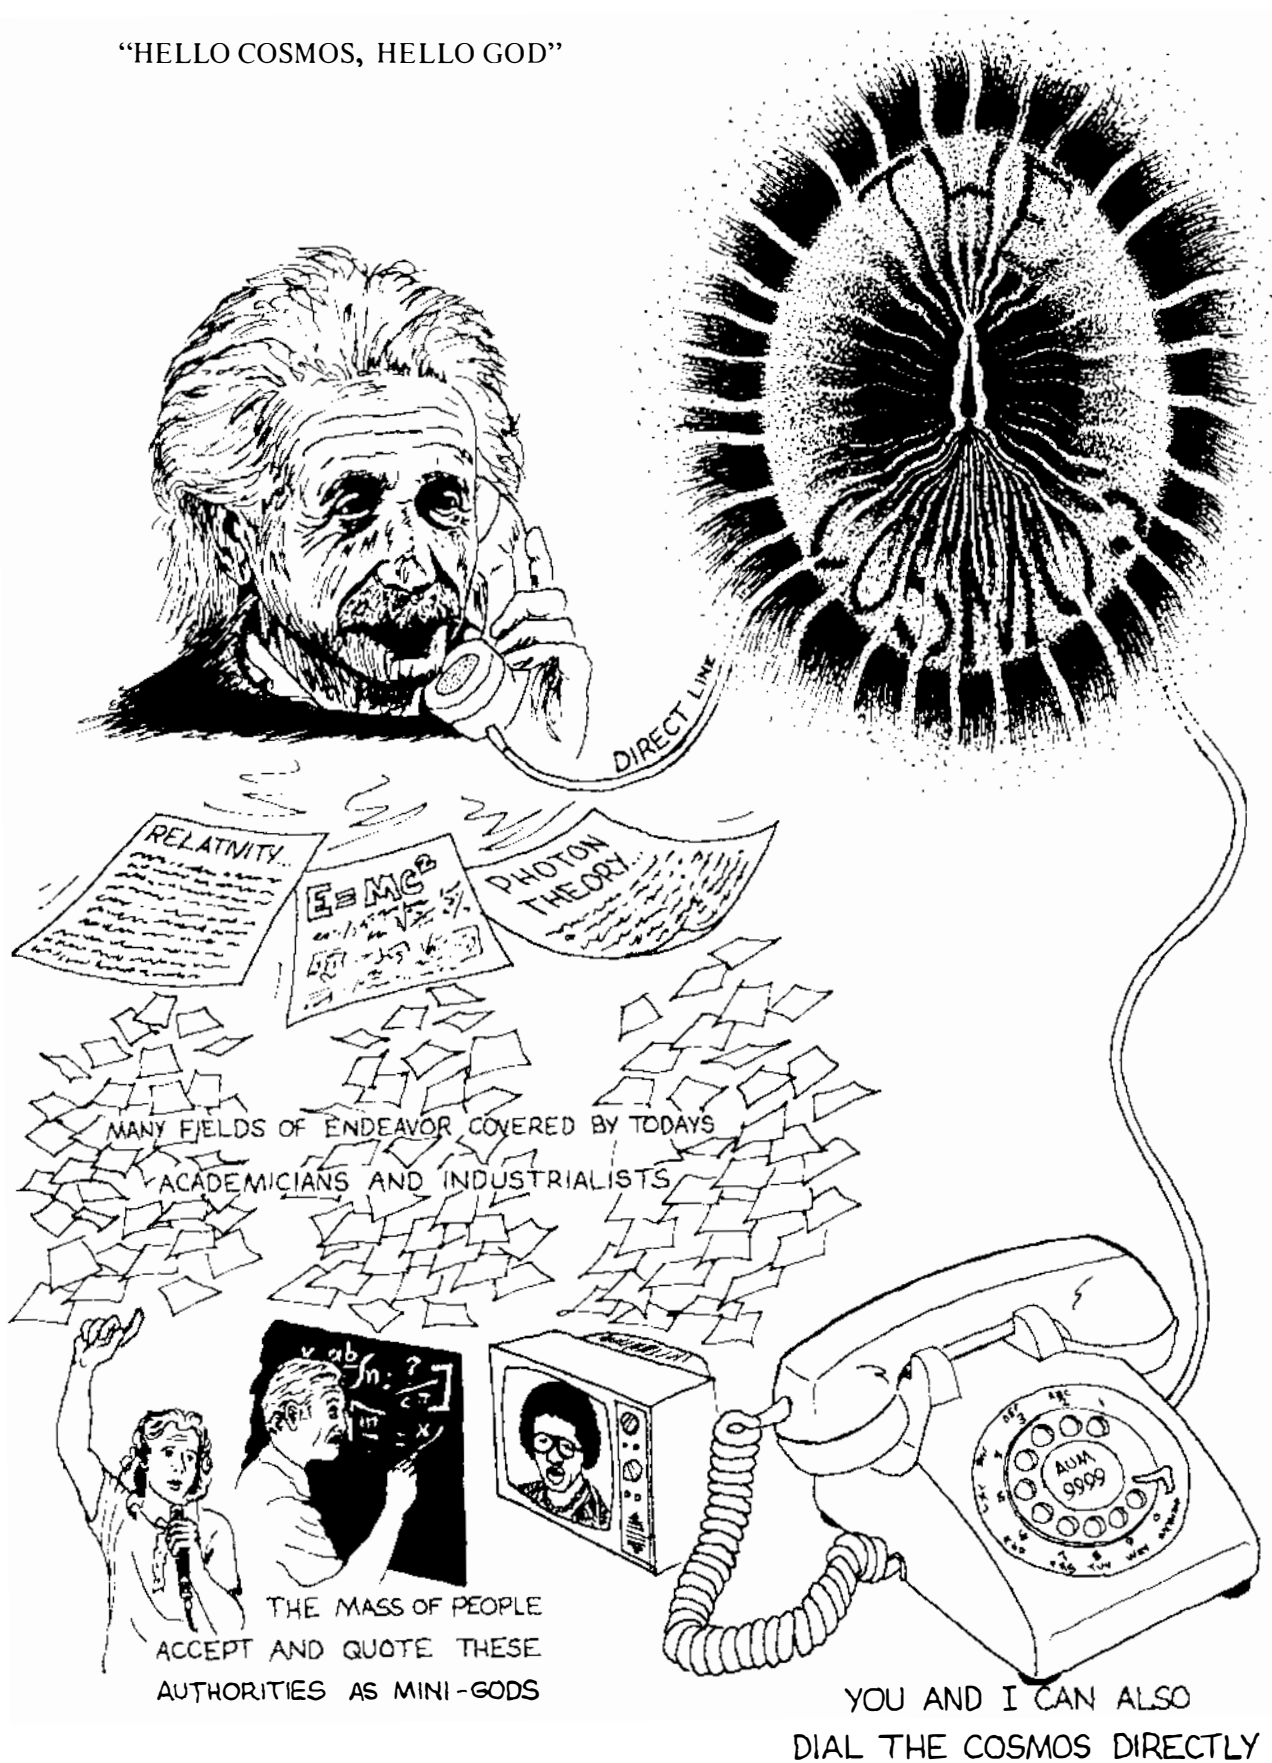

EGO MOVIES

Common movies that are made by the ego are: marriage, children, careers, money, power & romance. All of these are karma producers which take our consciousness away from evolving rapidly. Since I did not start on the 'spiritual trip' until I was 31 years old I have made all of the above movies, and suffered their karmic consequences. I invested years in becoming a physicist. Hour after hour, day after day, month in and month out I studied carving a career based on intellectual knowledge, only to find out that there was something fishy about the whole set-up. The game was to be a walking encyclopedia and to quote as many accepted authorities as you could. Publishing was another part of the game. The more silly little papers that a scientist publishes, the greater his reputation. To complete the game the papers must be written so as to be almost incoherent to anyone who is not an expert in that field of endeavor.

