

Duplicator diagram: It is a scheme or graph of the psionic type and, although it works well on paper with normal black ink, it is much more active if it is made on metal, such as a copper-coated bakelite plate like those used to make printed circuits. It is placed in the position of "copying" the remedy or even a wish written on a piece of paper and the photo of the witness or the receiving substance in the "receiving" one, leaving it as two hours for it to act. It is not necessary to orient it in the "receive" position to the geographical East, although it may accelerate the process. There are many other radionic or psionic charts for the same type of function, but this is the one most used to make copies of the homeopathic type.
