

Dowsing Charts

Chart Factory

Make your own charts using the blank charts and lists of items
provided here

Pendulum Dowsing Charts

The charts on the following pages, which are in no particular order, are included here in the hope that they will stimulate thought. Some are charts that Isabel used in her work, and these often had handwritten additions. A dowsing chart can be an organic, growing thing — a responsive tool with which to conduct your evolving enquiry. So leave plenty of spaces for extra items when you make your own charts. Other charts have been generously contributed for this book. Margaret Spicer's Shock Analysis and Stress Coping charts have instructions, and you can make your own charts from her lists of Australian Bushflower and American Wildflower essences. So photocopy, or scan these blank charts and lists as often as you want, share them with others, and above all, have fun and enjoy your work.

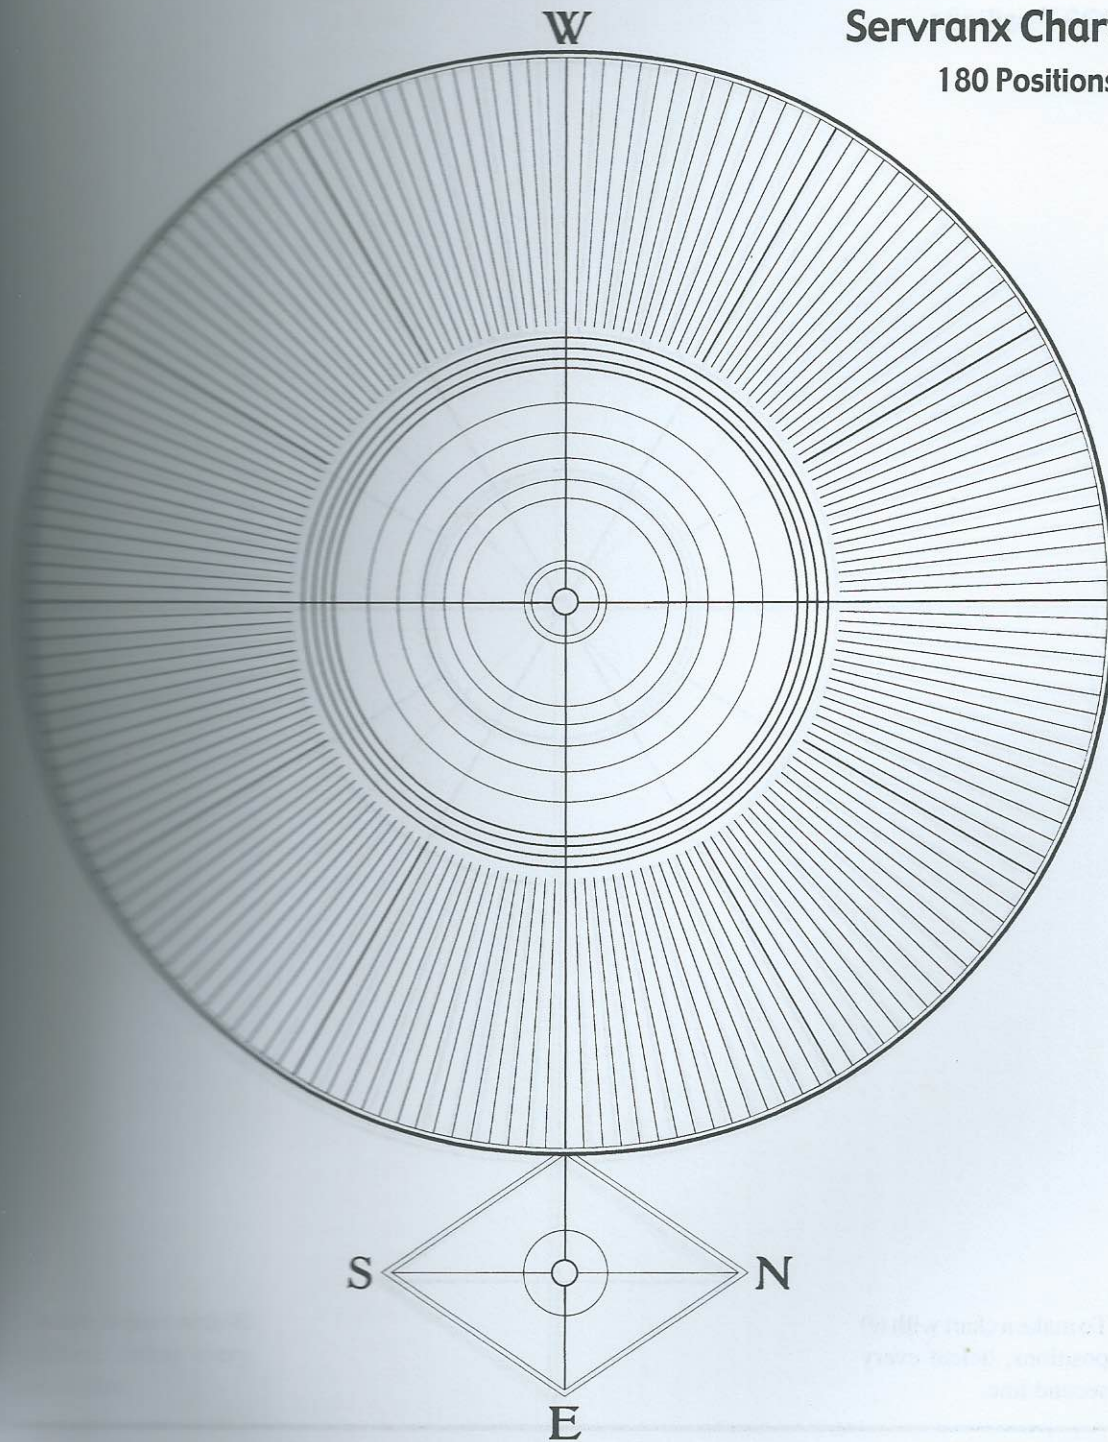

You will find the notation 'Inner circle' in the lists of items for making Aromatherapy and Herb charts. Put these items in the central ring of your chart as they are for a separate question, as "Which herb?" for the outer, and "How shall I apply it?" for the inner ring. The number at the top of the list refers to the number of items in the main, or outer circle.