EINSTEIN'S DIRECT LINK

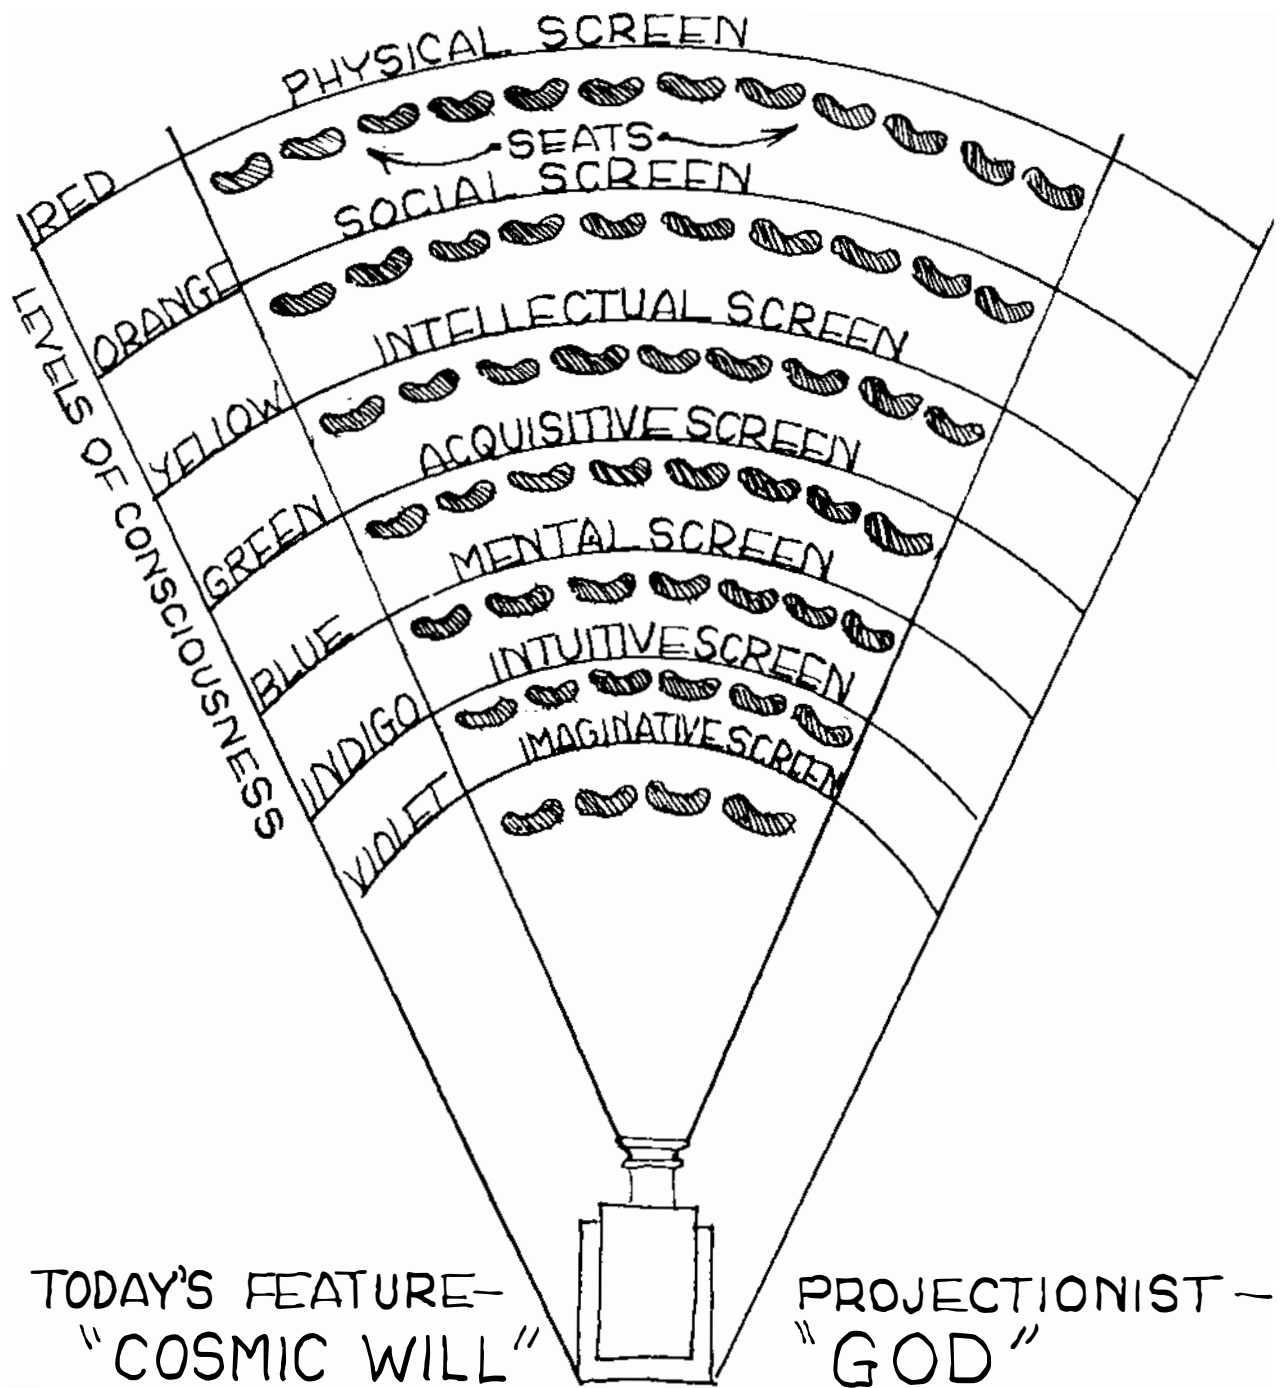

These scientists quote people like Einstein and recognize Einstein as this century's most brilliant mind. They have set Einstein up as the great authority of our age. The whole of modern day thinking and technology is based on Einstein's thoughts. Now Einstein got his knowledge directly from the Source, the Cosmic Intelligence. So here is the great irony of it all. These same scientists whose livelihoods are based on Einstein's works scorn the Source of Einstein's inspiration. Once I discovered Supersensonics I no longer made the physicist movie. Supersensonics is a method of going directly to the Cosmos for anything you wish to know about the universe, including yourself. It is mentioned earlier in this book under the title: The Physics of Yes and No. There is a six volume series on Supersensonics available from the University of the Trees Press.

"HELLO COSMOS, HELLO GOD"

THE COSMIC MOVIE THEATRE

IMAGES ON OUR SCREENS...

THE BEST SEATS AT THE THEATRE

Once we have made our movie we then project it onto others as reality. But there will be gaps in our movie. The movie is made in our consciousness and the gaps in our consciousness are part of the movie. You will recall that when we make our spiritual movies we use one or more of the seven colour consciousness filters. So the movies are not the actual real situations, but are coloured by our hangups and limitations present in our own level of consciousness.

WATCHING THE MOVIE

The cosmic movie is being played all around us, but again we don't see it, as it is. We only see the situation from our levels of consciousness. If we look at the way our society provides our needs it is easy to see that the majority of people are on the red / physical level of awareness. This level deals with body consciousness, eg. sex magazines and movies are a booming industry, and amusement parks are full of people. Our national obsession with food is part of this drive. So most people are sitting in the front row of the movie theatre. As we realize that there is more to life than the body and trying to satiate it, we then move back and sit in another row. As our awareness of the other levels of experience increases we move further and further back. We can only watch the screens in front of us. If you sat in the blue row, you could watch the red, orange, yellow, green, and blue screens. But you would not be aware of the indigo and violet parts of the cosmic movie. You would have a difficult time relating to people on the intuitive and imaginative levels of awareness. As you move back you become more and more in tune with the Cosmic Will since you can see more of the real movie. Expanding awareness functions like a one-way door. As you take a seat towards the rear of the theatre and see more you cannot easily move forward again. The limited show no longer satisfies you.

THE COST

In a theatre the rear seats cost more than the front seats. So to move to the back costs you. The price is our personal freedom – and becoming selfless. This entails giving up self pride in what we know since it creates a painful surface tension around us. There is some security in book learning and in knowledge gained through experience. We use these to protect us when we are sitting in the rows watching the cosmic movie. Our job is to let go of this false security and become the cosmic projectionist. Or perhaps our role is to be an usher or a ticket seller in which case we will miss parts of the movie while attending to others. This then is our price for being in tune with the Cosmic Will.

