

1~ÿY
1802.

AT

ÿ

POST MORTEM

Death is before me today.

Like a man's desire to return to his home, When he spent long years in captivity...

{Papyrus of the XP dynasty, more than 2,000 years old before f.-C.)

"CHAMPS-ELYSEES EDITIONS" - PARIS

IT IS IN THE

AFTER DEATH

ýfc/! R.

Me

DL.73 4 3 : .ýý .J 4 d 0H

IY ÜBfeRATION

Painting by the late Kazimir STABROVSKY, former half of the Beauv-Arts in Warsaw, great occultist and friend of the author.

Director from the Aca

This painting shows the soul leaving its earthly envelope, like a butterfly emerging from its chrysalis and seeming to tend towards an iridescent realm, the floating arms of her similar to soap

and

life

on earth — it is fully conscious awakening at the time of death.
Below, on the left, his relatives, who died before his own release, happily stretch out their arms to welcome him.

AT

> THE DEATH

"Come" is the name of the dead.

Song of Maniros, son of Menes.

"CHAMPS-ELYSEES EDITIONS"
ALL LITERATURE — PARIS
72, Avenue des Champs-Elysees.

FROM THE SAME AUTHOR :

Broadcast to / 'OMNIUM LITTERAIRE:

The origins of Genesis and the teaching of the Temples of ancient Egypt;

The Sacred Language;

First steps in therapeutic dowsing;

Radiation forms and cancer;

Gnomology (in press) ;

Magic cures in the 20th century (in reprint) ;

The Rota Trilogy (in reprint) :

Volume I : *Essay on Kabbalistic Astrology, with a Wrath of the Literal
Dion of Sepher Yétzirah ;*

Volume II : Rota or " The celestial wheel ", Study of the mechanism of universal Life;

Volume III : Handbook of Practical Cabbala.

A PREPARATION:

"MYSTERIES OF LIFE AND DEATH ".

Articles published in the magazine "Initiation et Science":

Example of interpretation of the hidden meaning of hiero
glyphs Fascicule XXXI ,

Technique of a magic cure (transfer of a disease of a man on a plant). Fascicule XXXII,

The Hearths of Light Issue XXXIII.

1. — Introduction

Death, what a terrible word! Terrible, because no one has returned from the other side to inform the living. And yet, life is closely linked to death. Man knows, from birth, that this is the only thing he cannot avoid and that it will occur at a more or less distant time.

When we see a dead man stretched out, his features calm as if he had finally found rest after a life filled with anguish and disappointment, we shudder, involuntarily invaded by a kind of fear that runs through the whole being. Why does a corpse cause terrifying impressions when it can no longer harm anyone, being less dangerous than a living one?

It is because he has reached that realm of which we know nothing.

A sick person, a cripple, an unhappy person prefers to drag out a painful and miserable existence rather than die. Alive, he can face evils that he knows more or less about, he understands his situation, he experiences some pleasures among the sufferings with which destiny overwhelms him, finally, he hopes that all things will work out for the best.

Arrived at the sinister frontier, he knows nothing, he ignores even if its existence will continue in the hereafter. His only desire is to live, to live at all costs, even in misfortune, in misery, in incessant decline.

It is for these reasons that the death penalty is a terrible punishment, for nothing more precious than life can be taken from man.

This is why the greatest heroism consists to die for an idea, for his neighbour, for his country.

If we knew what awaits us after death, this last would lose, with the mystery which surrounds it, its terrifying aspect. Death is shrouded in darkness; also the Greeks, in their myths which render so well the movements of the human soul, taught that the goddess of death—Thomatos—was the daughter of Erebus, god of hell and of the night.

Human life unfolds under the bright rays of the sun — Apollo — surrounded by joys governed by the Muses, but death belongs to the kingdom of night, of darkness, the kingdom of the ruthless Chronos — Time — which leads it into its sinister boat.

"Every day goes to death, the last one arrives there" says Montaigne, and the Holy Scriptures prescribe to man to think continually about death, to prepare for it because we know neither the day nor the hour of death. our departure.

Official science differentiates the living being from the corpse. It tells us that the living cell transforms inorganic chemical substances into organic matter, which the dead cell cannot achieve, and that is all. How can she explain what death is when she doesn't know what life is? It can verify the fact of physical death, of the change which has suddenly taken place in a being who moved, ate, spoke and thought, who, by his actions, took part in the collective life. As for explaining this transformation, preventing it or saying what will happen, the engine of life having left its physical envelope, science is unable to do so. It is the realm of faith, the religion that teaches us that after death comes eternal life.

BEWITCHES AND EXORCISMS THROUGH THE AGES, RITUAL OF DEFENSE, by Anne Osraont; book adorned with an unpublished portrait of and preceded by personal memories of Mrs. Sonia Bentkowski-Lavritch, pupil and friend of the author	50«
RHYTHM, CREATOR OF STRENGTHS AND SHAPES, by Anne Osmont	300
INITIATIC EXPERIENCES, by Dr. Francis Lefebure, Volume I: The sensory pathway (Yoga, clairaudience, ocular convergence, fourth dimension, doubling, etc.)	450
THE INVISIBLE IS TALKING TO YOU, by Jeanne Walz Honored	300
LIFE IN MATTER AND IN THE COS MOS, by Professor Toquet, Preface by Dr. H. Desoille, 10 plates, 45 figs.....	300
CAGLIOSTRO AND CATHERINE II, by W.-R. Chef feul, Dr of the University of Paris, numerous unpublished illustrations	540
CANCER AND THE SECRET OF ITS GENESIS, by Auguste Lumière, GO Corresponding member of the Institute and Academies of Medicine in Paris, Barcelona, Madrid, Buenos-Aires, etc., Preface by Pr Léon Bérard, Member of the Academy, with a portrait of the author	750
ALL RADIESTHESIA IN 9 LESSONS, by Maurice Le Gall, former student of the Ecole Poly Technique, former Professor of Applied Sciences at the Artillery School of Fontainebleau (See also Bibliography, Appendix, Plates, and many drawings. 2nd edition..	510
"Initiation et Science" review, review of metapsychic, esoteric, naturist studies, etc., the number	100
Subscription for 12 issues: Frs 1,000 (for foreign countries: Frs 1,144)

PUBLISHER #: 67

Impressions NICEA, 24. rue d'Auery, PARIS-15*

Participating in a process of transmitting fiction or knowledge made difficult by time, this digital edition brings life back to a work that had hitherto existed a

on a printed medium, in accordance with law no. 2012-287 of March 1, 2012 relating to the use of Unavailable Books of the 20th century.

This digital edition was produced from a sometimes old physical medium co within the collections of the National Library of France, in particular for the purpose of
It can therefore reproduce, beyond the text itself, elements specific to the exe which was used for digitization.

This digital edition was produced by the company FeniXX in PDF format

The cover reproduces that of the original book kept in the collections of the National Library of France, in particular for legal deposit.

The FeniXX company distributes this digital edition in agreement with the publisher of the original book which has an exclusive license granted by Sofia
-French Society for the Interests of Authors of Writing - under law no. 2012-287 of March 1, 2012.

With the support of