RADIANT HEALING

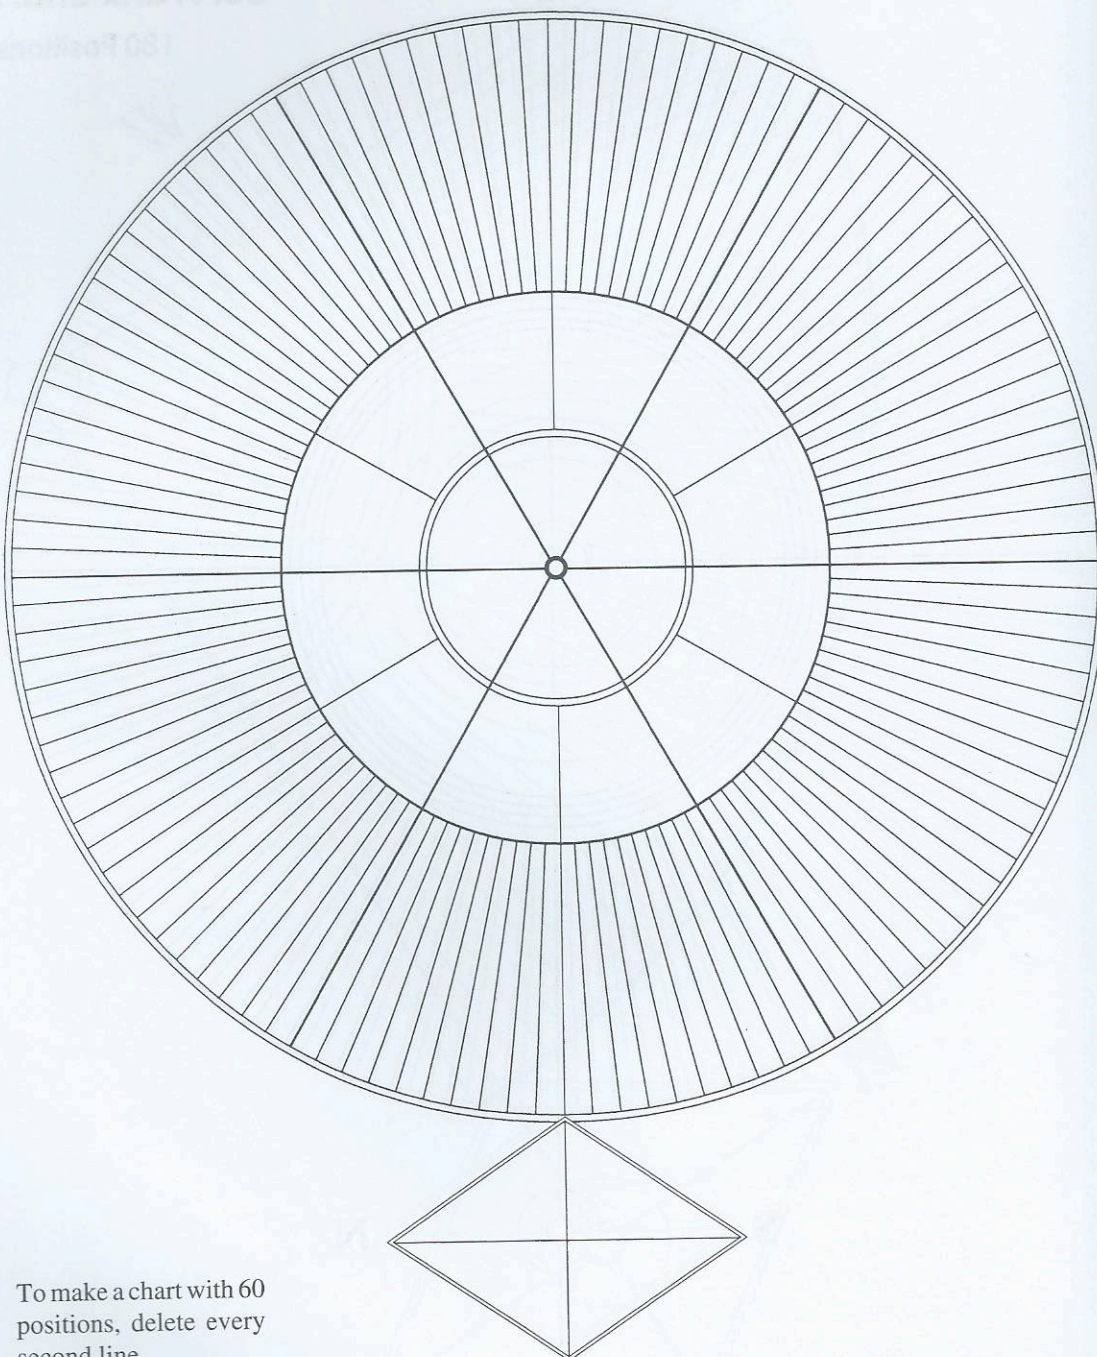

Use a scanner or photocopier to make four copies of this page. Trim with scissors and assemble to make the complete chart.