THE THRILL OF CHANGE

Part of this process of Nuclear Evolution is to become aware of what screens others are watching. If you can not only see your own movie but also the movie through their eyes, you can then communicate with others better. I have written off many people as twits and idiots because their movies were so different to my red level one. I remember the thrill of realizing that these people were not stupid, but just living in vastly different worlds than mine (indigo and violet) that I could not understand. Although we were watching the same movie we were seeing entirely different shows.

Experiment with this fact, first with someone who you think you know well, and figure out their levels of consciousness. Both of you can view many situations such as a play, an abstract painting, a piece of classical music, a person. Then independent of each other's comments write a description of what you saw. The results will show the differences in your levels of consciousness.

UNCLE ALF'S
CIRCUS BIG TOP

THE BIG TOP

When we look at a movie we see a reflection from a screen. This is still onlooker consciousness. We need then an analogy to help us get in touch with the real action in life which is happening inside us. It's not what happens to you that counts, but what happens in you. We have previously illustrated limited awareness as a slice of a pie. When we expand this to 360° and include the seven levels of awareness, we have Uncle Alf's circus big top, supported by two antennae to increase our awareness and two legs to walk with. If we climb up the outside of the big top, which is not easy since it is steep and we keep slipping backwards (doesn't this sound like your spiritual growth?), we see the most expensive seats are those that are closest to the ringside. What we are now seeing is the real action. The most aware people sit in the expensive seats closest to the action. They are closer to the centre. The most uncommitted people sit in the back, at the edge. Here they are at a safe distance from the wild animals. As our awareness increases we move closer to the centre ringside. Now the roar of the lion gets louder and louder and cannot be ignored. We must look at the lion. It is within ourselves ready to jump out. It is that voice which disturbs you when you make an incorrect decision for your evolution. The more you repeat the same mistake the louder the voice becomes.

SITTING RINGSIDE

We have shown how the cosmic movie is an illusion in which nothing is real. You are just watching a screen. The images are not real. They are in your consciousness. Now in the circus the people and the animals are alive and real. Here again, there is a price to pay to get the ringside seats next to the action. This is 'The Greatest Show on Earth', because it is real. To get the ringside seats you must be very aware because the lions may get loose, or the trapeze artist may fall on top of you, or the clowns may throw water over you, or an animal may kick dirt on you. So a price is demanded before you can sit up front. You must develop awareness by shovelling out a lot of elephant manure, and by being roared at by the lions and even having your shins kicked by the performing camel. The ringside seats are given only to those who have developed skill and can appreciate the performers' skill. The clown will only perform for those who have been clowns themselves, so they can appreciate his foolishness. But this is still observer consciousness. From the first row you are still an onlooker. The next step is to give up your ringside seat when you see others come along who have developed their skill to the extent that they may now sit ringside.

BECOMING A PERFORMER

We now have a big step to make. First we must step into the ring and perform. Not just one act but all the circus roles. We must train the lions, walk the tightrope where every slip is being watched, swing on the trapeze, be one of the clowns even when it means falling over the other clowns. We must continue to clean up our and others' elephant manure and try to communicate with the stubborn camel. While doing so we must use all our skill to stay clear of the circus master's whip. So this step is to jump inside the ring, and take responsibility for the show. The team spirit of the circus enables the skill of each performer to amaze and entertain the world inside the big top.

INSIDE THE RING

Some of our experimental group at the University of the Trees have already jumped into the act. They are part of the circus. These people risk more of themselves, by this exposure. Their emotions, their actions and reactions and non-actions are on view for all to see. This results in more kickings in full view of the audience. They must learn to laugh and stay in the ring. Some people find the constant show of skill too tough and start to play safe or they leave the ring altogether. The real performers know the show must go on and also have realized that you can't play safe in a circus. They develop a tremendous camaraderie among themselves, realizing there is no room for slackers because their safety and their lives are all interdependent.