Servranx Chart
180 Positions

RADIANT HEALING

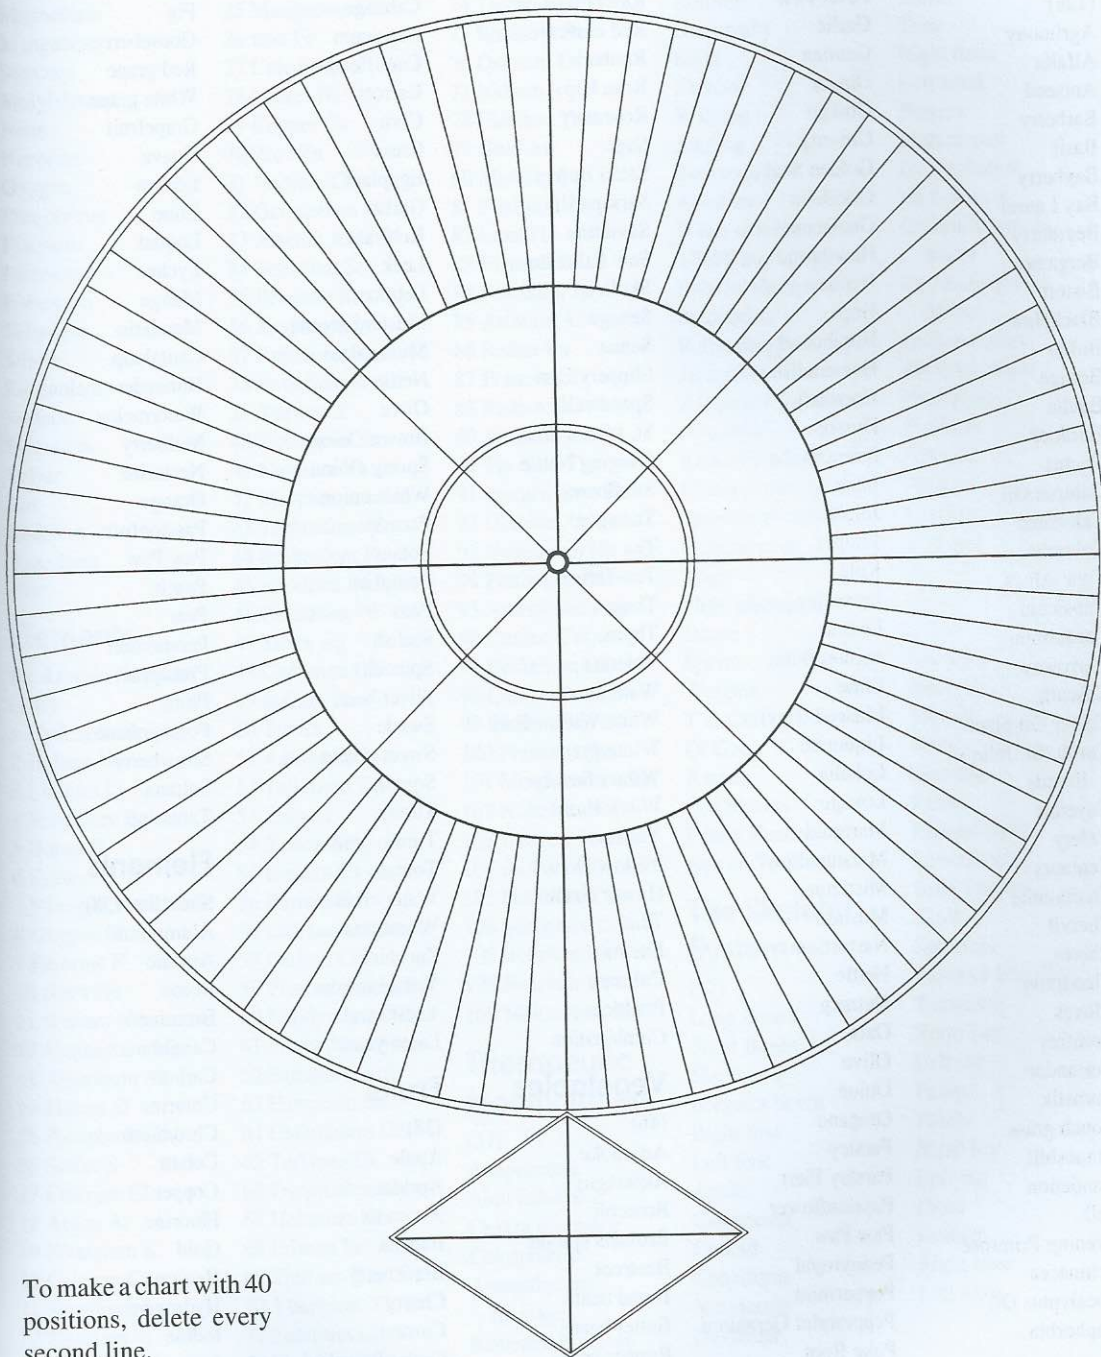

120 Positions

To make a chart with 60 positions, delete every second line.

To make a chart with 60 positions, delete every second line.

80 Positions

To make a chart with 40 positions, delete every second line.