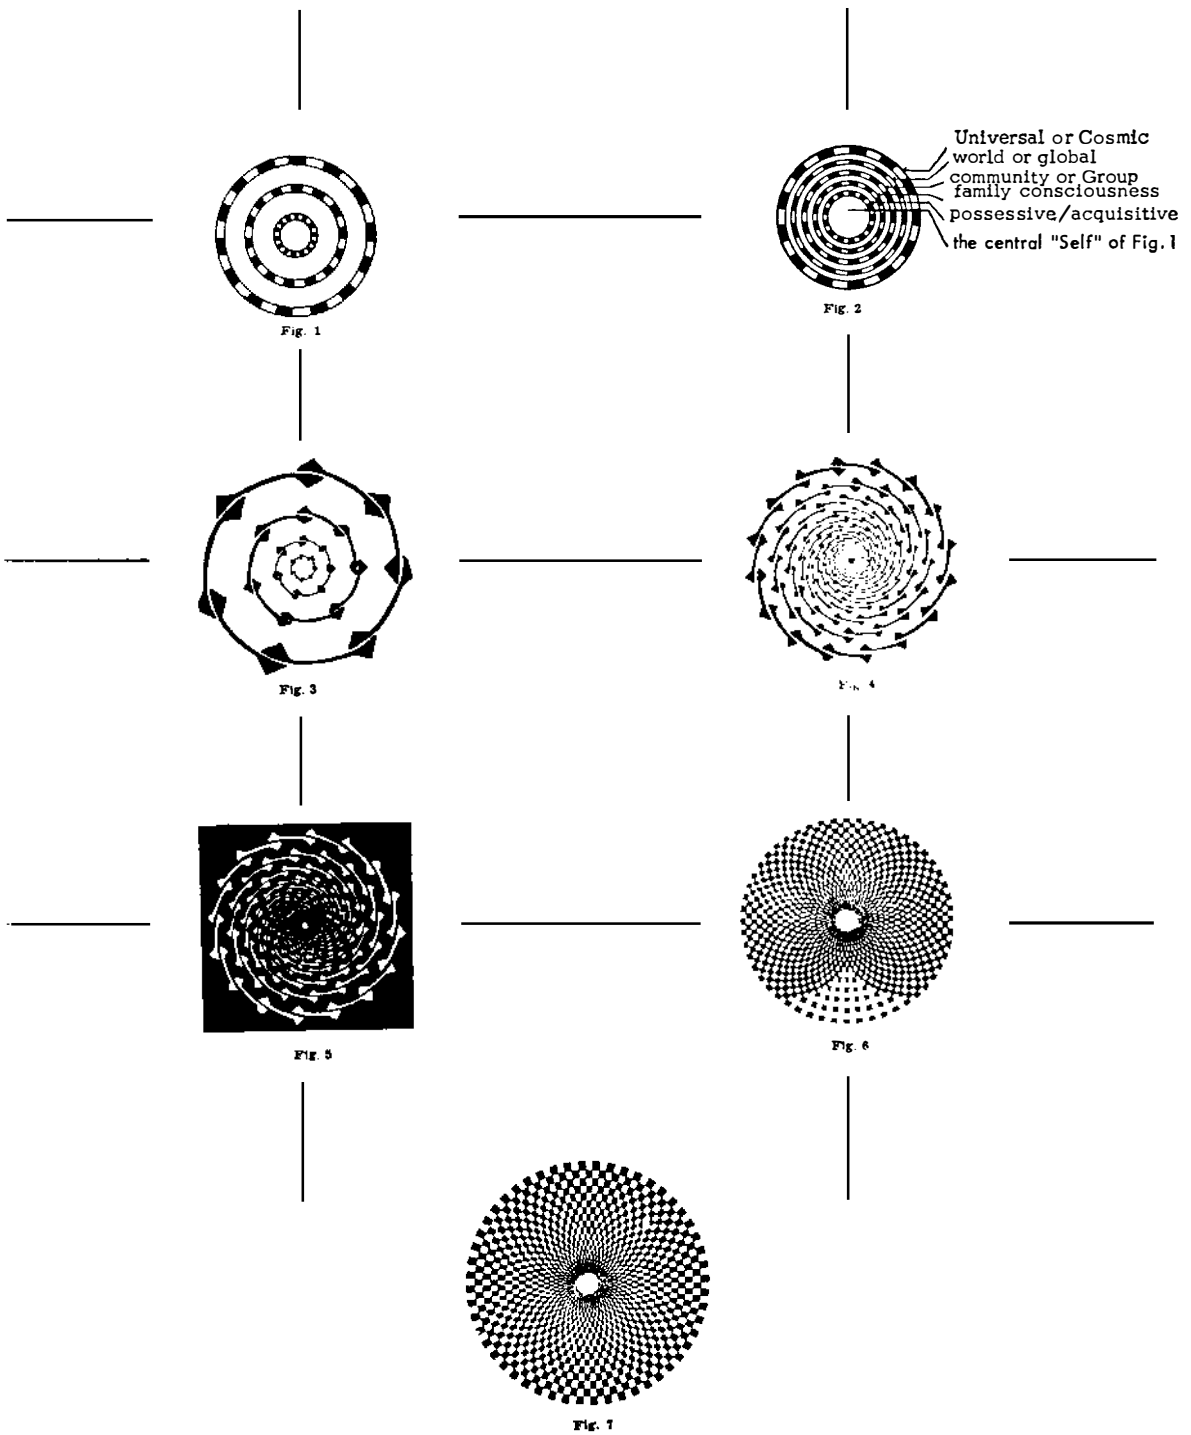

SUPERSTAR OR CLOWN?

Recently, I went into the costume room and put on the outfit belonging to the SUPERSTAR LECTURER AND TEACHER: THE GREAT GURU HIMSELF. I jumped into the centre of the ring, climbed the highwire and started to talk to my peers. After a few sentences I looked down and saw I had left my clown shoes on. As questions came at me beyond my knowledge I tried to maneuver but soon tripped over my shoes and fell from the highwire. I came crashing down landing flat on my face in an egg pie. As I slowly got up, with egg all over my face, the SUPERSTAR costume fell off and people saw that it was just Robert-the-Clown accompanied by his Big Ego-Little Self. The audience did not laugh, for they saw the clown was crying inside. As a result, I learnt not to borrow costumes to inflate my ego. I then accepted the roles given to me by the Cosmos, and am learning to perform them to the best of my ability.

THE CLOWN IN US ALL

SPHERES OF CONSCIOUSNESS

taken from Nuclear Evolution: The Discovery of the Rainbow Body; University of the Trees Press.*

THE GROWTH OF CONSCIOUSNESS AT THE UNIVERSITY OF THE TREES

The process of Nuclear Evolution is one of increasing awareness. Dotted throughout this book are individual personal examples of this growth through change. As well as helping his students to grow individually, Christopher Hills has been skillfully changing us as a group, without telling us what to do. The opposite diagram to which reference will be made is taken from his book *Nuclear Evolution. Three years ago, when the Friday night meetings were first started at the university, the participants could attend or not as they wished. This was a low level of commitment. To attend we only had to be operating from one of the three basic levels of awareness. They are red / body, orange / ego and yellow / self consciousness, Fig. 1. These were the cheap seats in the movie theatre.

INCREASING COMMITMENT

Christopher knew that people's awareness expands with their commitment to what they are involved in. So after a few months he raised the level of commitment to eliminate anyone who would not attend every week for an eight-week series. The committed people were required to listen to a tape recording if they did miss a session, before the next Friday. Here I should point out that an open meeting preceded the committed meeting, thus leaving a space for anyone who was not ready for the commitment and providing an inlet for new people. So we paid a bit more by losing a little personal freedom to attend Friday night dances, weddings, parties and movies, and moved a few rows back in the theatre. This step was a beginning of a transition through gaining sensitivity and awareness to the levels of consciousness in Fig. 2.

INCREASING AWARENESS

Another step was taken after three sets of eight talks when we were asked to commit ourselves to attending every Friday. It took over a year for the group's awareness to be raised to the level where we all freely incorporated mandatory Friday attendance as part of our modus operandum. This came to a head during a Friday session when most of the group realized that there were some members who sometimes went through great effort to always attend, while one or two of the group still missed when they were not in the mood. The months spent discussing the nature of commitment brought a new level of awareness to the group. Our sensitivity increased and we became more aware of the introverted levels of consciousness in Fig. 2.

SPIRITUAL MARRIAGE

Now Christopher stepped the pace up again, slowly at first, drawing us in together (Fig. 3). With this inward force increasing the love bond that held us together, the kicking rate was stepped up. The push was on for the members of the group to clean up their own elephant manure and to develop skill in doing so. We had been working on our ego blindnesses for two years now when Christopher again raised the price (Fig. 4). He offered the group the constitution outlined in the book “Universal Government By Nature’s Laws*,” and the idea of a spiritual group marriage. This meant committing ourselves for eternity to Nuclear Evolution, and the formation of a World Peace Centre. As usual there were two reactions to the suggestion. The attitude of some of the group members was that they could not take any more. “Eternity is a long time.” “Being married to a group – never.” But most saw the fantastic opportunity Christopher was offering us, for he was to be a participant in the spiritual marriage. We had made the transition to Fig. 5 and bought more expensive seats in the movie theatre.

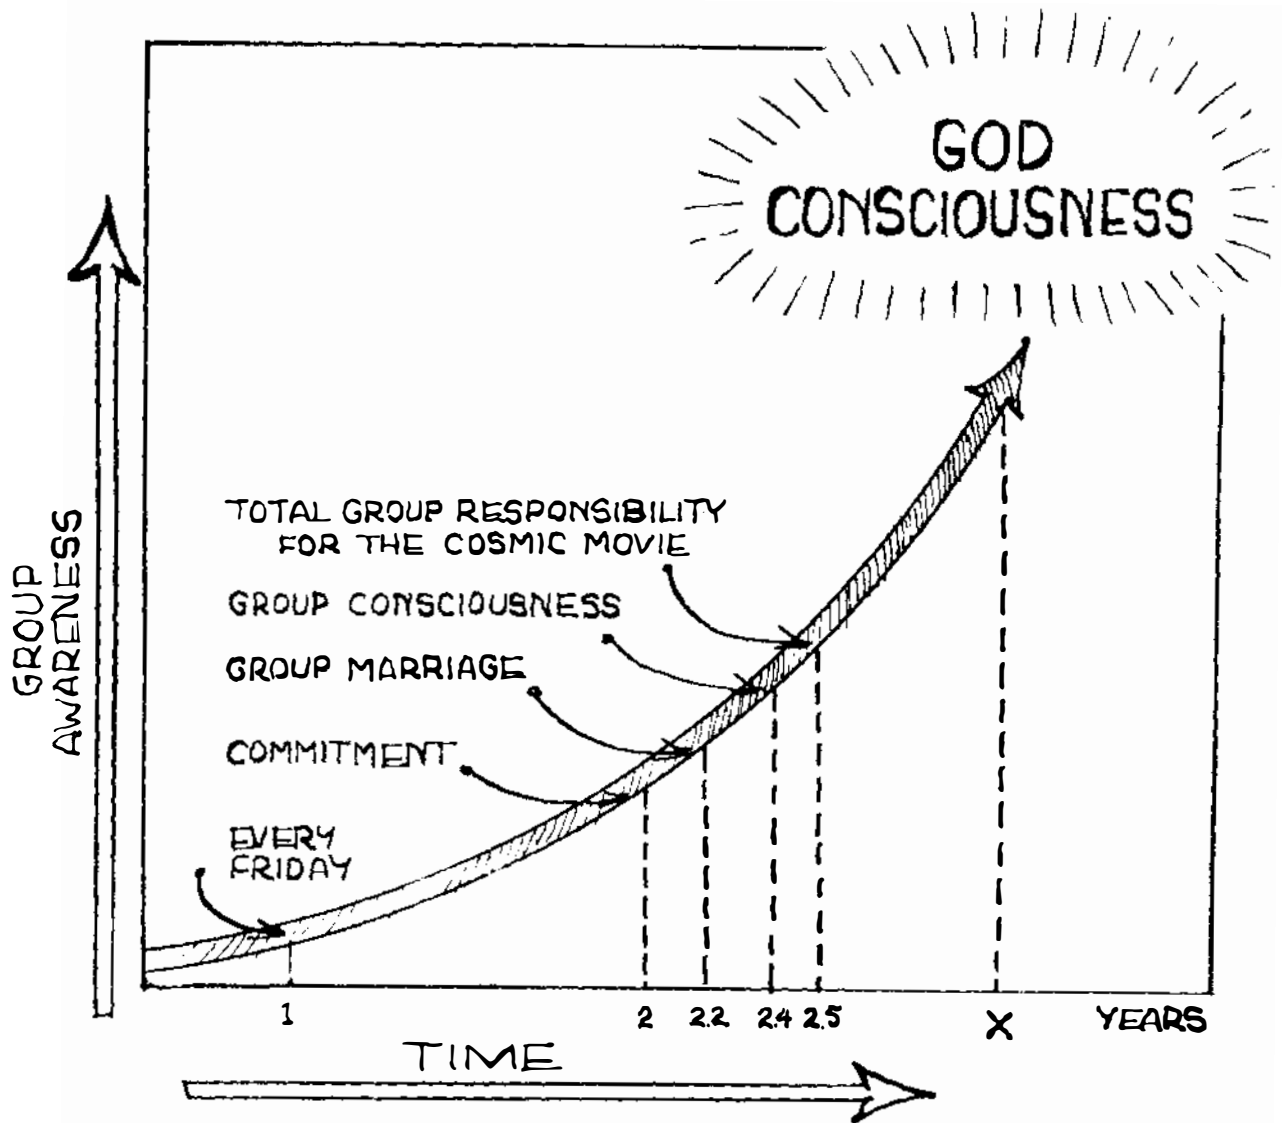

GROUP PROJECTS

Having made this commitment, Christopher then plunged us into group projects by which we would learn our interdependence and attain group consciousness (Fig. 6). We were caught up in the momentum, having realized that we must go on no matter how tough the work became. There was no turning back now. After about 4 months the group came together and experienced group consciousness. We were now sitting in the most expensive movie seats at the rear of the theatre.

The next step we took was to become the projectionist of the movie and the ushers by putting on the next 10 Friday night Nuclear Evolution sessions ourselves. People who were not ready to commit themselves when the series was first begun by Christopher could now join in and participate in the same series, but this time given by the group. The momentum is such at the University, that we were all eager to accept this new level of commitment and were willing to pay the price of: teaching, talking, working, creating, taking initiative and total responsibility. This means we don’t say I have some of my own things to do tonight, or I don’t like that job. We now give ourselves selflessly. Letting go of our personal freedom. To keep us going in this direction the price set was for each of us to write a book, on the Nuclear Evolution series. This one is mine.

THE GROWTH OF GROUP CONSCIOUSNESS

EPILOGUE

THE PROOF

Everybody has a theory. Theories are not much use without practical proof. Interspersed through this book are a few practical examples of Nuclear Evolution, the science of growth through change; or the expansion of consciousness. Every student of Christopher Hills writes their own book of life first in consciousness and then in words. This book is then, the proof of Hills' Theory of Consciousness. There has recently been another change in the example on my sexual addiction so it is appropriate to finish with this change.

I no longer yearn for sexual intercourse. I can be with a girl and feel very sexy, as usual, but I am now in control. I am finally off the hook. The process of Nuclear Evolution has cured me, so I am no longer a sex addict. This does not mean that I do not want to sleep with this girl. What it does mean is that I am no longer counting the days to the end of the renunciation. I have one year to go, but it no longer bothers me. It is no longer a big deal. My attitude now is, "when it happens, that's fine." To put this in better perspective, I am still, sexually, a very greedy person, but I am now in control of this drive.

It may occur to you to ask where does the sexual energy go when it is not being used for intercourse. Writing and working is half the answer. The other half is that, daily for about 2 minutes, I do a yogic exercise (as given by Christopher Hills in his Rumph Roomph Yoga series) to channel this energy upwards to open my crown chakra.

During this next year I need to look at my attitude towards my use and misuse of sex, and to my attitudes towards the opposite sex. This is the next stage of this renunciation.

SUMMARY

For mankind to evolve each individual must change himself. Nuclear Evolution is the process of change. The steps in changing are:

- 1) recognize you have a problem or blind area
(a group can help point this out to you)
- 2) investigate this intensely to see in how many other areas the same pattern occurs (we call this shoveling the manure out of the Aegean stables)

Rumph Roomph Yoga series of cassette tapes available through the University of the Trees Press.*

- 3) when you have seen the problem in all its disguises, then and only then, are you ready to change it.
- 4) when do you change? NOW!
you don't say I am working on it.
you don't say I am getting better, or it is getting better.
- 5) you say I have changed.
- 6) when the problem arises your attitude is, yes, I know you, but you have no place here. You then stomp on it quickly and so give it no time to get power over you. These negative patterns are like colds. If they are allowed to take hold, they run their full course.
This is Nuclear Evolution in practice.

THE LAWS OF CONSCIOUSNESS

From my level of consciousness I see consciousness as having laws, and thus, throughout this theory I have formulated eight laws of consciousness from the teachings of Christopher Hills. It should be noted, however, that from Hills' level of consciousness there are no laws in consciousness. Pure consciousness is pure, it has no laws.

AN EXPERIMENTAL SCHOOL FOR WORLD CHANGE

WHAT IS EFFECTIVE SELFLESS ACTION?

How does Consciousness expand and grow? We are exploring this question and finding answers to it at the University of the Trees, a small learning community nestled in the village of Boulder Creek. The world is the campus and life provides the training around for this open learning situation in which the subject and object of study is Consciousness. Some students live at the University while many others are scattered throughout the world.

AFFILIATIONS

The University of the Trees is accredited through Los Angeles University for the awarding of degrees, Bachelors through Doctorate, in several areas of study.

The University of the Trees is affiliated with two other institutions in India and England. Centre House Community in London, England is an experimental group of people committed to the evolution of new social structures founded by Christopher Hills in 1966. Centre operates a 6 storey building in London for use by different groups.

Affiliation with The Indian Institute of Philosophy, Psychology and Psychical Research, an ashram in the Himalayas at Rajpur near Mussourie and Dehra Dun, enables selected students to study in India and obtain PhD. degrees in philosophy and psychology. The Institute has published the quarterly journals DARSHANA and PSYCHICS INTERNATIONAL since 1960.

CURRICULUM

Into Meditation Now is the primary curriculum at the University and available by mail. The practicing student experiences deep insights into his own nature and the nature of existence, and is enabled to manifest these insights into his life situation. There is an increasing number of books, cassette tapes and correspondence courses being offered by the University of the Trees Press.

The Nuclear Family at the campus is a growing group of committed people willing to work on themselves and each other with penetrating love, seeking the spiritual advancement of all. On campus activities include chanting, Supersensonics, yoga postures, a healing sounds tape library, and self-awareness sessions. Each Friday night there is a meditation and lecture given by Christopher Hills from 7:00 to 8:30 pm at 13185 Pine Street. Serious students are invited to participate.

Using a specific kind of chanting to more quickly reach the true meditative state, University of the Trees students then test the quality of that meditation in life, learning to act not only as individuals but as one organic whole. They practice “creative conflict,” which achieves penetration of the ego structure in a way that encounter groups and psychodrama cannot do. Christopher Hills does not offer kundalini – shaktipat enlightenment at a glance or a touch. He is a teacher for students with staying power who have been through all the spiritual trips and are now ready for ruthless self-honesty and willingness to change. “It’s a hard trip,” he says, “because without rigorous work on yourself, no amount of meditative highs or seductive techniques can give you self-mastery.” If interested in a unique situation for spiritual growth, write to P.O. Box 644, Boulder Creek, CA 95006.

A SHORT BIOGRAPHY OF CHRISTOPHER HILLS

Christopher Hills is a scientist yogi who joins in himself the rigor of Western research and the living-knowledge of true spiritual discovery. He was born the son of an English fish merchant, and, like any English boy, he roamed the fields, built tree houses, went to naval school, served in the war. By the age of 30 he was a wealthy businessman in Jamaica, with an international organization of ten companies dealing with produce, essential oils, African and Indian spices. But in his inner world, the seeds were there from the beginning that would later come to fruition as a blend of creativity, practicality, skepticism, and wonder. From his boyhood on, he tested all truth for himself and accepted nothing on faith. He had several deep psychic and spiritual experiences, yet remained skeptical of religion until 1957, when his son was miraculously healed through prayer. Christopher then retired from his successful business and would not rest until he understood the laws at work in such a phenomenon. He went to India and studied with a master yogi. As a boy he had felt intimations of huge changes to be made, both within himself and in the whole of society. In India, he re-cognized this guiding purpose of his deepest self and began to shift the mountains within himself. But he did not, as so many yogis do, forget society.

In 1962, he formed the Commission for Research into the Creative Faculties of Man, which has members working in organizations scattered throughout the world. The commission's 1,700 membership includes scientists, psychic researchers, philosophers, holy men, education experts, and political leaders. As part of this work, Christopher and Professor Hiroshi Nakamura in 1964 formed the international union of leading micro-biologists to harness solar energy and advise on the production of edible Algae as a means of solving the world's food problems. This research is typical of Christopher in that it moves toward the high goal of world peace in a very practical, concrete way.

He is working now as founder and director of the University of the Trees. His 3-year course, called "Into Mediation Now," can be studied in residence at the University in Boulder Creek, California or can be taken as a correspondence course from anywhere in the world. The course unites the essential teachings of Buddha, Krishna, and Christ with Christopher's original scientific research into the nature of Light. For the student, it offers increased awareness and self-knowledge and the opportunity to attain the self-mastery which Christopher himself embodies and manifests. The central theme of his teaching on meditation is that the fruits must be manifested in actual human relationships. For students in residence at the University, he does the work of daily unmasking their egos, exposing them to embarrassment and growth and the relief of having nothing left to hide.

Christopher has chosen this intensive day-by-day work as a teacher as part of his larger goal and life's ambition to foster world peace: "when people unite, then nations will unite." So he gives himself tirelessly to the slow and diligent work that will make this oneness an actuality for all to see. The Supersensitive Life of Man series is part of this work to open individuals, through increased awareness, to their own deeper being. It is part of his practical scientific work toward a leap in human evolution, moving toward that oneness which is the core of all great religions.

Christopher has been awarded many Indian titles such as Acharya (inspired teacher) and Maharshi (great researcher) but he does not use them. He was elected President of the World Conference on Scientific Yoga attended by 800 yogis from all over the world and 50 western scientists who authorized him to establish a World Yoga University. Christopher is Hon. Director of Research at Indian Institute of Philosophy, Psychology and Psychical Research, publishers of Darshana and Psychic Magazine since 1960.

The students who have been drawn to Christopher are seeking to attain the self-mastery which Christopher himself embodies and manifests. They experience him as a delightful, humorous, loving person, a man who lives life fully. He does not nurture certain energies and stifle others. He lives the full spectrum of energies and radiates them to others, forcing each student to come face to face with his own false assumptions of what a "spiritual" being is supposed to be.

For three years the author has practiced Hills' theory of consciousness as one of the many students of Christopher Hills working to achieve group consciousness. Concerned with enlightenment and increased perception through "Nuclear Evolution" this book illustrates a seeker's subjective participation in the real life drama of self mastery. The student-teacher interplay provides an interesting perspective for all those involved in the New Age consciousness revolution and offers workable techniques for evolving an integrated and attuned understanding of who we really are.
